B.C. Oil Low

Times News Serrvices

Industry in British Columbia is facing a shortage of heavy oil supplies.

James Rhodes, chairman of the B.C. Energy Commission, said this winter's situation is known to be marginal — "it appears . . . it will be nip-and-tuck."

Barry Sleigh, president of B.C. Petroleum Association, said it appeared traditional users of heavy oil would be covered but there may be spot problems.

He said he was more concerned about next winter's supply, since contracts for that will be negotiated in the spring.

Council of Forest Industries spokesman Pat Hrushowy said industry users received assurances before the Middle East war that contracts would be met.

"If Canada and the United States get into a situation where neither will send oil to the other we could be in trouble," he said.

Vancouver Island mills rely heavily on California-supplied oil.

Sleigh added that B.C. should have sufficient furnace oil unless a large industry such as a pulp mill decided to switch from natural gas for heating purposes.

The energy commission, meanwhile, expects to have a preliminary report to the provincial government on oil supply, demand and price ready by Feb. 1.

However, it will be up to the government to decide whether the public will have access to the data contained in the report.

In an effort to protect Canadian consumers from winter gasoline and heating oil shortages, the National Energy Board today, rejected export applications from former cus-

TRAPPED UTILITY POLE serves as a strange dividing post between two lines of traffic on Metchosin Road near William Head. The road was widened around the pole, but before it could be moved to its rightful place at the side of the improved road, paving crews trapped it in the middle. A Hydro spokesman said the pole will probably be moved soon.

Session Ending Today

The B.C. legislature will prorogue today as MLAs on both sides of the house have agreed to give speedy approval to bills still remaining on the order paper.

Only nine of 69 bills introduced during the eight-week session still have to be dealt with and Premier Barrett says Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen's administrator, Chief Justice John Ferris, will be on hand to wind up the session sometime today.

Opposition spokesmen confirm arrangements have been made to end the session and say they do not expect any stall tactics.

One of the remaining bills is a contentious one, however, setting up the department of transport and communications under Robert Strachan, the minister who has come under opposition fire recently and was cleared Tuesday of a charge by another member that he lied to the house.

Once the nine bills pass through committee stage in the house today, formal approval of third reading will be given a number of bills which were amended during the session and Ferris will be called to give royal assent to all bills passed by the House.

Thirty-two bills were dealt with Tuesday, 24 given committee stage approval and eight given second reading during the afternoon and long evening sittings.

Most of the debate was speedy as is traditional during the last days of any session but the Human Rights Code of B.C. sparked some discussion as David Anderson (L-Victoria) prodded Labor Minister Bill King for what he said were inconsistencies in the legislation.

Different sections of the bill prohibit discrimination in areas such as housing, purchase of property, wages and employment.

Anderson charged that the kinds of discrimination prohibited are different for each

Nixon Loses Veto Battle

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — With substantial defections of Republican congressmen, the House of Representatives today over-rode President Nixon's veto of a bill to restrict his powers to wage war.

The 284-135 vote sent Nixon's political effectiveness skidding to an all-time low. The Senate planned a speedy vote on the same subject later today. It is expected to have a similar result.

The override came despite an impassioned plea by Rep. Gerald Ford, vice-president-designate, to avoid the "potential of disaster" he said it represented during the Mideast crisis.

Ford argued that the bill carried "the potential of disaster for us at this juncture, to take away support from the president as he works day and night with the Secretary of State to achieve peace" in the Mideast.

"We are not out of the woods yet," Ford said. "we may be a long way from being out of the woods. I'm very concerned that to override this veto at this time could . . . ruin the president's position."

The bill would impose a 60-day limit on presidents' power to commit United States forces abroad without Congress's approval.

Its terms would empower Congress to halt the war any time during the 60 days with a veto-proof resolution. There could be a 30-day extension for withdrawal.

Supporters of the bill said their biggest override obstacles were the popularity of vice-president-designate Ford and opposition of more than a dozen anti-war congressmen.

Speaker Carl Albert was among Democratic House leaders urging the override to give Congress a hand in war commitments.

When the vote — four more than the necessary two-thirds majority — was announced, there was applause and cheering from house members.

Democrats scored big gains in off-year elections across the U.S. Tuesday. (See Page 56.)

Edge of Peace . . . Or of War?

Times News Services

Egypt and the United States said today they were restoring diplomatic relations immediately and moving toward peace in the Middle East. But an official Israeli military spokesman charged that Egypt was preparing its forces to resume the war.

Both Syria and Israel reported artillery duels along the Golan Heights today and there were minor clashes along the Suez Canal front where the semi-official Middle East News Agency said the Egyptian armed forces had been placed in an extreme state of alert.

Egypt broke relations with the United States during the 1967 Six Day War with a charge — later denied — that the U.S. 6th Fleet was flying combat missions for Israel. The resumption was announced today after Cairo talks between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Kissinger said after the talks and before leaving for Amman and talks with Jordan's King Hussein that "we are moving towards peace." Sadat told newsmen on the conference on the lawn of the presidential palace, "I agree with him."

There was no immediate reaction from Israel on the "towards peace" statements but shortly afterwards Israeli military spokesman Col. Nachman Karni told a military briefing in Tel Aviv:

"In the past hours there were a number of statements out of Cairo, some optimistic and some pessimistic, on the question of the resumption of fighting or the continuation of the ceasefire.

★ Senator Demands Ouster

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Veteran Republican Senator George Aiken of Vermont called today for impeachment proceedings against President Nixon, but opposed the president's resignation over the Watergate controversy.

The influential dean of the Republican minority in the Senate said: "It is the clear duty of the House of Representatives, through whatever procedures it chooses, to frame a charge of impeachment and to set itself a deadline for the task."

If no agreement can be reached on an impeachment charge — in effect an indictment paving the way for a Senate trial—the House leaders should tell the American people no agreed charge can be found against Nixon, Aiken said.

"That is the way to begin to restore confidence," Aiken said.

Meanwhile, a White House lawyer said today that Rose Woods, President Nixon's personal secretary, will testify about the Watergate tapes she listened to and apparently transcribed.

Lawyer Douglas Parker said she probably will appear Thursday at a hearing into the circumstances surrounding two Watergate conversations that presidential lawyers say went unrecorded.

A White House assistant, Stephen Bull, revealed Tuesday that Miss Woods has had possession of eight watergate tapes since late September.

On that weekend at Camp David, Md., she was said to have begun transcribing conversations on the tapes.

Miss Woods was given six more tapes to transcribe two

Mass Slaying Claims Nine

ACAMPO, Calif. (AP) — Nine persons were discovered shot to death and strewn about a luxury ranch-style house in this small community about 30 miles south of Sacramento, the San Joaquin County sheriff's office reported today.

The mass "execution" apparently was connected with the burglary of a grocery store owned by one of the victims. The dead include his wife and two children, a babysitter, her boyfriend, brother and parents.

Two young children of the Walter Parking family were found by a roomer, shot on a bed. Seven victims were found in a closet, bound, gagged and shot, and in the kitchen of the house at Victor, two miles east of Lodi.

Sheriff Michael M. Canlis said the slayings "look like the work of a madman."

"All these people appear to have been executed," the sheriff said.

Parkin, 33, and his father, operated the United Store, a roadside market.

Sheriff's deputies said the discovery was made by the Acampo fire department this morning while answering a rescue call.

Fugitives Holding 6 Hostage

WADENA, Minn. (UPI) — Two fugitives who shot their way out of jail held a family of six hostage in a farmhouse circled by dozens of law enforcement officers today but a snow storm stymied the escaper's getaway.

A light plane demanded by the runaways sat at Wadena airport with a sheriff's deputy at the controls, but swirling snow reduced visibility to less than a mile, delaying the takeoff and promised release of the hostages.

The fugitives, John Morgan, 37, and William L. Winans, 18, escaped from the county jail in this northwestern Minnesota community Monday, wounding jailer Randy Hanson. They went to the farm of Elmer Wegscheid at 6 p.m. Tuesday and have kept Wegscheid, his wife and their four teen-age children hostage while more than 50 local and state officers and FBI agents surrounded the house.

NEWS BRIEFS

$1B Added to '73 Ottawa Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — Supplementary estimates totalling just more than $1 billion were tabled in the Commons today by C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board.

They bring the federal government's intended record spending for the 1973-74 fiscal year to about $20.3 billion, and include $222 million for family allowances. The year's main estimates, tabled in February, totalled $19.3 billion.

Cracks in Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Skylab 3 launching, scheduled for Saturday, probably will be delayed five days until Nov. 15 because of cracks in all eight stabilizing fins in the first stage of the booster rocket, United States space agency officials said today.

Housing Starts Off

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said starts in urban areas of 10,000 people and over amounted to 22,013 in October, down from 22,592 in the same month last year.

UIC Rates To Jump On Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP)— Manpower Minister Robert Andras announced new unemployment insurance contribution rates today after disclosing that a deficit of $335 million is expected this year in the employer-employee account.

He also told the Commons the government is taking further steps to tighten administration of the unemployment insurance fund to reduce abuses of benefits.

The employer's contribution will rise to $1.96 from $1.40. They are effective next Jan. 1.

The minister said the government has decided to increase the contribution rates because the cumulative deficit in the employer-employee account at the end of this year would be $509.6 million. That includes a net cash deficit of $174.5 million carried over from last year.

Shouting over Conservative heckling, Andras said the government is withdrawing a bill designed to cut down abuses of the unemployment insurance fund. New Democrats, who have opposed the bill as discriminatory, welcomed the announcement by thumping their desks.

DETERMINATION REALLY POLLUTES

VANCOUVER (CP)—A welded seal had to be broken open to allow an oil truck driver to pump 1,925 gallons of fuel into an unused tank which allowed some of it to leak into Vancouver Harbor.

Federal environment co-ordinator Chris Hatfield said the fact the pipe was welded shut should have "told somebody something."

But a B.C. Hydro spokesman said those involved in the delivery thought the pipe was rusted — not welded — closed.

Delivery was made by Imperial Oil Ltd., to Hydro's Pacific Stage Lines Ltd. terminal near the waterfront.

The Hydro spokesman said that of the 1,925 gallons pumped in about 1,000 gallons remained in the tank. Some of the balance was mopped up on the spot and the rest got into the storm sewers and was carried into the harbor.

The spokesman could not say how much got into the sewers. The driver found two intake pipes about eight inches apart and a depot employee removed the cap from one pipe and told the driver to deliver it there, said an oil firm spokesman.

Hatfield said the department is continuing to investigate with a view to eventually laying charges.

"There was not a lot of oil, but some of the litte beaches around Stanley Park could get a good coat of oil," he said.

"This is certainly not very good for marine life — it wouldn't take very many of these things before there wouldn't be any more marine life."

CIVIC ELECTIONS '73

The first of several special features outlining the platforms of Greater Victoria candidates seeking election Nov. 17 starts in the Times today on Page 25 with candidates vying for Greater Victoria and Saanich school district positions.

The platforms of all candidates seeking regional district, aldermanic and school trustee berths will be published before the Nov. 17 election.

Plywood Prices Rising

The retail price of plywood will go up between 5 and 10 per cent in the next two months, industry spokesmen said Tuesday.

Although revisions of price lists have not been sent out by manufacturers, one Victoria retailer said he has been told the price increase on fir plywood will be 5 per cent for sanded, and 7 per cent for unsanded.

Other dealers confirm that a general increase is coming.

Quarter-inch one-side sanded fir plywood is selling in Victoria this week at between $7.05 and $7.45 a sheet.

The expected price hike follows a year of gradual increases in the plywood market which is strongly influenced by supply and demand in the United States (unlike the lumber market which is influenced by international demand), dealers point out.

A spokesman for Victoria Building Supplies Ltd. said despite the increases in prices "people seem to find the money somewhere" and sales volume is good.

A spokesman for another firm said the price increase has been more evident in so called "fall-down" grades of plywood while better grades have tended to hold steady.

He estimated the general increase in the past year has been about 10 per cent.

Shortage of supply of certain grades of plywood continues to be a problem for dealers.

Many are also concerned the closure of Evans Products Co. Ltd. Vancouver plywood division will affect the market.

Evans has been one of the few independent suppliers of plywood and, "has been able to be very competitive" with the larger manufacturers, a Victoria dealer said.

One of the major influences on future prices of plywood is the prospect of supply shortages in the U.S. as a result of shortages of fuel and phenol, industry publications have warned.

WELDWOOD PROFITS DOUBLE

Weldwood of Canada Ltd. reports net earnings for the first nine months of 1973 of $10.9 million or $2.14 per share, up 114 per cent from $4.9 million or $1 per share in the corresponding 1972 period.

Sales of lumber, plywood and other wood products amounted to $192 million in the nine-month period, up 40 per cent.

Third-quarter sales were $62 million, up from $45 million a year ago, while net income in the third quarter was up 48 per cent at $2.5 million or 49 cents a share.

Strachan Cleared of Lying Charge

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Transport Minister Robert Strachan, accused by a Social Credit MLA of lying in the legislature, was cleared of the charge Tuesday after getting the support of six of his government colleagues on a special committee.

After more than eight hours of testimony from witnesses, the committee split along party lines and voted 6-4 against a motion saying Strachan had lied when questioned in the house about a management study of the B.C Ferries Service.

The charge was levelled Monday by Bob McClelland (SC—Langley) and was referred to the all-party committee for a decision on the question of privilege.

McClelland said today he will not resign despite the fact Strachan has been officially cleared.

"There's no way I will resign. There's no way I intended to resign at any point in this thing," he said.

"At no time in the House or outside the House have I lied. I have been very truthful and all my allegations have been upheld and proven."

The committee heard testimony all day and evening Tuesday, questioning Strachan, McClelland, ferries manager Monty Aldous, operations manager William Weston and management consultant Frank Machin of F. R. Machin and Associates Ltd. of Victoria.

The charge raised by McClelland related to a question he asked during Monday's question period and the answer given by Strachan. McClelland contended Strachan lied in saying no management study on the ferry system had been authorized.

Strachan countered that he had at no time authorized any study.

Testimony heard by the committee established Strachan had no knowledge of the management survey until it had been well along the way to completion. The evidence was not as clear-cut, however, on the question of whether Strachan's responses to McClelland's questions related specifically to the existence of a management survey.

The committee members who voted that Strachan lied to the house were: Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-

Pure Cocaine Seized In Mainland Raid

Three suspects were arrested, one at the Vancouver International Airport and the other two at the Bayshore Inn. Potential value of the narcotic on the illicit market is about $150,000, police said.

Howe Sound), Ed Smith (SC—North Peace), Jim Chabot (SC—Columbia River) and Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay).

Voting in support of Strachan were the six NDP members of the committee, not including committee chairman Carl Liden, (Delta) who did not vote on the final question. They were: Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, (Vancouver East) Recreation Minister Jack Radford, Vancouver South), Daisy Webster, (Vancouver South), Karen Sanford, (Comox), Gerry Anderson (Kamloops), and Don Lockstead (Mackenzie).

In questioning Strachan, the committee, specifically Williams, was able to determine that Strachan was aware on Monday — the day he answered McClelland's questions — that a management survey had been undertaken on the ferry system, even though the survey had gone ahead without his express consent.

VERBAL INSTRUCTION

Later testimony established it was Weston, operatons manager for the ferry system, who authorized the firm of F. R. Machin and Associates Ltd. to start the survey, after getting verbal instructions on the matter from his immediate superior, general manager Aldous.

A complication in the entire matter is the fact that Aldous is in the process of being replaced as a general manager of the system. Weston testified part of the motivation behind his actions in the affair was that Aldous was not actually fulfilling some of his former duties as general manager.

McClelland's grounds for saying Strachan lied are based on several of Strachan's statements in the Monday question period. Two of the statements were explained by Strachan to have been made in reference to another, separate study which was offered to representatives of the ferry workers before they went out on their five-day strike in August of this year.

WORDS TAPED

But another statement, interpreted by Williams and Wallace as being the damning evidence against Strachan, was recorded on Hansard tapes as the following: "I also state that at no time has there been any internal study authorized by any private company."

Government spokesmen, including Attorney-General Macdonald, said the statement should not be considered because they said it was "garbled" and was made by Strachan in the heat of the argument in the house with McClelland.

The oppposition members of the committee countered that the word "authorized" should have been placed at the end of the sentence by Strachan and in that form would be proof that he lied to the house.

STUDY HALTED

The testimony from the five witnesses established that when Strachan finally learned about the existence of the management survey being conducted by F. R. Machin and Associates Ltd. — and that was not until last week, one month after first authorization had been given by Weston — he ordered that it be halted.

The oppposition members of the committee used this fact as further evidence that Strachan must have known of the stuly when he answered McClelland's question in the Monday question period.

The study, according to the testimony of Machin, was to have cost the ferry service about $40,000, and involved eight of Machin's employees in the eight days in which actual interviews were made as part of the study. Work on the project was slowed down after Allous decided it would need ministerial approval, since ferry matters at that particular time were getting a lot of publicity as a result of opposition criticism.

Chabot, the most volatile of the opposition members of the special committee — he called the committee a "kangaroo court" after the final vote had been taken — made the point that Strachan, as the minister responsible for the ferries, should have been aware of as major a management study as that being carried out by Machin.

Aldous, in his testimony, attempted to establish the consulting firm was engaged only in preparatory work, but this evidence was later refuted by Machin, who said of Aldous' opinion of the amount of work done: "I hope he changes his mind when he gets our bill."

In their deliberations, the committee members heard from Macdonald that a dictionary definition of the term "to lie" includes the intention of a person to deceive.

Macdonald said that although Strachan did not answer all of McClelland's questions to the fullest extent possible, he had made no false answers in those he gave.

Williams, the only lawyer besides Macdonald on the committee, argued that the evidence before the committee dealt specifically with an internal study of the ferry system and that for Strachan to have alleged that no such internal study existed, as Williams said he did, caused him to "reluctantly come to the conclusion that the minister misled the house, and lied."

Chabot accused the government members on the committee of "attempting to bail the minister out, it's that simple."

Premier Barrett's only comment on the committee's decision was that the entire matter was not a healthy exercise for the house to be put through.

In Dayton, Ohio the Daily News Tuesday reported Attorney - General - designate William Saxbe three years ago vouched for the character and reputation of Cleveland millionaire Sam Klein, who was later linked with organized crime.

In a pair of copyright stories, the News also said it has in its possession a confidential Ohio Liquor Control Department report which says, "Sam Klein is allegedly connected with the Cleveland organized crime element and probably controls the major portion of the coin machine business in Ohio."

In a letter to the Nevada gaming control board dated Sept. 15, 1969, Saxbe wrote, "I think him (Klein) to be a person worthy of trust," The News said.

Klein had listed the senator as a reference in applying for a Nevada gambling license.

Aiken, who has been in the Senate since 1941, longer than any other member of the president's party, said that under the constitution only Congress has the duty to act.

He noted that if the president resigns, as he has been urged to do by an increasing number of newspapers, magazines and members of Congress, "we will be relieved of our duty."

"But I fail to see any great act of patriotism in such a drama," Aiken said.

"On the contrary, it is the president's duty to his country not to resign. That which the American voter has done, let no man undo except through due process. That should be the president's guiding commandment."

tomers in Detroit and other Michigan centres.

And Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday that if it proves necessary, the federal government will overrule Quebec objections and approve construction of an oil pipeline to Montreal.

"Very clearly, if it is necessary for the security of supply to any part of the eastern Canadian market, then ultimately the federal government will have to take the decision," he told the Commons.

Also in Ottawa steps probably will be taken soon to reduce the energy demands for lighting and heating federal buildings, Public Works Minister Jean-Etuds Dube said Tuesday.

He said he doubts, however, that the demand could be cut by 10 per cent, a figure mentioned by Energy Minister Macdonald in outlining energy conservation plans.

Macdonald said Canadian demand could be cut 10 per cent by lowering temperatures three to five degrees in federal, provincial and some commercial buildings, and reducing home termperaturs by about three degrees.

In the U.S., President Nixon will ask Congress to suspend temporarily all U.S. clean-air standards as part of a series of steps to meet the growing energy shortage, Representative John Rhodes (Rep — Ariz.), said today.

Nixon is expected to outline his proposals in a broadcast speech later today.

In Europe, the West German government today asked for sweeping decree powers to control all energy resources in the event of an expected oil shortage, including the right to limit the use of motor vehicles, and the Belgian governmenbt requisitioned all stocks of fuel oil held in Belgium as part of a series of actions to meet the threat of oil shorttages.

The measures make it obligatory for refineries and distributors to inform the government regularly about the levels of their stocks and to sell whatever they hold.

section, however, and urged the minister to make them uniform. He cited, for example, political beliefs, which are mentioned in the section on employment but not in discrimination in public facilities.

King argued that the spirit of the act was against all forms of discrimination and that the human rights commission will adjudicate on individual cases.

The main debate came over an amendment by Pat Jordan (SC-North Okanagan) that would require boards of inquiry into cases of discrimination to make reasons for their decisions available in writing.

Garde Gardom (L-Vancouver-Point Grey) called the amendment an assurance of natural justice and said since the same protection is allowed in hearings under the new B.C. labor code the minister should accept the amendment.

Gordon and Jordan said the published reasons would prevent frivolous complaints being made to the human rights commission.

King argued that the written reasons might prevent some people from willingly testifying before the boards but promised, after the amendment was defeated on a formal vote, to consider the suggestion and perhaps make amendments to the act during the spring session.

A few new minimum temperature records for November 7 were established along the north coast and in the Cariboo overnight. Prince Rupert with a reading of 15 eclipsed the previous mark of 20 set in 1924. Terrace recorded 17, Quesnel 5 and Williams Lake airport 6 degrees. Skies remained clear over the northern mainland and most of the central interior overnight. Elsewhere in B.C. it was generally cloudy with snowflurries inland and showers of rain or wet snow along the south coast.

Arctic air which still covers the north coast and the Cariboo and central interior will retreat slowly northward during the next 48 hours. Snowflurries will mark the change to milder air in the interior. Cool unsettled weather will be general over the south coast.

How Montreal looked at 8:30 this morning

Montreal Jammed As Buses Idled

MONTREAL (CP) — Downtown streets began to return to normal at about 9:30 today as police untangled the morning traffic jams resulting from a walkout by the city's 3,200 bus drivers and subway operators.

The walkout, described as a study session, began at midnight Tuesday night and shut down the city's 150 bus routes and three main subway lines.

The system usually handles about half a million people a day. The population of greater Montreal is 2.7 million.

Virtually all major routes into downtown Montreal were jammed solid from about 7:45 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. as workbound commuters turned to cars and taxis for transport in 27-degree weather.

On some downtown streets, cars were parked four abreast as drivers abandoned them in stalled traffic and elected to walk the last blocks to work.

Most taxi companies stopped taking calls shortly after 8 when switchboards turned "solid red" with incoming appeals for service.

On the street, Montrealers tended to shrug off the shutdown as a minor annoyance.

"At least it has got me walking for a change," one middle-age man said.

Police said there were only a few minor accidents despite the traffic jams.

Saanich Studies Swan Lake Use

Nature students could go by canoe through Saanich's semi-urban area to Swan Lake under one of the proposals for a nature centre studied by Saanich council Tuesday.

The draft plan for the 175-acre centre in the Swam Lake-Christmas Hill area had been reviewed by council in closed session.

The plan proposes co-operation by the municipality, the provincial government and public and private agencies in establishing the centre, designed to create an "ecological conscience" in young and old alike.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said today he hoped the 1974 council would act on the report, either in its present form or with refinements.

"The aim of the centre is to provide more than an esthetic, interesting outdoor experience for the general public or, in the case of teachers and school children, to provide more than an extra classroom for specialized study," the report states. "Visitors who reside in urban areas must not come away from the centre with the impression that what they see, hear and feel is unique or utterly foreign to their range of possible experiences.

"Rather they should be motivated to improve their environment through increased knowledge and understanding of it, and to respond to environmental problems in a positive meaningful way."

One imaginative proposal is for visitors to be able to reach the centre by canoe, using Swan Lake Creek and the Colquitz River system, now being improved by the municipality. Classes by canoe on a "water trail" are another possibility.

An area will be set aside for use by University of Victoria researchers.

Other suggestions in the report include establishment of a weather station, an observation tower, teaching shelters and observation blinds from behind which birds can be viewed and photographed.

A large barn and other buildings, now owned by Saanich, could be used for a children's farm unit for instruction in animal husbandry.

Forest management techniques could be learned on a three or four acre area, on which it is suggested Christmas trees could be grown.

The report suggests that consideration be given to the establishment of an allotment garden area for use by apartment dwellers and others.

Camp counsellor training would also be provided.

Land acquisition is designed to link the "two distinctly different ecological areas of the Swan Lake basin (south of McKenzie) and Christmas Hill (north of McKenzie) by a thin adjoining strip of land," the report states.

Saanich and other agencies have been studying the project, on and off, for 13 years. Both areas are rich in bird and plant life.

Saanich has, so far, bought 54 acres at a cost of $230,000. A 1965 referendum approved purchase of 30 acres of this at a cost of $100,000.

Plans call for Saanich, the Greater Victoria school district, the provincial government's greenbelt fund, the National Second Century Fund of B.C., Nature Conservancy of Canada and other agencies to co-operate in buying some 80 acres for $567,000 "at an early date."

The plan suggests that access to the centre could be along Saanich Road, north of Ralph Street, or off either Douglas or Quadra along Rogers Avenue.

Once cars have been parked, travel in the area will be by foot trail, a suggestion being that some trails be hard surfaced for use by the handicapped.

The draft plan, which could be revised slightly before final presentation, is the result of many discussions between Saanich, the Nature Conservancy of Canada, the National Second Century Fund and the provincial government during 1972.

MAN WITH A WINDFALL TRACED TO CHICAGO

OAKVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — Police said today they have traced to Chicago the movements of a young American who allegedly took advantage of an error on a $200 bank draft to collect nearly $200,000 in cash and travellers cheques.

Insp. Edward Heath, in charge of the police investigation into the case, said police learned 24-year-old James Garrett flew Oct. 29 from Montreal to Chicago.

He said Chicago police were alerted Tuesday and were making their own investigations.

Garrett, who served two hitches as a helicopter engineer in the Vietnam war, is known to have converted part of an erroneous bank draft into $100,000 in travellers' cheques Oct. 29 in a Montreal bank. Earlier, police said, the young man received $99,000 in cash from a Toronto bank on the same bank note.

Police said Garrett's windfall came after he telephoned his mother in Lynchburg, Va., and asked her to telegraph him $200.

Through an error in the New York Branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, zeroes were added to the figure and Garrett was informed Oct. 26 by the bank's Oakville branch that he had a $200,000 bank draft waiting for him, police said.

Garrett at the time was working for a car dealership firm.

A Pale Shadow of Itself

Any bill which attempts to regulate business in a free enterprise society is bound to run into trouble. And when the federal government introduced its first version of the Competitions Act in 1971 the howl could be heard across the land. Business objected to a board that would judge mergers and monopoly practices. The old bill also had some stringent regulations regarding inside trading.

As a result of these and other objections the Competitions Act died on the order paper last year and its sponsor Ron Basford was shifted from the consumer to the housing portfolio. Now the government has revived sections of the old act as amendments to the Combines Investigation Act. New clauses contain stronger penalties for false and misleading advertising, there are double pricing restrictions, and pyramid selling is forbidden. These are areas that have already been stringently legislated in British Columbia, Alberta and Ontario.

But the salient sections of the original Competitions Act, dealing with mergers and monopolies, have been dropped for the time being, says Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray. The minister speaks vaguely of ntroducing these sections sometime in the next 12 months. Perhaps this technique of gradual legislation — like the man who lifted the calf each day until it was a full grown bull — will result in fewer groans from those people who think the current bill is too strong or too weak. But there is no doubt that the new amendments are a pale shadow of the original Competitions Act.

Nor should it be forgotten that the original bill was prompted by an interim report of the Economic Council of Canada which found the service sector of the economy guilty of anti-competitive practices detrimental to the public interest. That was four years ago, and nothing has changed except the bill aimed at correcting those anti-competitive practices.

"... all we need now is a willing target ..."

Consensus on a Canadian Crisis

While the provincial government is often criticized for its legislation impinging on the domain of private enterprise, the federal Liberal government is usually not far behind. When the Barrett government announced its intention to increase the price of natural gas to "competitive levels," it was only a week later that the federal government announced it was considering the same move for the scarce resource.

To the chargin of the Social Credit opposition the provincial government has also announced its intention to hinder, if not stop, land speculation. Now, no less than the president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is saying that land speculation is a luxury Canadians can no longer afford." CMHC President Bill Teron is a former developer of vast apartment complexes in Ontario and Quebec and as good a Liberal as can be found in the Ottawa Valley these days.

But Mr. Teron, along with the federal government, is worried. Without giving specific details he told a Toronto audience last week that the government will enter the land business in a massive way to stabilize inflationary price increases and put speculators out of business. It is also interesting that he is first senior federal official to term Canada's housing crisis critical.

Government projections indicate that by the year 2000 Canadian urban populations will almost double. Most of the growth will be concentrated in 19 major cities. And, the projections say, this expansion will require the acquisition of 200,000 acres for residential development in these centres. Other urban land usues, including parks and green belts, may increase the acreage required to half a million.

With single dwelling homes now virtually the preserve of the well-to-do unless they were purchased years ago — governments are waking up to what is fast becoming a crisis. When political parties with such disparate philosophies as the provincial NDP and the federal Liberals come up with similar solutions to the problem, it must not only be well defined but acute. The public, which worries about the roof over its head, will hope that the solutions can be implemented in less time than it took all levels of government to recognize the looming problem.

The Deepfried Instant Food Syndrome

It has taken $2 million in taxpayers' money to find out that many Canadians are overweight, eat too much food of poor nutritional value, and as a result suffer from iron anemia and other maladies relating to poor diet. The national nutritioinal survey tabled in the House of Commons Monday says there are even some Canadians who are malnourished, and the study did not consider Indians or Eskimos who tend to be on a lower economic scale than the rest of the population.

But the irony stems from the fact that our bad eating habits are more the result of laziness than privation. Affluent children puff up on all manner of confections, as the wrappers on sidewalks and lawns adjacent to any school ground attest. Their elders rush out and buy some deep-fried concoction at an instant-food franchise rather than construct a simple ham sandwich with whole wheat bread.

And now that the government knows, what will it do? Ban the slick television ads that continually bombard us with the joys of instant everything? Not likely. It may force manufacturers to inject a few more vitamins and nutrients into their instant, empty and processed foods. Somehow, malnutrition because of laziness suggests an awful decadence.

FRANK RUTTER

An Emergency U.S. Election?

WASHINGTON — One of the most intriguing suggestions floating on the scummy tide of political scandal here is that there should be another presidential election held in 1974.

The idea would seem quite sensible in Canada, or Britian, whose parliamentary systems of government allow for confidence votes and changes of government in mid-term, and where precedent is well established for the resignation of a government or its leader.

It is, however, entirely without practical precedent in the U.S. where there is a fixed term of office for governments and presidents and it's just too bad if the country decided it has made a mistake.

It's almost incredible that the country could have made a mistake in giving Richard Nixon a landslide victory on Nov. 8, 1972, with 60 per cent of the votes cast. However, upon inspection, that landslide does not represent a majority of the electorate.

Nixon's Share

The U.S. Census Bureau, which whiles away its hours poring over statistics, says that 63 per cent of the eligible electorate actually voted. So Nixon's share of the vote, in terms of the whole electorate, was actually about 47 per cent.

Figures can be misleading, because this 47 per cent, spread over the whole country, still gave Nixon the edge over George McGovern in every state except Massachusetts (where motorists now sport bumper stickers reading "Nixon 49, U.S. one").

But Nixon's consistently diminishing approval in the Gallup and other polls suggests that it would be difficult if not impossible for him to win an election again. The latest Gallup poll shows only 27 per cent approve of the way the president is handling his job.

The idea of holding another election has been advocated by the mayor of Boston, Kevin White, who dug back into constitutional history to find what appears to be at least a theoretical precedent.

The succession Act of 1792, White found, provided for a popular election should the offices of both president and vice-president fall vacant. This provision was dropped when the act was changed in 1886, but the new legislation did require the Congress to meet within 20 days of a double vacancy occurring which White interprets as "facilitating the discussion of other options." When a new Presidential Succession Act was passed in 1947, it just ignored the whole question.

But White believes that Congress is entitled to act upon the intention of the original act and could pass legislation restoring the provision for a special election.

"An untainted and open election would help to heal the nation by reaffirming the very process which was compromised and violated by Watergate," White has written.

MAYOR KEVIN WHITE
... dug into history

It sounds too good to be true. The first requirement, of course, would be for Nixon to resign.

Despite the rising clamor for that event, the prospect remains highly doubtful. One can imagine Nixon doing almost anything else, but resigning would be the very last resort.

However, the pressure is intensifying, and the president is losing control over congressional allies. Massachusetts Republican Senator Edward Brooke was the first to cross the line in calling for Nixon's resignation and other members of Congress are wavering.

The attack in the news media is being led this week by Time magazine, in its first-ever editorial, and the New York Times (the Washington Post was unable to deliver its Sunday punch along similar lines because of a labor dispute).

Things have not yet reached this state, but the conservative columnist William F. Buckley was probably accurate in surmising that Nixon would resign if urged to do so by a group of leading Republications headed by Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona. Goldwater himself says he doesn't think anyone should do the urging, but his remark that he would be the "last person" to do so can be interpreted broadly; it is possible to imagine him being the last person in the case and his word the clincher.

No doubt in many minds the prospect of a special election is attractive. But who would run in such an election? It is possible to imagine Nixon seeking a vindication by running again, but if he did would it be fairer for him to run against McGovern, or a new Democratic candidate?

Fierce Contest

A contest for the candidacy, on either side, would probably be fierce, expensive, and perhaps rather an unnecessary exercise. But only by Nixon running again would an election have any real validity in the context of the present leadership crisis.

Nixon could argue, with considerable justification, that he has been mandated by law to serve for four years. It might be a different matter if a rerun election were required because there had been proof that the 1972 contest was fraudulent. Despite all the revelations and allegations about the conduct of '72, this has not yet been proved. The question is more a moral one.

If Nixon thinks he has done nothing to disqualify his 1972 mandate or, even if he does think so, will not admit it, then his resignation remains remote.

The alternatives then are for Congress to impeach him, or for another three years of conflict and crisis in which Congress could play the pivotal role in leadership of the nation's affairs.

WILLIAM R. FRYE

New Hope for UN Initiative

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — A new fact emerged on the world scene this past week, potentially of some considerable importance. After more than 10 years of intense, all-out opposition to veto-free UN peace-keeping, the Soviet Union now is supporting creation of a relatively free-wheeling UN peace army. The Kremlin may even help pay for it.

This is not, of course, a case of the Russians suddenly getting religion. There are special reasons for them to want a UN force in the Middle East.

Moreover, the degree of control which they will be able to exercise over the force is ambiguous — deliberately so. And they have always been willing to let the UN acquire peace-keeping power if they could control its use.

UN 'Teeth'

Still, when all the qualifications have been stated, it remains a remarkable fact that the country which for the past decade has persistently sabotaged "teeth" for the UN is now playing the role of dentist. There are two overriding reasons for the turnabout.

Egypt needs the new force. It is a buffer between Israel and the Egyptian III Corps. Withdraw the UN, and Israel might crush some of the best elements of the Egyptian Army.

And the new UNEF (UN Emergency Force) has served a direct Soviet interest. At the peak of the fighting, the Kremlin threatened to send its own men to rescue the Egyptians. This threat produced a world-wide American "precautionary alert," endangering — at the very least — the Soviet-American detente Moscow has cultivated.

The Kremlin needed a face-saving way to back down. The UN force provided one. It was a credible alternative form of intervention.

This is what UN supporters have been saying for years: that the world organization could serve great-power interests as well as those of small and middle powers, in circumstances where a superpower did not wish to do a job itself.

Now the Soviet Union appears to have discovered the validity of this theory.

How long the Russians will stay converted is another question. Twice before, they have supported UN peace armies at the time of their creation, only to back away when the immediate crisis subsided or the Kremlin's view of its interests changed.

KURT WALDHEIM
... less 'reliable'?

But the probability of a change this time is limited by several new facts;

● The steam has gone out of Soviet-American differences over control of UN armies. The United States still wants them run by the Secretary-General, but is glad to have the Security Council exercise an over-all policy-making authority. The "mix" has shifted in Moscow's direction.

This American change, foreshadowed by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger before the Mideast war broke, is traceable in part (though no one says so) to a desire in Washington to preserve U.S. control — the current Secretary-General, Kurt Waldheim, not being considered as "reliable" in all circumstances as his predecessors.

● The Soviet bloc has a prospect of taking part, with its own manpower, in the current UNEF. (Russians are barred, but not other Eastern Europeans.) This has never before been the case; Yugoslavs are the only communists who have ever previously served in a UN army. It makes a difference.

Form of Protection

● Operating through the UN is a form of protection for Moscow from Chinese pressure to take extreme unilateral action. The Chinese taunted the Russians for their backdown from the initial intervention threat. "Why didn't you go ahead?" they asked in effect. "Are you chicken?"

None of this guarantees that the UN force will be allowed to do its work over the long haul. China has veto-power, and the same steps which assure Soviet and American control, also assure Chinese control. Peking has chosen not to sabotage the project because the Arabs badly want it; but this could change.

That, however, is some distance down the road. For the moment, what is interesting and significant is the Soviet reversal. Its result is a chance — temporary or permanent — for the UN to rise from the grave of impotence and paralysis into which it had slipped, or been pushed, in recent years.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Light of the Moon

Once again personnel of the Canadian Forces are being accused of taking work away from "the poor devils who would willingly work for two bucks an hour just to get off welfare". But let's go back a step or two. If those same "poor devils" would accept the work available then it wouldn't be there begging to be picked up by the CF personnel. As for the unions, well, what can one say about those "under-paid individuals". If they really feel they are losing an opportunity to moonlight, by belonging to a union, I can only suggest, (tongue in cheek), they consider the CF as an employer. For if you can't beat them, join them.

Seriously, the dollars earned by the CF personnel who moonlight are being circulated and are therefore paying "union wages" and taxes to keep those "poor devils" on welfare.

And many CF personnel are willing to take a job on short notice, whereas their civilian counterpart would not. In my mind that speaks well for CF personnel and their training. — Ms. S. Orrick, 960 Clent St.

Voter Apathy

Newspaper editorials, prior to elections, frequently remind citizens to vote — "Never mind how you vote — as long as you vote." It must be obvious now that these editorials are not concerned with the quality of candidates and platforms but rather the creation of a semblance of credulity for the winning party, who frequently wins by default.

Much complaining occurs locally over supposed voter's apathy. In some countries voters deliberately refrain from voting, as a positive expression of their disdain for poor choices offered. Why is this negative action, so called apathy, so prevalent in the Saanich Peninsula? How often have we heard, "What good will my vote do?" "What can I do?" Do not the people see the disappearance of lovely roads and their replacement by ugly sign-spattered, black-topped, ribbon development (Colwood) Wall-to-wall suburbia? Streets cluttered with signs (Yates and Douglas)? Highrises bringing New York and Chicago to lovely Victoria, shopping centres, supermarkets — more sterile franchise eating hasheries?

The churches say nothing so the churches are empty. City and municipal councils do nothing or these atrocities could not be committed — so the people don't vote. Yet the municipal elections are far more important than federal elections, for the shape of our city and suburbs affects our life style, our culture and our quality of life.

Fortunately we have been lucky in Victoria with a bold, far-seeing mayor and several humanistic aldermen. We have also been fortunate in Oak Bay, in having four good, intelligent aldermen endowed with wisdom and unperturbed by an angry mayor, who frequently appears to be the leading spokesman for developers, and is very reticent as far as Oak Bay's unique needs are concerned.

The answer to apathy: Let candidates for office stand up and loudly, clearly and boldly state in no uncertain terms their ambitions, if elected. And if their platform is for the protection of the people, our lovely peninsula, our uniqueness and our Canadian culture, and is opposed to a destructive emulation of the giant in the south, the people will respond. And votes will exceed the federal election. — Monte Vanton, 4351 Gordon Head Rd.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 7, 1913

That the citizens of Victoria were being deprived of some $20,000 per year on short weight of butter alone is the opinion of Fair Weights Inspector A. G. Robertson, after an exhaustive canvass of the butter dealers in Victoria. He declares that this has been done through the widespread practice of giving one half to three-quarters of an ounce short weight on every pound of butter sold in some three-fourths of the stores handling butter. That the retailers were not to blame entirely Mr. Robertson adds. He states that sales were made from boxes of half a hundredweight in bulk from which the butter was cut.

A Nation Gets to the Bottom of the Pot

By LEWIS M. SIMONS

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka—Once upon a time, according to a Sinhalese legend, five blind men met along the road and decided to cook supper together. They agreed to put a handful of rice apiece into the pot. But, secretly, each decided to cheat. The result was a pot of boiled water.

Like the blind men who fooled themselves by fooling each other, the 13 million people of this lush Indian Ocean island have just come to realize that they've been cheating the pot too long—taking without putting in—and there's nothing left.

The truth struck them with stunning impact this month when Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike went back on a campaign promise and withdrew three-fourths of their free rice dole, began rationing flour, cut the sugar ration and sharply increased the prices of other basic food, including bread.

Serendipity Lost

Suddenly, people who hadn't given a thought to how their government was managing to pay for the costly imports needed to subsidize their diets and one of the most elaborate social welfare programs in Asia learned that the days of unsought-after delights in the homeland of serendipity were drawing to a close.

In the capital city of Colombo and in hundreds of towns and villages, people found themselves lining up before dawn outside ration shops and standing there in the steamy sun for hours on end to get their pitifully small weekly quota. Anyone with access to a patch of land was answering Mrs. Bandaranaike's appeal to plant sweet potatoes, yams and other starchy substitutes for rice.

Even the island's luxury hotels, vital to the foreign exchange-starved treasury, have stapled little notices to the corners of their menus advising guests that rice is not available on Tuesdays and Fridays, but bread—one slice—may be had if you ask for it.

Sniffing blood, Mrs. Bandaranaike's political opponents have launched a campaign of civil disobedience which the government, so far, has managed to squelch.

Government leaders, from the prime minister down, make daily appeals through the controlled press for people to tighten their belts. But on city bread lines, in coastal fishing villages and on the manicured slopes of tea estates, the grumbled response is the same: "We are hungry."

Sri Lanka, which changed its name just a year ago from Ceylon to its own favorite Sinhalese title meaning "the resplendent land," is in deep trouble. The prime minister's purpose in all but eliminating food handouts—a move many Ceylonese consider tantamount to political suicide—is to end the mammoth cash drain for food imports and, simply, save the country from bankruptcy.

But her decision was not a brave one. No courage was required. There was no choice but to cut back on the country's cradle-to-grave welfare program or watch the economy collapse.

At the moment, the treasury holds some $40 million in foreign exchange, enough to buy just one month's worth of the country's needs abroad. Even by standards of other underdeveloped countries, such a slender balance is treacherously close to the point of no return.

Had the rice and flour ration continued at the rate of four pounds a week, the country's entire stock as well as food already in the pipeline from abroad would have been wiped out by the end of December. By cutting the rice dole to one pound a week and limiting flour to one pound weekly sold at the government's cost price, supplies are expected to last until next March, just before the main rice crop is to be harvested. In the interim, there will be hunger.

"Anyone who says people are starving is not honest, it is not true," insisted plantation minister Dr. Colvin de Silva, rejecting opposition claims of starvation on remote tea estates. "But," de Silva admitted hesitantly, noting that the ration cut only began on Oct. 1, "there are areas of considerable insufficiency and hardships will increase with time."

What has brought Sri Lanka to this impasse? How can a land described by one foreign resident as "almost indecently fertile" not produce enough to feed its people?

Rainfall Down

In part, two years of poor rainfall in widespread parts of the island affected the domestic rice crop. At the same time, rocketing food prices on world markets prevented the government from filling its larder with imports—an expensive habit the islanders have grown used to.

But the basic explanation for Sri Lanka's sorry state is that succeeding governments have made a political football out of food and welfare, kicking the ball harder and harder, higher and higher, until they lost control.

"In our country," observed a disgruntled Colombo businessman, "food has always been politics and politics is food."

In competition for votes, the two major parties — Mrs. Bandaranaike's Sri Lanka Freedom Party and the opposition United National Party — have made rash promises to the highly literate and politicized electorate when they were out of office. Then, after winning election on the strength of these promises, they had to spend ever-increasing amounts, particularly on imported rice and wheat flour, to keep their word. In turn, the farmers let their production fall, lulled into false security by the site's largesse.

Workmen push cart of desperately short rice down Colombo street

Claiming that the present government was more interested in socialism than welfarism, de Silva, said, "A welfare state has been the aim of every government before this one. It is not our aim. It has led the masses to demand more, which in turn led governments to borrow more to meet their demands. And it finally caught up with us — although the opposition started it."

De Silva, 66, is a brilliant, aggressive lawyer who holds a Ph.D. from Oxford's King College and is a longtime Trotskyite socialist. During a recent interview, he refused to predict what the government's plans were as regards restoring the rice ration, but suggested it planned to hold back as long as it could.

Hunched over a cluttered desk in his home study, lined with law books on padlocked shelves, the husky, gray-haired de Silva said: "We intend to stop all rice imports. We intend to make the country self-sufficient in rice. Everything else will be governed by that.

"We're aiming for a true socialist society and welfareism is not a part of that."

De Silva's hint that welfarism may be on the way out probably reflects a division in thinking within the cabinet, rather than a change in government policy so far. De Silva is a close associate of Finance Minister Martin Perera, perhaps the most conservative economist in the country.

Nevertheless, while the potential of permanent reduction is explosive, besides cutting the ration the government has already had to limit other welfare benefits. Medicine, which was completely free, must now be paid for. Public transportation remains subsidized and education through the university level is still free but, because there isn't enough food available for campus dining halls, the universities have been closed.

When the UNP last was in office, prior to the 1970 elections, they eliminated imports of potatoes and called on Ceylonese farmers to step up their production, Mrs. Bandaranaike's party fell on the goverment and accused it of trying to starve the people. But the country quickly became self-sufficient in potatoes.

Promises Broken

Now the shoe is on the other foot. At the head of a tripartite United Front Mrs. Bandaranaike swept to victory in 1970 on a promise to double the weekly rice ration. In a May Day demonstration, just before the elections her party workers marched through Colombo's Habby Street shouting "Our mother is on the way. The two measures of rice will be given." The campaign won her an unprecedented majority of 122 seats in the 157-member parliament.

But the 57-year-old widowed leader, who became the world's first woman prime minister when she first succeeded her slain husband, Solomon, in 1960, is no longer able to keep her word. She is trying to kick farmers into action and force the country into self-sufficiency in rice, the staple of Ceylonese diets, by the end of next year. And this time it is the UNP which is crying "foul."

"This is not simply an agricultural problem," argued UNP head Junius Richard Jayawardene. "It is a blatant example of financial mismanagement. This government has destroyed the agricultural base we set up — just because it was ours — and they've run foreign exchange reserves down to nothing."

As far as he goes, Jayawardene is right, but to put the blame entirely on Mrs. Bandaranaike, or on any one Ceylonese government, is unfair and inaccurate.

The fact is that Sri Lanka's three major exports, tea, rubber and coconuts, are in permanent, long-term decline worldwide. "Tea needs sympathy and rubber has lost its bounce," is a rueful one-liner heard in Colombo.

In the last few months, tea (which accounts for 60 per cent of the island's export earnings) and rubber prices have improved slightly, but the gain is too recent to matter yet.

And, although exports of semi-precious gems have increased during the last year and show promise for the future, Sri Lanka's over-all sales abroad have stagnated at about $300 million a year. Against this, imports in food alone come close to $200 million. The foreign debt is about $240 million and the government borrows to pay this off. This leaves precious little for development of any kind.

Jayawardene, who was minister of state under the late president Dudley Senanayake, is Sri Lanka's rightist leader and is decidedly pro-American. Some of his pro-Soviet detractors have dubbed him "Yankee Dickey."

The 67-year-old lawyer, who in 1950 was a co-author of the Colombo Plan for aid to developing Asian nations, maintains that food is available in world markets at a price. The government insists that neither money not love can wring rice or wheat out of traditional surplus producers.

U.S. No Help

The United States, which professes to no overriding interest in Sri Lanka beyond not wanting to see another major power dominate the island, told the government last spring that it would provide $15 to $18 million worth of wheat flour under food-for-peace legislation — subject to availability and congressional approval.

The contribution still has not been made and Americans in Colombo consider the prospects bleak.

China, which has a rice-for-rubber barter deal with Sri Lanka, has promised a 40,000-ton advance on next year's delivery. This is expected to patch up the highly critical January-April gap.

The World Bank refuses to meet the government's request for $24 million in stand-by credits unless Mrs. Bandaranaike devalues the rupee. Partly owing to the extreme leftist influence of her son and daughter and son-in-law, she has refused.

Politics in Sri Lanka has always been a family affair. In 25 years of independence, two families — the Bandaranaikes and the Senanaykes — have completely dominated the country's leadership.

Politics Bitter

With the ruling class sharply limited to this privileged, mainly British-educated clique, political arguments are often bitter and memories are long. Last week, Mrs. Bandaranaike dredged up the record of a parliamentary debate which took place five years ago and had the full text run on the front page of one of the government-controlled papers to prove that the UNP had changed its colors on the question of rationing.

Although she enjoys unprecedented power in parliament, Mrs. Bandaranaike is understandably nervous about her political future these days. In a recent by-election in Colombo's poverty-stricken northern district, which took place just after the ration cut, voters turned overwhelmingly to the opposition.

The twin crises in food and foreign exchange are not taking place in isolation. Unemployment, particularly among educated young people, is climbing toward one million. Two-and-a-half years ago, thousands of these disillusioned youths staged an insurgency which doused the island in blood before the army put it down. The country has still not recovered from the shock.

Another disgruntled group, the Tamils who originated in south India, are taking advantage of the crisis atmosphere to renew a civil disobedience campaign for equal rights, especially official status for their own language among the Sinhala-speaking indigenous majority.

Mrs. Bandaranaike illustrated her insecurity this summer when she took over the country's leading newspapers. The move effectively emasculated the second largest publisher, the Times of Ceylon, Ltd., as any kind of voice for the opposition. Now the government appears to be trying to squeeze out this publisher, too, by cutting off its supply of newsprint.

The government most recently displayed its unease when it first approved and then banned a UNP "prayer meeting" last week. Armed, steel-helmeted troops blocked off key approaches to Galle Face Green, a broad seaside promenade flanked by two luxury hotels, where the meeting was to have been held.

The demonstrators — there may have been 50,000 in all — simply strolled up to the barbed wire barricades and sat down in the roads. They half-heartedly and half-jokingly raised a few chants: "We are starving. Give us bread. Give us butter. Give us margarine." Their leader, Jayawardene, sat on a wall outside a police station and smiled. Then it rained and everyone went home.

Sri Lanka is like that. It is a gentle, lovely land. Its people have never been hardened by real privation. Violence, although it has come at times and with shocking severity, is rare. The police, in their blue knee socks, khaki shorts and floppy bush hats, carry no weapons and look more like boy scouts than lawmen.

BANDARANAIKE
. . . handouts ended

Except for an arid section in the northeast, occupied mainly by Tamils, the color of Sri Lanka is green: the rich bottle green of tea estates, the emerald green of the rice paddies, the dozens of other shades of the teeming jungles and the palm-fringed coastline.

"We have everything," observed a young Colombo newspaper reporter, "the land, the water, the manpower — it's all there but we've never been able to get it all together. It's shamful."

At the Wrong End of the Line

By HARRY BRUCE

HALIFAX — You have to know Toronto, and then get out of it, to discover the things about the city's relationship to the rest of the country that cause the million tiny, contemporary, personal resentments which really do back up all those economic and historical reasons why so much of Canada dislikes the place.

This is because, in Toronto, there's a great, bland, unshakeable innocence of all this hinterland resentment. It never occurs to the high-school golden boy that some runty kid in Grade 9 detests him and, even if it did, the reasons for the runt's hatred would be forever incomprehensible.

It came home to me more than two years after I'd moved away from Toronto. I was talking by phone to a newspaperman up there when he said something that gave me, for the first time in my life, a faint taste of anti-Toronto heartburn.

I had confessed, while watching the seagulls glide over the bay beyond my eastern window, that I knew nothing about an impending strike on his newspaper, and then he said it: "Oh yeah, I forgot. You're so out of touch down there, aren't you?".

He did not mean the remark as some flip regional jibe. He said it blithely, guilelessly, affectionately, and with all the confidence of someone who knows that, because he is in Toronto, he is at the very centre of modern significance.

A trivial thing to remember, sure. But multiply it by the millions of other Canadians who, at one time or another, have had to stomach Toronto's assumption that every time you are on the phone to Toronto you are somehow on the wrong end of the line. You will then begin to understand why dislike for Hogtown is as strong a part of the national character as suspicion of Americans.

Toronto wraps her own people in a huge, careering ball of energy, ambition, desire, diversion and images of their own excellence. A cloud of self-interest insulates the ball and prevents many Torontonians from ever grasping the fact that, all across Canada, there are other spheres in which millions of other Canadians are very much in touch with everything that's important to them.

I edited publications with national pretensions in Toronto myself and, for all I know, I tossed off the "You're-so-out-of-touch" bit a dozen times to a dozen writers in a dozen Halifaxes or Saskatoons or Monctons, never once thinking that my amiable assumption could possibly have irritated anyone.

On the magazines I worked for we got a lot of mail from the sticks telling us we were just a bunch of slick, citified, effete Toronto boozers who knew sweet boo-all about the country at large. Even so, I was always sure that nobody but the reddest-necked of red-necked kooks could possibly fail to see the sincere and expensive efforts we were making to gather stories from all over the country.

Sure, 90 per cent of our staff lived in Toronto, but they have to live somewhere, don't they? And what writer in his right mind would give up Toronto for, say, Edmonton? We'd just send one of Toronto's slicker and more citified boozers out there for a few days to round up the real poop on the Manning government, and that would settle Alberta's hash for a while.

I was well over 30 before I saw Winnipeg or Vancouver. I'd worked for Toronto-based "national" publications for several years before I ever got west of Hamilton, Ontario. And then, when I did go away for a while, I could hardly wait to get home to tell Toronto people what hilarious folk a Toronto boy could find in Elderberry Junction, Scratch-Arse Tickle, or wherever.

Remembering all this, it puzzled me that months after my chat with the Toronto editor his remark still griped me a bit. What did he know about, say, the price of cod-fish in Terence Bay? What did anyone in that self-satisfied, self-absorbed, self-mesmerized city know about racial strife in Antigonish? Who, really, was out of touch? And with what? Who in hell was Toronto to define for Halifax the things with which it was important to be in touch?

And one convival night at our coastal cottage I poured another rum for an old friend, a fierce and native son of the Nova Scotian soil, and I told him about all this, and he said: "My God, Harry. You're becoming a Maritimer."

Bottom of the Peanut Bowl . . .

The Sun

As a result of city medical health officer Gerry Bonham and his latest campaign, the large bowls of peanuts that used to appear on tables in cocktail bars and beer parlors may soon join the outhouse as a relic of our less fastidious past. Health department inspectors have begun to cast a jaundiced eye on the way that peanut bowls are handled. Pretzels are still okay, however. The difference is in the way that they are eaten, as compared to peanuts. You think I'm kidding!

It's a general rule, as outlined by Amy Vanderbilt, that pretzel eaters usually take one pretzel at a time. The pretzel is held between the thumb and forefinger and popped — not shoved — into the mouth. The fingers seldom touch the mouth. They seldom leave the hand, either. But peanut munching is a different art. The eater usually grabs a handful of peanuts and eats them out of the palm of the hand. If no one is looking, he often follows up by licking the salt off his fingers. (Most pubs use salted peanuts because they make the customers thirsty.) Then the spittle-dripping pinkies are plunged back in the bowl, because whoever heard of anyone who could kick the peanut habit once he was hooked.

Dr. Bonham hasn't made a firm rule yet, but his inspectors have mildly suggested individual plastic-wrapped packs of peanuts for customers, rather than the communal bowl to serve four people at once.

When I first heard rumors that Dr. Bonham, the scourge of the Chinese pork butcher shops, was cracking down on goobers, I figured he was off his nut. But a cursory investigation of the situation indicates that there's more sense in this move than first appears evident.

In theory, when one group of customers leaves, the peanut bowl should be taken out and emptied, washed and refilled. But, in practice, the bowls are usually removed from sight, refilled and returned to the table. Any peanuts left from the previous "round" stay in the bottom. It's conceivable that the same bottom layer of peanuts could be served to several dozen guests in succession.

Don't look for an outcry from the bar and pub operators. Peanuts have made a bigger percentage price rise in the last year than beefsteak. A big hotel can spend anywhere from $200 to $300 a week on peanuts, which isn't exactly peanuts over the course of a year. It's an expense they'll be happy to eliminate.

Pretzels are still on the approved list, but remember — eat daintily!

A $374M Cash Shot for West

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — An injection of $374 million dollars into the western economy this fall will flow from the announcement made Tuesday in the Commons by Justice Minister Otto Lang, who reports to Parliament for the Wheat Board.

He announced the final payments for wheat, oats and barley for the 1972-73 producer delivieres. The board will start mailing over 352,000 cheques to Prairie farmers this week.

The Prairie boom will give another push to the expanding Canadian economy as the cheques go out to the producers over the next three or four weeks.

The 1972-73 average final payment on wheat will be 47.45 cents a bushel. On barley it is 51.63 cents a bushel. On oats it will be 40.80 cents a bushel.

The total payment each producer receives depends on the quantities and grades of grain delivered during the crop year. Final payment cheques are mailed separately for wheat, barley and oats. With the cheques the board will enclose a pamphlet giving producers a break down on the board's 1972-73 pool accounts.

"These final payments coupled with the higher initial prices received at country elevators — will result in the highest cash return to producers on grain sales in over a quarter of a century," Lang said.

"All of this is contribution to a dramatic overall improvement in the income position of Prairie farmers which I believe is justly deserving to them," the minister added.

The total realized price on grain during 12-73 average $2.25 a bushel for wheat; $1.52 for barley and $1.10 a bushel for oats.

Marketing charges covering freight, handling, carrying costs and the board's administrative costs are deducted from these totals to give producers their net return.

"These prices are the best we've seen for some time, and the prospects for total grain sale returns in the calender year 1974 are much better again," said Lang.

The more than $300 million to go out to the farmers is thee het amount still owing to producers from the sale of their grain by the board in Canadian and overseas markets.

WE 'WON SOME, LOST SOME' AT SEA PARLEY, SAYS DAVIS

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada "won some and lost some" at the recent international conference on the elimination of pollution from ships, Environment Minister Jack Davis said Tuesday.

Reporting to the Commons on the London conference, Davis said Canada was unable to get approval for special pollution prevention measures in ecologically sensitive areas such as the Arctic.

However, the delegation successfully resisted an attempt to limit the right of anti-pollution enforcement of a coastal state to its territorial sea.

Davis said the latest agreement allows coastal states to act against pollution from ships within their jurisdiction wihout defining the area of jurisdiction.

Canada was not successful in gaining adoption for "port state enforcement" which would have allowed contracting states to prosecute in their ports any violators of the anti-pollution agreement "regardless of where the offence took place and for up to three years after it occurred."

Davis said violations now can be dealt with only by the country in which the ship is registered if they occur outside the waters of a coastal state.

The conference extended the definition of a pollutant, as covered in earlier agreements, to include toxic and suffocating substances as well as oil. It also made stipulations on the construction of tankers to reduce spills in the event of an accident.

Opposition spokesmen said Canada should take more unilateral action to protect its coasts.

John Fraser (PC—Vancouver) said the opportunity to deal with pollution offshore is of little meaning when this country seems incapable of dealing "with minor spills in our own harbors."

Nurse Study Protests

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President C. M. Drury announced Tuesday a special study of federal nursing positions that would examine motivation and maintenance of efficient hospital care by the 2,200 federal nurses.

But a union spokesman said the government might just be using this announcement to keep angry nurses quiet.

"Nobody believes it will come to anything," Ken Phythian, industrial relations co-ordinator of the Professional Institute of the Public Service, said.

The proposed study was announced after Drury met recently with a delegation of nurses displeased with a binding arbitration award.

The announcement comes slightly more than two weeks after hundreds of the nurses booked off sick across the country to protest the award which they said left their wages an average of $300 to $500 a year behind those paid to provincially-employed counterparts.

The nurses, who work for veterans' affairs, defence, health and the solicitor-general's departments, returned to their jobs after brief absences and provided emergency services where needed.

They called upon Drury to reopen negotiations in spite of the arbitral award, but Phythian said that was denied.

On Tuesday, Drury said the study will be conducted jointly by the four departments to review the work environment, relations between employees and management and professional development of nurses.

The employees would be able to express their views, he added.

Results from the report would be known by early summer, he said.

There would also be a salary survey in 1974 on nurses' pay in provincial jurisdictions so up-to-date pay data will be available to the parties when bargaining for a new contract begins a year from now, the government release said.

Phythian noted that the minister did not say who will do the study and whether it will achieve anything.

"These are all vague statements. There are no promises. "This is just an attempt to keep them nurses quiet," Phythian said.

Bear Pact Delay Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Inuit Tapirisat of Canada, the national Eskimo brotherhood, called on the government Tuesday to postpone signing a five-country agreement to protect the endangered polar bear.

The agreement, in final drafting stage, is expected to be signed later this month in Norway by representatives of Canada, Norway, Denmark, the Soviet Union and the United States.

"Inuit people strongly object to the fact that . . . we have not been consulted on a matter which deeply affects the future of our culture and traditional hunting rights," the association said.

The agreement is expected to include co-operative management techniques to limit hunting. The five countries have agreed to stop hunting the polar bear on Arctic ice flows that run beyond territorial limits.

Territorial jurisdiction varies for all countries. Canada claims a 100-mile off-shore limit for Arctic pollution control.

The brotherhood also has called for the abolition of the polar bear sport hunt, but urged fewer restrictions on native hunting.

Our Chile Envoy Backed Army Coup

OTTAWA (CP) — In a confidential cable to Ottawa Sept. 24, Canada's ambassador to Chile wrote that the country had been "on a prolonged political binge" before the elected government of President Salvador Allende was overthrown by the military.

Ambassador Andrew Ross said in the message to the external affairs department that the junta had "assumed the probably thankless task" of sobering Chile up.

The remarks are contained in a series of diplomatic messages sent between the department and the ambassador before and after the Sept. 11 coup d'etat that resulted in Allende's death.

Copies of the dispatches were obtained by MP John Harney (NDP-Toronto Scarborough West) who has urged the recall of Ross.

The government granted recognition to the regime in Chile Sept. 29.

In the Sept. 24 cable — the most recent in Harney's collection— Ross said, the junta was increasing its control over the country, "using methods which are to say the least indelicate."

In a Sept. 20 cable, he called the Allende government "surely one of the most incompetent in recent times"

"Only with the greatest reluctance" did the military decide that the "institutional disintegratin and political madness of recent months had to be arrested by shock treatment."

But political murders that followed were "morally indefensible and proffer horrifying evidence of the depth of hatred created by politicians and pre-coup exesses of both extremes."

In the Sept. 24 cable he attributed book-burning, harrassment of youths and possible political murders to uncontrolled lower levels of the military government.

But after the initial shakedown period, the junta would "not have a particularly conservative complexion."

In an earlier cable sent while Ross was in Buenos Aires Sept. 13, he said that the military offered the only apparent temporary alternative to the Allende government as Chile moved to the verge of anarchy.

And, two days after the coup, he advised the government not to delay recognition unduly.

U.S. BLOOD DANGER EYED

OTTAWA (FP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde Tuesday told a Winnipeg MP the federal government has launched an investigation into possible contamination of imported blood samples.

Lalonde was replying to questions raised by Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) who had originally raised the matter in the Commons Monday while the health minister was absent.

According to McKenzie, there is some concern that blood imported from commmercial laboratories in the U.S.A. and used in Canada for testing purposes is often contaiminated with hepatitis bacteria.

The complaints, also reported by the British medical journal Lancet, centre around U.S. laboratories buying blood from such persons as drug addicts and other down-an-outs in the U.S.

Tuesday, Lalonde told the Commons his department had heard of the situation and was conducting its own investigation. While nothing had been uncovered so far, he said the inquiries would continue.

There have been reports in Canada that in the past few years some 20 lab technicians in this country have contacted hepatitis from contaminated blood and that at least one person, a female student technician in Saskatchewan, may have died from such a cause.

An attempt by McKenzie to get a government screening procedure set up for imported blood samples was rejected by the Commons on a technicality.

Of Corn Flakes And Grits . . .

OTTAWA (CP) — Grace MacInnis (NDP-Vancouver-Kingsway) ticked off the health department Tuesday on grounds of co-operating with a company to sell a cereal "with little or no nutritional value."

In turn, Mrs. MacInnis was ticked off for bringing a box of corn flakes into the Commons.

The House was not a court of law where exhibits can be introduced, said Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Mrs. MacInnis was objecting to the distribution of sports medals, copyrighted by the department, through the corn flakes manufactured by the Kellogg Co. of Canada.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde said there is an agreement between the federal agency Sports Canada and the company to distribute the medals. He was happy so long as they were reaching youth.

As for the nutritional value of corn flakes, "the milk you have with your corn flakes has great nutritional value," he said.

Provincial Voice No Veto On Takeovers: Gillespie

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie received New Democratic Party support Tuesday as he condemned a Progressive Conservative proposal to give the provinces a larger role in screening foreign investment.

Gillespie said in the Commons that the foreign investment review bill would require a review panel to take provincial interests into consideration. But, there would not be direct provincial representation on the board.

"It would seem to me that we have clearly built in a voice for the provinces, but we have not built in a veto," he said to cheers from the NDP benches.

Ed Broadbent (NDP-Oshawa-Whitby) said increasing provincial authority would "totally hamstring the legislation."

They were attacking a Conservative amendment that would give regional interests representation on the panel deciding on proposed foreign investments.

Opposition spokesmen have said they support the bill but want certain changes. The bill is at report stage, the step before final-approval debate.

The bill also would place limits on existing foreign-owned firms attempting to make new investments in unrelated fields.

Conservatives Donald Munro (Esquimalt-Saanich) and Gordon Ritchie (Dauphin) said recent western experience reveals the need for a stronger provincial voice in Ottawa decisions.

Munro pointed to the enery dispute with Alberta and Ritchie said the Manitoba government is unhappy with wheat board policy.

Gillespie said Conservative proposals to strengthen the provincial hand in screening foreign investments would "seriously weaken the bill." The cabinet was the "ultimate decision-making body that reflects the regional interests of this great nation."

Ed Nelson (NDP—Burnaby-Seymour) said national concern on issues such as energy should push regional interests into the background.

He called for a tougher federal position on foreign investment, suggesting that "whether or not we freeze this winter" will be settled by foreign corporations.

Henri Latulippe (SC—Compton) said governments have not done enough to encourage Canadians to invest in their own resources. Heavy foreign investment should be blamed on Canadian inactivity.

Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) said the bill would not ensure effective Canadian control of important fields such as energy.

AIR PACT SEESAW

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is awaiting a reply from Washington to a proposal designed to complete a new air charter agreement with the United States, Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Tuesday.

The proposal attempts to meet U.S. objections to certain Canadian transport commission rules and the division of the "sun spot" charter market to the southern U.S., he said in an interview outside the Commons.

He would not elaborate on the specific suggestions made by Ottawa.

Discussions stalled in Washington last week when American negotiators protested certain Canadian regulations affecting foreign air carriers.

Sources said the negotiators had agreed to a division of Canadian passenger traffic to the U.S. south, Hawaii, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico. The U.S. was given a share ranging between 25 and 40 per cent in different areas.

Canadian airlines now carry almost all passenger traffic bound to the U.S. south from Canada.

Mr. Marchand seemed to be suggesting that the U.S. still is not happy with the division proposed in Washington.

He has said the most important item to government negotiators is the recent agreement on air routes which will be handed out to airlines in the two countries.

The air routes agreement, reached in August, depends on settlement of the charter problems.

Right-to-Strike Critics Fail

Opposition members united against the government Tuesday to oppose again legislation allowing essential services to strike.

They also joined forces again to oppose the government's religious conscience clause, included in the Public Service Labor Relations Act, which passed through committee stage reading in the house.

Both issues proved contentious earlier in the session when the new B.C. labor code which contains similar clauses went through committee stage reading.

Debate on the public service bill, which gives B.C.'s 38,000 civil servants full bargaining rights for the first time, lasted nearly two hours as Liberal leader David Anderson proposed six amendments, which were all defeated.

One amendment would prohibit strikes in the civil service in cases where cabinet decides that the strike "would jeopardize the maintenance of essential services to the public."

In such cases, Anderson suggested, the dispute would be referred to arbitration.

Anderson said cabinet eventually has to order strikers back to work, if essential services are disrupted, and the amendment would allow them to take action before "the public is harmed."

The amendment was defeated in a 36-to-15 official vote with all three opposition parties supporting Anderson.

The Liberal leader also introduced an amendment, similar to ones proposed during debate of the labor code, which would allow employees objecting to union membership on religious grounds to opt out of the union and have the equivalent of union fees donated to a charitable organization.

The government's legislation allows religious objectors to opt out but requires that they still pay equivalent fees to the union.

Anderson said the clause constitutes discrimination, charging that religious objectors will in fact be barred from employment.

That amendment was defeated 36 to 13.

A change proposed by Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay) which would see personnel at the B.C. Institute of Technology excluded from the act, as the teachers there have demanded, was withdrawn after Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall promised that once B.C.I.T. is run independently from the government they can opt out of the government union.

He said that independence would come soon.

Besides a number of more technical amendments, Anderson proposed that employees of the Workman's Compensation Board also be excluded from the act, but withdrew the amendement when informed by Hall that the act already excluded WCB employees.

Hall rejected firmly a Socred amendment which would see the Treasury Board bargain directly with the civil service union. He said "there is no way" a board made up of four cabinet ministers including Premier Barrett could deal directly with the union organization.

Student Funds Left

Only about two-thirds of the provincial government's $20 million allotment for summer employment of students had been spent by late last month, a report tabled Tuesday in the legislature shows.

Premier Barrett tabled the interim report from Health Minister Dennis Cocke, chairman of the cabinet committee on summer employment.

Figures in the report showed that only $13,067,026 of the fund had been spent up to Oct. 23, when the figures were tabulated. The cabinet allocated $19,462,000 for the employment program.

The total number of students hired under the program was put at 9,134. The highways department employed the most, with 3,816. The health department hired 1,867, recreation and conservation department 1,639 and the education department 1,115.

Women in Shootout

BOSTON (AP) — One woman was shot dead, another wounded and a third arrested in connection with the fatal shooting, police said. Killed was Barbara Spagnuolo, 38. A companion, Norma Horner, 30, was shot in the chest and was on the danger list in hospital. Police said they arrested Joan Irene Collins, 30, and charged her with murder. Police said the shootings occurred during a birthday party.

Chile Puts Ring of Steel Around Swedish Embassy

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — The Swedish ambassador to Chile said Tuesday night that Chilean army troops had surrounded him along with a group of political refugees and Swedish embassy staff inside the former Cuban embassy here.

Harald Edelstam told Reuter news agency in a telephone interview his situation was "very poor" and asked reporters to come to the scene.

The ambassador told Reuter in an earlier interview made by telephone from Buenos Aires in neighboring Argentina that he was surrounded along with 15 political refugees and members of the Swedish embassy staff.

Sweden began looking after Cuban interests after the Sept. 11 military coup which overthrew President Salvadore Allende. Chile and Cuba severed relations after the coup.

In asking reporters to go to the Cuban embassy building in southeast Santiago, Edelstam said: "Really, the situation is poor and very sad."

In his interview with the Reuter bureau in Buenos Aires, Edelstam said the circle of troops was the culmination of a series of restrictive measures begun by Chilean authorities last Saturday.

He said the army began taking up positions on roofs and streets surrounding the building Tuesday night. The ambassador said an officer demanded to know whether there were arms in the building but Edelstam said there were none.

Edelstam said there were at least 50 soldiers in the building.

He said he did not know why troops had encircled the building. "They are on the roof and in the street. I don't know if there are any more nearby."

He said the 15 refugees were mostly Uruguayans. He had been negotiating safe-conduct from the Chilean regime for them to leave the country.

Several days ago the Chilean foreign minster, Ismael Huerta, drew Edelstam's attention to the fact that he had taken 54 Uruguayan detainees from the national stadium, which the military regime has been using as a prison camp, without telling the foreign ministry.

Edelstam replied that the Uruguayan embassy had already arranged their documentation and everything was in order.

The ambassador also played an important role in obtaining the release last month from the stadium of the Swedish correspondent of the Stocckholm daily newspaper Dagens Nytheter, Bobi Sourander, whom the regime had said it would court-martial.

Grant Trickles In To Maritime Museum

The federal government has given the Maritime Museum the first 25 per cent of a promised $25,000 grant, director Col. J. W. D. Symons said today.

Symons said the $6,250 received will be used for four purposes:

—Cancel a portion of the musueum's operating deficit;

—Continue a program of refurbishing and improving a display of the collection;

—Staff training; and —Increase participation in programs designed to provide travelling exhibits for other parts of B.C., in conjunction with the provincial musuem.

In addidtiin the museum received a $500 grant from the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation to assist in gathering information on Royal Navy ships which served on the West Coast, he said.

Steering Defective

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A spokesman for Chrysler Canala Ltd. says 311 Canadian owners of 1973 Dodge chassis are being notified of a possible steering column defect.

Owners of modesl with a tilt-steering option are the only ones involved and they are being asked to return the vehicles for inspection and correction.

The company said the possible defect might arise because full tilting of the steering column may disconnect some wiring, causing loss of turn signals and emergency flashers.

FAITH HEALER'S ADVICE FATAL

MONTREAL (CP) — A mother of a 15-year-old diabetic boy who died April 1 told the Court of Queen's Bench Tuesday that a faith healer counselled her to stop giving her son his daily insulin injections.

Irene Turcotte, 44, went on trial Tuesday on a charge of criminal negligence arising from the death of Andre Fortin.

Mrs. Julien Fortin, said five days before his death, she took her son, who had been a diabetic since the age of eight, to a one-hour session with Mrs. Turcotte.

Mrs. Fortin told the court that Mrs. Turcotte urged her to stop giving the boy insulin.

The dead boy's mother said her son was fine without insulin for the first two days after the interview but his health began to fail on the third day and Mrs. Fortin administered an insulin injection.

Called to the Fortin home the same night, Mrs. Turcotte admonished her for giving her son the injection, Mrs. Fortin testified.

The next day, the boy was too sick to be given an injection.

INTERNATIONAL JOINT COMMISSION
Canada and the United States

Notice of Public Hearings on Possible Solutions to Certain Problems Facing Point Roberts

The International Joint Commission, a permanent Canada and United States body established by Treaty in 1909, will hold public hearings at the times and places noted below on possible solutions to certain problems facing the residents of Point Roberts.

In 1971 the Governments of the United States and Canada requested the International Joint Commission to investigate and recommend measures to alleviate certain conditions of life of residents of Point Roberts, Washington, existing by reason of the fact that the only connection by land between Point Roberts and other territory of the United States is through Canada. The Commission appointed the International Point Roberts Board to undertake the necessary investigations and to advise the Commission thereon. The Board has recently completed its studies and has submitted its report to the Commission entitled "Report to the International Joint Commission on Solutions to the Problems Facing the Residents of Point Roberts." The report is being distributed to interested individuals, organizations and government agencies. Copies may be obtained upon request by writing to the International Joint Commission in either Washington or Ottawa at the addresses noted below. Also, the Report and Appendix 'B' thereto "An Inventory of International Park Possibilities" are being made available for inspection in Canada at the following locations:

History and Government Division,
Vancouver Public Library,
751 Burrard Street,
Vancouver, B.C.

Fraser Valley Regional Libraries,
Richmond, Delta, Surrey and White Rock, B.C.

Water Survey of Canada,
Room 502,
1001 West Pender Street,
Vancouver, B.C.

Greater Victoria Public Library,
Victoria, B.C.

The purpose of these hearings is to receive testimony and evidence relating to the report of the International Point Roberts Board. The Commission's hearings are international in nature and irrespective of the location in which they are being held, the citizens of both the United States and Canada are invited to attend and participate. Opportunity will be given to anyone, either on his own behalf or in a representative capacity, to offer pertinent information which may assist the Commission in the preparation of its report to the Governments of the United States and Canada on solutions to the problems facing Point Roberts.

At the hearings, statements may be presented orally or in writing. If written statements are submitted, it is requested that, if possible, thirty (30) copies be provided for the Commission's use. Additional copies may be deposited with the Secretaries at the hearings for the use of the news media and others present.

Big Traders Spearheading Strong Recovery on TSE

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

A surge of interest in the market by big traders is spearheading a significant recovery on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Trading volume continues heavy in November, although prices are down slightly from October.

Oils and metals were in the forefront of trading by mutual funds and institutions.

The Toronto Stock Exchange traded $828.6 million worth of shares in October, up 53.7 per cent from September levels.

Value was up in all major sectors, indicating that the summer slump has come to a decisive end.

Industrial issues traded on the TSE were worth $623.8 million in October, up 53.1 per cent from September.

Mining stocks traded were worth $106.5 million, up 101.7 per cent and oil issues were up 24.6 per cent on the month at $98.3 million.

A major factor behind the Toronto surge was a decided improvement in the New York market in the same period.

Continued strong corporation profit levels and a feeling that interest rates had reached their peak also added to optimism among big block traders.

Concern about inflation seems to be less prevalent than it has been during the summer. Fears about a sharp recession in 1974 also have abated.

Average daily value in October was $37.7 million, up from $28.4 million in September. Average daily volume was 3.3 million shares, up from 2.6 million the previous month.

Volume of trading has continued to be heavy in November, averaging well above 3 million shares. Thursday, Nov. 1, trading volume was 4.18 million.

Ten month trading on the Toronto exchance was worth $5.6 billion, up 6.8 per cent over the corresponding 1972 period.

Ten month volume was 548.9 million shares, up 6.5 per cent from 1972 levels.

New listings are: American Eagle Petroleums Ltd. (AEO), Control Data Corporation (CTD), New York Oils Ltd. (NYO), and Vestgron Mines Ltd. (VGM).

Northern Tar Chemical and Wood Limited was removed for failing to meet exchange requirements. Eagle Star Insurance Company Ltd. was removed at its own request.

Hamilton Trust and Savings Corporation rights expired as did Inter City Gas A warrants.

Name of Anglo-Rouyn Mines Ltd. was changed to Canadian Memorial Services Ltd. (CMM), CDP Computer Processors Ltd. name became American Depository Shares (DIL), and Erie Diversified Industries became Lambda Mercantile Corporation common and Class A shares.

FIR

ANNOUNCEMENT

J. M. Billings — D. A. S. Lanskail

The appointment of Donald A. S. Lanskail as president of Forest Industrial Relations and the retirement of John M. Billings has been announced by Roy M. Whittle, chairman of the executive committee.

Mr. Billings joined R. V. Stuart Research, predecessor company to FIR, in 1944 and became president in 1951. In these capacities he served the industry with distinction for 30 years in union contract negotiations — for most of that time as chief spokesman.

His successor, Mr. Lanskail, is also president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau. In his new position he will be responsible for the policy, direction and coordination of FIR and the PPIRB.

FIR is the bargaining agency for 115 coastal forest companies. The PPIRB negotiates for B.C.'s 15 pulp and paper manufacturers.

Mr. Lanskail is a graduate in Arts and Law from the University of B.C. and was legal counsel and assistant manager of FIR from 1959 to 1968.

business

Pacific Western

Pacific Western Airlines Ltd. reports net earnings of $2,112,000 for the first nine months of this year, up from earnings of $2,085,000 in the same period last year.

The company said in a report to shareholders the earnings of .83 a share in the first nine months of this year were lower than the earnings of .92 a share in the corrresponding period of 1972 because of an increase of approximately 12 per cent in the common shares outstanding.

Un. Carbide

Union Carbide Canada Ltd. reports sharply increased profit for the nine months to Sept. 30 on the strength of record sales.

Net income for the nine months was $12.25 million ($1.23 a share) — including a gain of $830,000 on sale of property — compared with $8.85 million (84 cents) in the corresponsing period a year earlier. Sales totalled $176.97 million, up 14 per cent.

Kerr Addison

Kerr Addison Mines Ltd. reports earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of $6.45 million (67.7 cents a share), a 67-per-cent increase over the $3.85 million and 40.5 cents a year ago.

The company said the improvement reflects higher prices for gold, zinc and copper.

Japan Needs Lumber

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of Canadian lumbermen are in Japan this week, sounding out what they and government officials predict could become a vast new market for this country.

"There is a tremendous revolution in housing going on in Japan," said Hans Roine, the Canadian Wood Council's new president, and his delegation hopes to persuade the Japanese to do much of their building with British Columbia lumber.

The Japanese, who increased imports of Canadian lumber from $55 million worth last year to $64 million in the first seven months of 1973, have placed a top priority on new housing for their country's burgeoning population.

"We can see at least a doubling and maybe more" in Japan's imports of Canadian lumber in the next few years," said E. W. Smith, chief of the primary wood products division of the industry, trade and commerce department.

The federal department is working closely with the mission of Roine and other prominent west coast lumbermen to seek a sharp expansion in Japanese purchases from new development in the Prince Rupert Forest district of British Columbia.

GETS SUPPORT

"This mission has been given the full support of this department," Smith said.

"The housing demand in Japan is approximately equal to the U.S. demand — an enormous incentive to our industry," Roine said before leaving on the mission from Prince George.

Smith said in Ottawa that Japan has set a goal of 1.9 million new housing units a year for the next five years, exceeding even the big U.S. target of 1.8 million units next year.

The $1 billion or more a year in U.S. purchases of Canadian lumber dwarfs all other world customers, but Japan has already become a strong second-place importer.

Smith said the forests being opened up with new rail lines and port facilities in the Prince Rupert area will provide some two billion board feet of lumber a year that could "logically" be aimed at the Japanese market.

In addition to just selling lumber to Japan, Canadian lumbermen are also helping introduce western techniques to construction.

Mercantile Bank Plans Rights Issue

The Mercantile Bank of Canada has informed the Vancouver Stock Exchange it plans to issue rights to shareholders of record to purchase additional shares of the company.

Shareholders will receive one right for each share held and may trade five rights and $7 for one new share of Mercantile, according to the VSE report.

Rights certificates go into the mail about Nov. 16 and the shares already are trading ex-rights.

The rights terminate at close of business Jan. 11, 1974, and will trade for cash at the opening Jan. 9.

The exchange has been informed that the shares of Arc Resources Ltd., Kerry Mining Ltd. and Matador Developments are out of primary trading.

Brendon Rsources Ltd. has had 200,000 shares underwritten by Davidson and Co. Ltd.

Davidson made an early move, picking up 100,000 at 30 cents per share due Jan. 29, 1974, plus 100,000 at 35 cents each due April 29, 1974. Brendon has moved out of primary.

EXPLORATION COMPETITION IN JANUARY

Competition for the right to explore and develop crown petroleum and natural gas resources in Brjtish Columbia will be held Jan. 30, 1974, the department of mines and petroleum resources said today.

BCR Route 'Not Bungled'

The former Social Credit administration did not "bungle" northern construction of the B.C. Railway and actually saved money for the public, a Socred member told the legislature Tuesday.

Don Phillips (SC—North Peace River) launched a long attack against statements made by Premier Barrett Monday, in which the premier said poor engineering work by the former government will cost B.C. millions of dollars.

The premier does not understand the engineering problems involved in building railways in the north, Phillips said, adding that if it wasn't for the Socred government the northern lines would never have been built.

It is those northern lines, he said, which have brought huge revenues to the government and given it the funds to spend large amounts on the railway.

The debate came over a bill granting the BCR $25 million for capital expenses, which was given third reading during a night sitting which ended shortly after midnight.

During second reading of the same bill Monday, Barrett had said the 253-mile extension from Fort St. John to Fort Nelson in the northeastern corner of the province will need extensive repairing.

He produced an engineering report Tuesday which shows sub-standard conditions on the railway exist from North Vancouver north to Fort Nelson.

Total cost of repairing the lines will be $15 million, Barrett said.

The report is a preliminary summary of a total report to be completed by the end of November by John Fox, assistant chief engineer with the Canadian Pacific Railway, Ray Fisk, assistant chief engineer with the Canadian National Railway, M.S. Wakely, chief engineer of the BCR, and Robert Swanson, director of the BCR

The main problems identified in the report are narrow banks which do not comply with federal width standards, excessive curvature in the lines, poor ties and sub-standard fill.

Barrett says the Socred administration rushed to complete the Fort Nelson-Fort St. John section and accepted poor engineering work.

Phillips replied that the main problems on that line are the result of a heavy moisture layer during the fall of 1972 which also caused the Alaska highway to sink.

If the railway had been built in the highlands, instead of the boggy lowlands, it would have cost close to $250 million instead of the $48 million spent on construction Sept., 1971, Phillips said.

And to have waited to build the railway up to the standards spoken of by Barrett, the Socred said, it would have cost $30 million more than the original cost compared to $15 million for updating.

VIET AID IN TRUST

The legislature's committee on aid to Vietnam children has recommended that a $2.25 million fund established earlier this year be placed in trust, with only $300,000 of it distributed to three volunteer agencies in Southeast Asia.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke tabled the committee's report in the house Tuesday after a series of hearings was held by the committee.

The report found that the majority of persons who appeared before the committee felt that the establishment of physical facilities in Vietnam by the B.C. government "would not be the most appropriate form of aid for B.C. to offer."

Therefore, the committee recommended that the $2.25 million fund for Vietnam aid, approved by the legislature in April, be placed in trust, together with whatever donations are received from the public.

It also recommended that $300,000 be taken from the fund and given, in three $100,000 portions, to finance programs in Vietnam run by the Swedish Save The Children Fund; the B.C. Save The Children Fund and a group of Quakers in territory occupied by the North Vietnamese National Liberation Front.

The report's third recommendation is that the legislative committee continue to look for programs which will privide the most effective relief for children affected by the war in Southeast Asia.

Rare Blankets Missing in U.S.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles county museum conducted an inventory recently and discovered that 76 rare Navajo blankets valued at $174,000 are missing, authorities disclosed.

Sixteen of the blankets, some of them woven more than 100 years ago, have been recovered in San Francisco and Boulder, Colo. They were valued at $46,000.

Police sent descriptions of the wool and flannel blankets to other art museums, collectors and dealers across the United States.

AMBULANCE TEST

The provincial government will begin immediately a pilot project of providing an air ambulance service for the Stewart area of B.C.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Tuesday the program will cost between $30,000 and $50,000 a year and will involve using any kind of government or private aircraft to transport people needing medical help to hospital facilities.

A $25 fee will be charged for each ambulance run, compared to charges of up to $500 now borne by private citizens in remote areas who need air transport and must either charter planes or go on commercial aircraft, taking up four regular seats with a stretcher.

Cocke said the pilot project will go on for nearly a year before it is evaluated in hopes of providing a comprehensive program for all remote areas in B.C.

Cherry Trees Diseased

A new outbreak of Little Cherry Disease threatens the $5 million cherry industry in the Okanagan Valley, a department of agruculture official said Tuesday.

Plant pathologist Dr. H. J. O'Reilly said the disease results in stunted fruit, one-half to two-thirds normal size. He said it played havoc in the Kootenays from 1933 to 1950 when it was wiped out.

The disease first showed up in the Okanagan in 1969, he said, when a Pecticton orchardist reported its symptoms appearing in his trees. Sixty-seven trees were cut down on his orchard and another 11 were destroyed after a search of the whole Okanagan Valley.

But the disease showed up again this summer O'Reilly said 108 diseased or suspicious trees were chopped down.

Dr. M. W. Neilson of the U.S. department of agriculture at Tucson, Arizona has been brought in to survey the extent of the outbreak, said O'Reilly. He added that there is some evidence to suggest leafhoppers spread the disease.

In the meantime, he said, growers are strongly urged to report suspicious trees to the provincial department of agriculture.

BARE BABY IN ADS BANNED

NEW BALTIMORE, Mich. (UPI) — Baby powder advertisments may be illegal in this town under a new anti-pornography law that classifies bare buttocks as offensive.

"I believe some of these ads show bare baby bottoms," said Police Chief Edward Reim. Playboy and other such magazines already have been removed from drugstores, supermarkets, bookshops and other businesses, and nude calenders may go next. The penalty for selling such matter is a maximum jail term of 90 days and maximum fines of $500.

"People here don't like that stuff," said Mayor Herman Staffhorst.

Diana Ricardo says:

Glitter is great. It can make you the shining success of the holiday season ahead. But let it get out of hand, and you could put Sparkle Plenty to shame.

Here are a few tips to consider when you are co-ordinating and sewing your glamour wardrobe.

• Use glitter fabrics in combination with matte or semi-gloss fabrics. Suggestions could be Lurex combined with luxuriously heavy moss crepe; crepe back satin, poly satin or jersey.

• Try making just one wardrobe component in shimmer. Top a plain dress with a shiny jacket. Or make a glimmering top to wear with balck pants. Sparkling collars and cuffs or a luminous sash are more ways to put light into plain dresses.

Be subtle about shine. Use gossamer sheers that have satin stripes and dainty floral patterns.

• Put Zip into plain fabrics by edging them in yards of sequins, silver or gold braid, or rhinestone trims.

• Avoid heartbreaking sewing mistakes — use a ballpoint needle when sewing metallic fabrics.

• A hint to the budget-wise: All of this season's shimmer and shine evening fabrics are 100% washable!

Weird Ways of Guilt When a Bird Is Caged

Any psychiatrist will tell you. It's the little things that do it. One tiny screw comes loose, the whole complicated machinery of the mind becomes unhinged, and first thing you know the men in the white suits are there with their soothing voices and rough hands. Talk it out, the psychiatrists say. Face the problem. Deal with it an outspoken manner. It is your only hope.

All right, then, I will. It began when our nearest, dearest and oldest friend brought us this budgie bird at the small house-warming we held in the place we've moved to. My first reaction was, I think, characteristically gracious. Take it away, I said, and give us the cash. I told her frankly that I've always been repelled by the idea of caging anything, particularly birds, and if I were King I'd make it a law to release them all. A creature meant for a roofless sky has no business behind bars, I said. I was really quite splendid about it.

"Just give the wee thing a chance," said our nearest, dearest and oldest, who rarely takes no for an answer, and when she left the small party she left the small bird behind and I hope, as Maude says, that God will get her for it.

From the moment "Dickie" became a part of our lives I have vacillated between compassion and anger. Indeed, the bird and I have had a curiously emotional relationship based, I suspect, on my feeling of guilt plus the indisputable fact that a meaner bird never lived. If you tell me now that all budgies are mean I would have to believe you because "Dickie" is the first budgie I have come to know intimately and — boy! — is he mean!

He looks like any other budgie at first glance. Small enough to hold in the cup of your palm, if you don't mind losing a finger or two. A greenish-yellow in color. Beady, close-set eyes with the cold, killer-look of the chicken hawk.

The female life which surrounds me lightly accepted Dickie at face value and, unlike me, made no attempt to psychoanalyze him. The fact that he made a twittering sound only when the vacuum cleaner was on was accepted by them matter-of-factly, though it troubles me for hours at a time. The fact that he burst into glorious song once and once only — when he was looking from his warm cage during Sunday's snow storm at a porch full of cold, miserable little birds facing imminent starvation — disturbed them not at all.

It began to be a kind of local joke that I detested the bird and I protested in vain that I was, in fact, the only one who was concerned about him being held prisoner.

It was I who consulted a neighbor named Alice who is practically embedded in laughing, trilling, talking, happy-type budgies. Buy him a little mirror and a little bell, Alice advised. Talk to him. Teach him to stand on your finger and fly about the room.

I bought Dickie a little bell and a little mirror. He went into a complete panic and hung upside down in one corner of his cage in wall-eyed terror until I removed my peace offering. I spoke to him soothingly and offered him my index finger as a pedestal. He bit it sharply and drew blood. I left the cage door open and Dickie stepped out, went into a supersonic dive and had to be rescued from the sink and a swift, septic death down the drain.

After each of these experiences his natural expression of melancholy deepened noticeably and the shadows lengthened over my conscience.

I dreamed one night that Dickie was talking to me. "Why don't you give me my freedom oh cruel master?" he asked. "If I let you free," I responded, "you'd freeze to death out there or the hawks would get you." I awoke at the point where Dickie was carrying me in his great talons out to sea.

It does no good to try to rationalize. One day when I was passing his cage, trying not to notice his doleful expression, I suddenly found myself with my face against the bars, shouting, "Oh, buck up, Dickie! For heaven's sake, buck up!" The bird eyed me malevolently. He did not buck up.

I had decided with one half of my brain that Dickie was malingering in not facing up to his responsibility. After all, we were doing all we could for his morale and his comfort and getting nothing in return. One way or the other, we're all prisoners, aren't we? Well, aren't we Dickie?

But behind this was the knowledge that sadness is a caged bird's birthright — the right to sing the blues or not to sing at all. I often fancy myself in there with him, sitting on that same old perch day and night with a view of the open sky latticed by the slender, impregnable bands of aluminum and I marvel that Dickie isn't meaner than he is.

I have tried to explain all this to my wife, but she is no help at all. She keeps saying, "Why not consult a psychiatrist?" But who ever heard of a bird psychiatrist?

Pollen Wants To Appeal Reid Decision

Mayor Peter Pollen said today he will urge city council to appeal a B.C. Supreme Court judgment last week which confirmed the validity of a land-use contract between the city of Victoria and Vancouver developer J. A. Reid.

But Pollen told reporters at his weekly press conference his purpose is not to try to halt the proposed Reid Centre project on Wharf Street.

"It's a move to clarify the situation through a higher court," he explained with a straight face.

When a reporter observed that Reid would not be able to proceed with his development if a higher court found the contract invalid, the mayor merely smiled and said: "That's quite true."

Pollen said he had come to the conclusion the city should appeal after discussing the matter with city solicitor Jake de Villiers and studying the judgment handed down last week by Mr. Justice F. C. Munroe.

He said he considered Munroe's ruling was "in error for a number of reasons," but didn't state what those reasons were.

Munroe had ruled Reid's contract with the city was valid "notwithstanding the fact that thhe period for fulfilling the contract was not adhered to," Pollen said.

The judgement said the city had the power to extend certain time limits in the contract, necessitated by Reid's failure to carry out stipulated lot consolidation within 90 days of the signing of the contract in July, 1972.

The court determination had been sought both with regard to the status of the contract itself, and on the legality of council's recent action in granting time extensions.

Pollen said today that a condition of granting extra time to Reid was that he furnish the city with satisfactory guarantees as to his firm's ability to complete the project.

Such assurances have yet to be provided, he added.

Aldermen 'Bit Hooks'

Both from inside and outside City Hall, certain city aldermen were rebuked Tuesday for participating in "promotion" of the Reid Centre project.

Mayor Peter Pollen told council's caucus meeting he considers it "inappropriate" for aldermen to play any part in the "flamboyant promotional aspects of development."

The fact that some aldermen had attended last Friday's sod-turning ceremony for the Reid development on Wharf Street amounted to a "biting on hooks," he added.

"I think the public has been very seriously misled by the sod-turning—or sad turning as one alderman appropriately noted — indicating they are about ready to commence construction," Pollen said.

He reminded council that Reid has yet to supply the financial guarantees demanded by the city before it allows construction to proceed.

Meanwhile, Esquimalt NDP MLA Jim Gorst said in an interview he also deplored the attendance at the ceremony by some council members.

"I guess some people just can't resist the offer of a free cup of coffee," he commented.

Gorst described the Reid ceremony as "an attempt to make the public think the whole thing is a fait accompli, so everyone will fold their tents and go home."

But he said as far as he's concerned that's far from the case, and appealed for "hundreds and hundreds of letters" asking the provincial government to acquire the Reid site for public use.

Clubs in the Rough After Barrett's Drive

There was a "wait-and-see" reaction by Victoria area golf course officials today to Premier Dave Barrett's conditions if golf clubs are to get a reprieve from heavy increases in taxation.

Barrett announced in the legislature Tuesday that golf courses will be exempted from the much higher taxation levels which they now face through amendments passed in the spring session to the Assessment Equalization Act if they meet two conditions:

— Courses be dedicated to the playing of golf for perpetuity.

— That there be public access on a first-come-first-served basis.

It's the second condition that has local golf managers confused.

Barrett was unavailable this moning to explain his comments.

"We're very pleased that there's going to be some easement," Peter Simpson, manager of the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club, said, "But we have to know what it (the second condition) means. We'll have to wait and see."

His puzzlement was shared by Doug Long, manager of the Uplands Golf Club.

Long said he was hesitant to comment until the ramifications of Barrett's first-come-first-served edict were spelled out.

"We don't know the total conditions," he said, "But members have to have some privileges over non-members when they take the trouble to belong to a club and pay annual subscriptions."

He added, "Our members (some 500 men and 200 women) would be up in arms" if the condition meant that a non-member would have as much right to "prime time" on the course as members.

"If he (Barrett) is inferring that he wants us to go public this would not be acceptable as far as we are concerned."

Manager Leo Derman of the Gorge Vale Golf Club also said Barrett's conditions needed clarification.

"We're not in a position to comment," he said, "until we know what he means. We're not public but we're a long way toward it. Our green fees are very low and members only have prime play on the weekends."

The amendments to the act have had the effect of eliminating the former 10 per cent ceiling, which was passed on assessment increases per year. Land, including that used for golf courses, is now assessed at 50 per cent of its market value.

The effect on most golf courses — including Uplandands and the Victoria Golf Club — is that assessments have doubled.

Barrett has promised the government will bring in further legislation at the next spring session to allow for exemption of those golf courses which comply with his conditions.

As long as the conditions are met, he said, the courses will be entitled to special long-term considerations on assessments since they are valuable greenspace land.

He said the challenge has now been made to the golf courses; there should be no discrimination by the operators of the courses against people wanting to use them.

Oak Bay Chief To Stay On

Oak Bay Fire Chief Bill Pearson, due to retire at the end of November, will stay on another year.

Pearson said today the extension was recommended by Oak Bay's personnel committee to allow more time to find a suitable successor.

Pearson has been a department member 36 years and served 17 years as chief. Deputy Chief Al Reside is also due to retire in November, 1974.

Strike Vote Set at Gorge

Employees of Gorge Road Hospital will be asked at union meetings Friday night and early Saturday to approve serving 72 hours strike notice against the hospital.

The Hospital Employees Union, representing 350 employees, said in a statement today its executive will recommend that the statutory notice be served and that the union would exercise its strike right "in the event the employer continues its refusal to agree to arbitration."

The union's members — everyone in the hospital except registered nurses and paramedical employees — voted 98.2 per cent in favor of strike action last week.

Mediation efforts were unsuccessful last week in resolving the dispute and the union said today that mediation officer Charles Stewart has filed his report.

The union said it offered arbitration as an alternative to strike action "but the employer disagreed." British Columbia's new labor code, expected to be proclaimed before the end of the year, would allow a hospital union to choose arbitration regardless of what the employer wants.

"The employer wants the union to agree to discriminatory wage rates," said Hospital Employees Union assistant business manager, Jack Gerow, referring to successful union arbitration cases at various hospitals this year, including Royal Jubilee, which held that practical nurses must be brought up to orderlies pay levels.

The new labor code prohibits discrimination which is contrary to the Human Rights Act and if such an agreement is reached the contract is deemed not to be a collective agreement.

Day shift and graveyard shift workers will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Centre and afternoon shift workers will meet Saturday at 1 a.m.

Gorge Road administrator Bill Morrison said today he would "prefer to defer making a statement for a day or two."

The hospital has delegated its bargaining authority to the B.C. Hospitals Association but Joe Roberts, BCHA employee relations director, was unavailable for comment this morning.

Robbed Again

For the second time in less than a month a downtown jewelry store has been robbed by a snatch-and-grab thief.

Police said today two trays containing 14 white gold diamond rings were taken from Grassie Firbanks, 1209 Douglas, during the noon hour Tuesday.

The same store lost 12 rings, valued at $6,000, in a similar theft Oct. 11.

Value of Tuesday's loss has not been determined.

It All Depends On Weather . . .

The price of fresh vegetables — which are between 10 and 20 per cent higher than they were a year ago — will go up or down in the next month depending on the weather, industry spokesmen said today.

The recent five-day cold snap is not expected to seriously affect the supply, and therefore the price, of B.C. grown produce, says Alan Barker, manager of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Co-operative Association.

Although there are still carrots, turnips and cabbages in the fields, the cold period was not long enough to damage these crops, he said.

But he warns that continued rain could cause problems.

Because there are no shortages of any vegetables grown on Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland, prices have not "gone out of line" this fall and in many cases they are actually lower than they were 10 months ago, Barker said.

Robert Swanson of Slade and Stewart Ltd., a major produce wholesaler, confirmed that supplies are good.

"When you handle perishable items, they have to be sold. You can't have unrealistic prices," he said.

Import of produce from the U.S. which might have forced prices down, is not high this month. A much more important factor is the ability of B.C. farmers to bring in their crops before they are destroyed by continued wet weather.

Co-op manager Barker said he does not expect any major increase in prices between now and Christmas because it is the practice of retailers to stockpile as much produce as possible in November in preparation for the Christmas rush.

7-Mile Trek After Grounding

A 40-foot troller was wrecked Tuesday afternoon when heavy seas and high winds swept it onto an isolated beach at Logan Creek, 15 miles north of Port Renfrew.

Only one man was aboard the vessel, the Johny-Boy, and he managed to get off safely, a spokesman at the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre said today.

The man is N. Storie, believed to be from Victoria.

The spokesman said Storie walked seven miles north along the rugged coastline to the Carmanah Lighthouse where he called for help.

The trek took more than six hours through high winds, lightning and hail before he arrived, feet cut and badly bruised, late Tuesday night, the spokesman said.

An air-sea rescue helicopter left Pat Bay airport at 11 a.m. today to evacuate Storie from the lighthouse. It is expected to return to Victoria later this afternoon.

In another boating mishap, L. Pootlass, aboard the 33-foot gillnetter Victor M, was rescued after being stranded four days in Restoration Bay on Burke Channel near Bella Bella.

The Coast Guard cutter Ready reached Pootlass this morning and towed the stricken boat into Namu.

Rescue had been delayed because of extremely strong winds north of Vancouver Island, an official at Victoria rescue centre said.

CPR Fire Alarm Just Hot Air

The fire department sent two trucks this morning to put out a fire in a rail car at the CPR yard on Store Street.

Killer Dog Packs Finish Off Metchosin Farmer's Flock

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

After more than 50 years of sheep farming in Metchosin, 87-year-old William Whitney-Griffithis is out of business.

His last three sheep were killed by dogs Sunday.

The three sheep were the only survivors of another dog attack in March when 10 sheep were killed.

"One of the sheep killed Sunday was just a lamb and the other two had been attacked in March when the 10 were killed. We patched them up—one took 20 stitches—but now they're all gone," Whitney-Griffiths said today.

When the farmer and his brother started raising sheep years ago, they had a flock of 150 between them," but now the last one is gone. I guess that's it."

Whitney-Griffiths discovered the dead sheep, all purebred, Sunday afternoon. One had been attacked inside the barn, the other two just outside.

"They were badly torn and quite a mess—one had its stomach ripped out."

In two years, Whitney-Griffiths has lost 18 of his sheep to dogs who were "just out for a bit of hellery."

"The dogs around here are kept chained most of the time, but people let them loose on Saturdays and Sundays and they just go wild."

Whitney-Griffiths has taken the loss philosophically—"New people are moving in here and everybody has dogs. I guess, though, that it's just the advance of time."

Any farmer who loses his sheep to dogs gets $30 compensation from the provincial government," but I could have sold them for more than $50 a piece so you don't really get your money back."

The Sheep Protection Act, which allows farmers to shoot dogs on their own property, "looks lovely on paper, but it still doesn't stop the dogs from roaming and you can't carry a gun around with you all the time."

With his own spaniel, Tammy, jumping around his knees, Whitney-Griffiths says he has "almost decided for sure not to get any more sheep.

"I'm getting older and they're a worry, but it's sad to see the end of such a flock—they were such good animals."

Lions: Who's to Say They Can't Win Again

If this has already been an incredible football season, maybe the B.C. Lions do have a chance to get by Saskatchewan Roughriders in the sudden-death Western Conference semi-final at Regina on Sunday.

Because for a club that won only five games out of 16 on the season and two of those in the final two games, the Lions should be happy enough to be where they are—in the playoffs. After all, it's the first time in four years they've been there, and also the first time for coach Eagle Keys in his three years at the helm of the club.

But think of it—The Lions now are only two victories away from a Grey Cup berth. Unbelievable? Sure, it is.

But this is what football is all about. You'll recall the beginning of the Jackie Parker-Eagle Keys era. That came about when the B.C. Lions directorate went shopping for a coach, and also a general manager. And where better to start than with the highly successful Eagle Keys from Turkey Neck Bend via Regina. Weren't his teams the scourge of the West?

Meanwhile, Parker, who had been team coach, was elevated to the position of general manager; Denny Veitch was given the "goodbye, it's nice to have known you" shake; Keys was in on the ground floor of an announced three-year plan for success, and this was the third year.

Eagle Built His Own Nest

It was the Eagle's plan to build from the bottom and deal away those he personally didn't want, or whom he considered incapable of playing under his system. He did, and now only seven of the original 32 players with the Lions when he took over remain. Meanwhile the average age has shrunk to 24 from 28.

If there has been little material success in the won and lost columns since then, there have always been the signs that, given a break or two, or better still, a player or two of exceptional ability, the team might be close to being a winner. Injuries normally even themselves out over a season for all clubs, unless it is the star player, or players, in which case they are referred to as "disasters." And too many disasters don't produce a winning year.

This season the Lions started off with a team chock-full of promise. But don't all clubs? Still, at least the Lions had a quarterback, Don Moorhead, in whom Keys had explicit faith. Keys had declared Moorhead No. 1 after dealing off Tom Wilkinson the year previous in what then was a controversy of major proportions. (Equally so, perhaps today, because of Wilkinson's key role in Edmonton's surprise 28-16 triumph over Saskatchewan on Sunday to finish in first place in the West.)

At any rate Keys stuck to his guns, and if he didn't win many arguments last year, he was immediately in hot water again this year when Moorhead came up hurting in mid season and couldn't throw the ball because of a badly injured shoulder. To make matters worse, and the criticism more intense, reserve quarterback Karl Douglas didn't come on as a team saviour should. And sure, the Lions appeared doomed.

So Let's Be Reasonable

More so, because at various times during the year, fullback Johnny Musso, obviously the standout back of the year in the West, had toe troubles and was forced to wear one boot two sizes larger than the other just to play. He also has a bad knee, but that was, and still is, considered incidental.

So Moorhead and Musso are only two men. But they do make the offence tick. And if the defence was exemplary against Calgary, a glance back at the Lions' record shows that when Moorhead and Musso were reasonably healthy, the Lions were a reasonable football team, even if they went nine games without a victory over one stretch.

True, that's not conducive to being a playoff contender, but then the Lions did win the only games that finally mattered, against Winnipeg and Calgary. And just before that, they tied Edmonton, in Edmonton, in a game they should have won.

Thus naturally, they wanted the Eskimos in the semis. They had played them even on the year, and against them likely would have been more confident.

But now it's Regina, and if they haven't come close to the Riders all season, losing all three games, they haven't won in Regina either for eight long years.

So why do they have a chance? Simply because they have a healthy Moorhead and Musso, that's one why, and perhaps two excellent answers to Ron Lancaster and George Reed. Besides, they have a good field-goal kicker in Ivan MacMillan and a defence that is now at its season's best. If all other factors may be considered relatively equal, who's to say the season is going to end for the Lions in Regina Sunday? Not me. It's been a crazy year and it's not over yet.

Johnny One Note?

Firing Unjustified, Says Irked Spavital

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jim Spavital was released Tuesday after four years as head coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers but he didn't take the dismissal lightly.

Although the Bombers finished last in the Western Football Conference with four wins and a tie in 16 games, Spavital said in an interview he felt his firing was unjustified.

"No I don't feel it was justified after the job I did . . . brought the club from last place to first place. Then we came up with this season but we had injuries and other problems and it wasn't all coaching, it was management."

General manager Earl Lunsford, who has known Spavital since high school days, announced the decision at a news conference.

In announcing the decision, Lunsford said the board of directors felt there was something "lacking in some of his coaching abilities. . . ."

The decision to release Spavital, who had one year remaining on a two-year contract, was not totally unexpected. With the Bombers slumping badly most of the season after finishing first in 1972, rumors began circulating in the final weeks of the schedule.

Spavital says his job would have been much easier if the club had supplied adequate replacements for three all-stars lost during the off-season: Lineman Bob Luck who retired; and wide receiver Jim Thorpe and the Canadian Football League's top rusher of 1972, Mack Herron, who were dropped from the roster after being arrested on drug charges.

"When they (Bombers) took those two players (Thorpe and Herron) away from me I had no say. I would probably have gone along, but I didn't have a yea or a na and I was upset at the time."

Lunsford, who was coached by Spavital at Oklahoma State, said he shares some of the blame for the club's poor showing "if I didn't get the players to replace Thorpe and Herron."

Lunsford, upon whose recommendation the board of directors acted, said the board looked at the total picture of the coach's performance.

Spavital, who said he has already been approached with several opportunities, suggested his firing was prompted by the general manager "perhaps looking after his own job, the pressure is on him."

Don't Mention Climie to Toros

By The Canadian Press

Don't ask Toronto Toros about Ron Climie

But mention his name to Edmonton Oilers and you'll hear about the Toros and a World Hockey Association trade between the clubs earlier this year.

The 23-year-old left winger, a standout for Edmonton early this season, made the trade look worse Tuesday night — for Toronto that is — with a five-goal performance as the Oilers whipped New York Golden Blades 8-0.

He tied a single-game record for goals, set in the WHA's inaugural campaign last season by Ron Ward when he was with New York Raiders, now the Golden Blades.

PALMER PICKED TOP PITCHER

NEW YORK (AP) — Righthander Jim Palmer of Baltimore Orioles today was named the American League's Cy Young award winner for 1973.

He won over an illustrious group of pitchers, including strikeout whiz Nolan Ryan of California Angels and Jim (Catfish) Hunter of Oakland Athletics.

The Baseball Writers' Association of America, (BBWAA) noting Palmer's 22-9 won-lost record and league-leading earned-run average of 2.40, gave Palmer 14 first-place votes and six for second for a total of 88 points. Points were awarded on the basis of five for a firstplace vote, three for second and one for third.

Ryan, also a 20-game winner, established an all-time major league strikeout record this season with 383 and pitched two no-hitters. But despite the accomplishments, the hard-throwing Ryan finished 26 points shy of Palmer in second place.

Ryan's total of 62 points were fashioned on nine first-place votes, three for second and eight for third. Twenty-four members of the BBWAA —two from each of the league's 12 cities—participated in the voting.

Detroit's John Hiller, the only relief pitcher named among the nine pitchers receiving votes, was a distant fourth with six points. The Toronto native, who saved a record 38 games and won 10 more was awarded a vote for second place and three for third.

DOUG PEDEN — EDITOR

Martin Yes, Buffalo No

By The Canadian Press

In the view of coach Joe Crozier of Buffalo Sabres, left winger Richard Martin "was the best player on the ice by a country mile."

Unfortunately, the Sabres weren't the best team on the ice, as Vancouver Canucks rallied for two goals in the third period to take a 3-2 victory in the only National Hockey League game Tuesday night.

There wasn't much quarrelling with Crozier's assessment of Martin, who scored both goals for the Sabres as he continued to prove he doesn't need injured linemate Gilbert Perreault to score.

Martin's goals, his 12th and 13th of the season, giving him six in the three games since Perreault broke his leg, staked the Sabres to 1-0 and 2-1 leads.

But a lucky goal by Don Lever and a disputed goal by Orland Kurtenbach within less than three minutes early in the third period gave the hometown Canucks the lead for the first time in the game and the Sabres were unable to fight back.

GOAL HURT SABRES

Lever's goal seemed to take most of the bounce out of the Buffalo club, who concentrated on defence much of the game.

The Vancouver player attempted to dump the puck in front from his position in the corner in back of Buffalo goalie Dave Dryden, but the puck took a bad hop, struck Dryden on his pad and trickled into the net.

Kurtenbach's goal was protested, although not too strenuously, by some of the Sabres. The Vancouver captain poked in a rebound from a scramble in front of Dryden, with the puck barely making it over the goal-line. Some of the Sabres felt the disc hadn't gone entirely over the line, but referee Wally Harris waved them away.

"Bergman wheels with the puck pretty good," said Wren Blair, general manager of the North Stars. "That should help us romp out of our end . . ."

Harris, 37, was acquired by the North Stars from Montreal Canadiens before the 1970-71 season.

Bergman, 35, who has been outspoken in his criticism of Detroit's front office this season, said he was anxious to rejoin former coach, Jack Gordon.

The Wings also said centre Marcel Dionne could be in the lineup tonight after sitting out last Sunday's game against Atlanta Flames.

Coach Ted Garvin said Dionne has been practising with such enthusiasm that he will be reinstated.

Garvin has criticized Dionne, who has no goals and seven assists in 10 games, for not playing to the peak of his ability. However, Dionne has said the Wings should trade him for the good of the team.

FIGHT NOW, PLAY LATER

Saskatoon Blades and Swift Current Broncos added a new twist to pre-game warm-ups in the Western Canada Hockey Junior League Tuesday night.

Blades and Broncos were brawling before the puck was even dropped and both clubs started the game with three majors and two minor penalties each.

Then the Broncos went on to nip Blades 7-6 to gain fourth place in the Eastern Division.

In the only other game, Regina Pats opened up with three goals in the first period and went on to trip hapless Winnipeg Clubs, 5-2.

Stewart was sent to Nanaimo Clippers of the BC Junior League for add travel seasoning but left the Cougar affiliate last month and returned home, where he played in a junior "B" league.

Dorohoy is expected to make further lineup changes before Saturday as the Cougars ateempt to shake off an early-season slump which has produced only two wins in 11 starts.

Clippers, currently in first place in the Coastal Division, are expected to supply additional players to bolster Cougars' weak defence.

New Coach For Tide

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

Veteran city high school and club coach Tillman Briggs has taken over the reins of the Victoria Rugby Union's Crimson Tide squad.

Briggs has been named to replace Welsh-born Alan Rees, who stepped down because of work and other rugby commitments, and will be on the bench when the Tide begins defence of the McKechnie Cup in Vancouver next Monday.

He won't have the strongest Victoria Reps side possible for the match against Vancouver Reps at Brockton Oval. Rees has declined to play and the Tide will also be without regulars Gillie Greig of Castaways, Tim Cummings of Oak Bay and Gudmund Gudmundseth of Cowichan, who are all unavailable.

Big-kicking Cliff Yorath of Castaways comes into the side to replace Greig at stand-off-half, Jim Wenman of the University of Victoria Vikings will play at fullback in place of Rees and Castaways' centre Tom Carson gets Cummings' berth.

The rest of the Tide backline is Tom Lippa, Ted Fiddick and Stu Barton all of James Bay Athletic Association, and Darryl Nourette of UVic. Making up the forwards are Mike Eckhardt and Hans de Goede, both of James Bay, Dave Docherty and Mike Penn of Oak Bay, Steve Thompson and Ken Wilke of UVic and Blais McDonald of Castaways.

The Crimson Tide plays Fraser Valley, a rest union, in Victoria in the first week in March and meets UBC Thunderbirds early in April in Vancouver in the rest of the round-robin competition.

Briggs, now 43 and once a great No. 8 forward, came to Victoria 12 years ago after coaching Nanaimo to the Vancouver Island High school championship.

TILLMAN BRIGGS
. . . replaces Rees

For his first five years in Victoria, Briggs was in charge of the rugby program at Esquimalt High School and for the last six years he has been coaching at Vic High.

And for all 11 years he has been coaching first-division rugby with the James Bay Athletic Association—with considerable success.

During Briggs' term as coach, James Bay once went undefeated in both the league and playoffs for three straight seasons. Last year, the club carried off both the Rose and Barnard Trophies in a sweep of Victoria Union's league and playoff titles.

Briggs came close to taking James Bay to its first victory in the provincial club championship last season, when the Bays pushed Vancouver Meralomas to the limit before losing 8-7 in the Rounsfell Cup final.

Unitas Not Ready to Coach Yet

Times News Services

Many San Diego fans started pumping for quarterback Johnny Unitas as the Chargers' coach when Harland Svare stepped down as the field boss of the National Football League team Monday.

But instead of playing or coaching, the verteran quarterback was deactivated.

"I thought about him" conceded Eugene Klein, majority owner. "But it wouldn't have been fair to ask Unitas to take over as interim coach.

"Besides, I don't think he wanted the job."

The 40-year-old Unitas injured his right shoulder in Sunday's 19-0 loss to Kansas City Chiefs. For three games before that one, he was sidelined in favor of rookie Dan Fouts.

Klein named Ron Waller, the Chargers' special teams co-ordinator, as interim head coach and made Svare general manager.

There was a more positive and affectionate farewell at New York's Aqueduct race track when triple crown winner Secretariat made his final public appearance.

A crowd of about 30,000 cheered and applauded as jockey Ron Turcotte paraded "Big Red" down the stretch. The farewell ended in the winner's circle when trainer Lucien Laurin unsaddled Secretariat and groom Eddie Sweat led the strapping three-year-old colt away.

Secretariat will go to stud at Claiborne Farm in Paris, Ky., under a record $6.08 million syndication.

There also was a coming and going in the National Hockey League. Going is flamboyant Derek Sanderson, Boston Bruins' penalty-killing specialist who has agreed to be farmed out to Boston Braves of the American League in order to work himself into top condition.

Sanderson hasn't dressed for any of Bruins' 12 games this season and has been plagued by a back injury. It was first feared Sanderson would balk at demotion, but he agreed to go after meeting for about 45 minutes with Bruins' manager Harry Sinden.

Coming into the NHL is Glen Goldup. Montreal Canadiens recalled the right winger from their Nova Scotia Voyageurs' farm club to replace the injured Jim Roberts, sidelined for at least two weeks with a pinched neck nerve.

RCN Anglers Concerned Over Low Salmon Catch

Royal Canadian Navy Anglers Association, representing over 400 sports fishermen in the Greater Victoria area, is very unhappy — to put it mildly — with the federal fisheries department.

The following letter, written by RCNAA president Lyle Tillapaugh to the Amalgamated Conservation Society, appears to sum up any alarming sentiments voiced by sports fishermen this past year.

"We believe that our increasing difficulty in getting a reasonable catch is directly attributable to the policies and degrees of enforcement employed by the department of fisheries.

"The catch by sports fishermen has been meagre, to say the most, as commercial fishing continues to decimate the runs prior to their reaching the sports fishing areas. The fish that do get past the net fishery in the straits are then harassed by nets at places like the entrance to Satellite Channel.

"Diligent conservation practices are then invoked and enforced in holding areas like Cowichan Bay by closing large areas to sports fishing. After the fish have rested in this idyllic sanctuary, they enter the river where they are herded by an illegal weir to waiting spears.

"The failure of the department of fisheries to prevent commercial poaching in closed areas and to enforce the hours of closure to the commercial fishery, as laid down by the Pacific International Salmon Fisheries Commission, is also cause of a great deal of concern.

"Our club supports catch limits, closed areas and other laws enacted to preserve the resource, but we do believe that the policing emphasis must be directed towards practices that can do more harm in an hour than sports fishing can do in a year.

"Sports fishing clubs such as ours, supported by other concerned citizens, work year-round in various endeavors such as stream management and fry feeding to provide the best possible conditions for spawning and fry survival.

"For what?

"The return of this labor goes to the big net or to people who do nothing but espouse vested rights. Our work produces less and less, year by year, as the numbers of fish returning to the streams decrease."

While several of these views might be argued, I cannot condemn the over-all concern with the present state of affairs.

And this feeling of anxiety, voiced by people who are paying the salaries of federal fisheries officials, should not be ignored or bought off with promises.

We want and need a concrete solution.

Fisk Blames Smith For Boston Unrest

ST. LOUIS (AP) — For the second time in as many years, controversial outfielder Reggie Smith and catcher Carlton Fisk of Boston Red Sox have lashed out at each other with harsh criticism.

The latest in the heated debates came Tuesday after Fisk called Smith, recently traded by the Red Sox to St. Louis Cardinals, "one of the chief reasons" of friction on the Boston club.

"It's typical of his cowardliness," Smith said of Fisk's comment during an interview from his Sharon, Mass., home. "He'd rather pop off in the press than say something to my face."

In a speech, Fisk went on to say: "Reggie Smith is gone, and we will have a better ball club next season because of his departure. He's a player with tremendous potential, but the Red Sox have been waiting five years for him to develop that potential . . . so they decided to trade him away."

But the 28-year-old outfielder said he takes such comments from the Boston catcher "with a grain of salt."

"But frankly I'm getting a little tired of this. His hang-up is he doesn't know when to keep quiet."

In the stretch run of 1972, Fisk was quoted as criticizing Smith for a lack of leadership on the Boston club, but he later apologized at a meeting called by then Red Sox pilot Eddie Kasko.

Good Housekeeping a Must Always keep your goal crease clear.

If there's a loose puck in the crease, either freeze it or flip it out to the side — out of danger from a roving opponent. Just a split second delay could cost your team a goal and the game.

Attacking forwards have a way of getting into the goal crease, sometimes without meaning to, but often deliberately to confuse the goalie and make his job more difficult.

A goaltender has the right to check any opponent who's inside that crease. you can hit him as hard as you like, so long as it's a legal check. But once a goalie leaves the crease he becomes like every other player on the ice and can be checked in any legal way.

When you're in goal you can teach some of those opposition attackers to respect your territory by handing out a few stiff body checks.

School Hoop Jamboree Set

All eight teams in the Greater Victoria Senior High School Boys' Basketball League will be in action this Friday and Saturday in a League Jamboree at Central Junior High gym.

The teams will play each other in a series of 15-minute games enabling coaches and fans to assess players. There will be no official winner of the two-day event which runs from 7 to 11 p.m. Friday and continues Saturday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Admission each day is 50 cents for students and 75 cents for adults.

St. Margaret's will join Oak Bay, Mt. Douglas, Mount View, Norfolk House and Victoria in the Vancouver Island high school girls' field hockey championships Friday and Saturday.

St. Margaret's got the final Greater Victoria area berth for the Island tournament, which will be played at Lansdowne Junior High School, when Norfolk House won by default from Reynolds in the last league game of the season Tuesday.

The default left Reynolds in seventh place, one point behind St. Margaret's, and boosted Norfolk House to a third-place tie with Mount View.

Choosing a diamond was the first decision we made together. We wanted to be sure, so we went to Sears.
John and I have so many plans, so many things we want to do together. Right now we're just beginning to get started. We wanted the confidence that comes from having all the facts.
That's why we chose my diamond at Sears. We got more real information than we would have at most jewelers. And we know just what my diamond is worth, because it came with a Certificate of Appraisal from an independent gemologist. It's right there, in black and white, and Sears will stand behind it.
Oh yes, it also came with their 6-way guarantee, that includes free sizing, free refinishing and tightening, and a Life-Time Trade-In policy.
We know this is one diamond that's as good as it's supposed to be. With the papers to prove it.

Gov't Takeover of AAU?

WASHINGTON (WP) — Amid cries of governemtnal encroachment, officers of sports organizations governing U.S. amateur athletics have ticked off a list of complaints with a senate bill that would stip the groups of much of their power.

the bill, hammered out chiefly from proposals by Sens. John Tunney (D—Calif.), James Pearson (R—Kan.) and Marlow Cook (R—Ky), is aimed at substantially reforming U.S. amateur sports, both at home and in international competitions.

While the group's representatives told the senate commerce committee that somebody should do something to reform amateur sports, virtually all were opposed to the pening "Amateur Athletics Act of 1973." The athletes themselves were the few in favor of it.

The bill would establish a presidentially appointed U.S. sports board to charter amateur athletic associations, create the foundation to give $50 million in matching grants to promote amateur sports, and provide for special investigation of them, particularly as they relate to Olympic competition.

The bill, which specifically exempts interscholastic and intercollegiate sports from controls, also calls for more representation by athletes and forbids the parent group from holding the franchises of more than three sports groups.

The bill "contains much that is dangerous and counterproductive . . . (It) is an unwarranted interference with the private sector of American life," said Ollan Cassell, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) which would be affected by the bill's passage.

Olympic diver Micki King and Olympic long-distance runner Ken Moore, representing the athlete's advisory committee to the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC) said their group had voted overwhelmingly in favor of the bill.

In response to a question from Tunney, Moore said that the NCAA had unsuccessfully pressured him to sign a letter to the senators withdrawing his support of the bill.

Calling the present system a "repository of incompetence," Moore added, "in the end, this matter comes down . . . to a question of trust . . . we simply cannot any longer sustain our faith (in it)."

Alan Chapman, NCAA president, was not present when Moore testified and could not be reached for comment.

In his testimony, Chapman said he would prefer adoption of a bill introduced by Sen. Robert Dole (R—Kan.) that would establish a short-term Olympics study committee and a board to preside over the re-organization of the franchise holders for a specified period of time.

Chapman also said he thinks that the department of health, education and welfare should oversee any restructuring and not a U.S. sports board.

Robert Kane, exectuvie director of the USOC, said his group favored a bill introduced in the house by Bob Mathias, former Olympic decathlon competitor, now a Republican representative from California, which calls for mandatory arbitration of interorganizational disputes.

The bill would establish the American Arbitration Association (AAA) as the arbiter of all complaints; provide for a bill of rights for athletes and bar recognition of any organization that interferes with athletes and coaches in international competitions.

Russians Bow From Cup Play

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The International Soccer Federation (FIFA) announced Tuesday the Soviet Football Federation has pronounced its final refusal to play its deciding World Cup elimination return match against Chile as scheduled in Santiago. It was made plain this meant the Soviet Union has been eliminated from further Cup play.

The terse FIFA announcement quoted the cable from the Soviet organization who "confirm their refusal to play the game in Chile."

The FIFA referred to Rule 22 of the World Cup saying if a team refuses to report for a match it "shall be considered as having lost and the match awarded to their opponents, further that such a team shall be excluded from further participation in the competition."

The Soviet refusal ended a tug of war between the world soccer body and the Soviet federation over the venue of the game. Chile and the Soviet Union played to a scoreless tie in their first match in Moscow in September.

The Soviet Union, in apparent protest against the military overthrow of the pro-Marxist regime of the late Salvador Allende, later said it could not come to Santiago "in view of the situation" and asked FIFA to pick a neutral Latin American site.

FIFA cabled the Soviet organization Monday asking for its final word and told reporters here the choice of Santiago will not be re-considered. The Soviet reply, which arrived Tuesday afternoon, said "we regret that FIFA did not follow common sense and reconsider its decision."

Buckwold, 57, a former mayor of Saskatoon, was appointed to the Senate two years ago Sunday.

SANTA MONICA — Actress Elizabeth Montgomery, 37, filed Tuesday for divorce from William Asher, 48, producer of her television show Bewitched.

The actress, daughter of actor Robert Montgomery, asked custody of her three young children and alimony for herself and support for the children. She cited "irreconcilable differences." The couple married in 1963 in El Paso, Texas.

LONDON — An official war history today described Britain's most decorated military leader, Field Marshal Lord Montgomery of Alamein, as arrogant and bumptious and a man who did not command the trust and affection of his fellow commanders.

The official history of Britain's Second World War campaigns in the Mediterranean and the Middle East said Montgomery lost friends but he won battles.

WASHINGTON — State Secretary Henry Kissinger has turned down an invitation to accept the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize in person "because of the pressure of business in a world beset by recurrent crisis."

In a letter to the Nobel Peace Prize committee in Oslo, Norway, Kissinger named United States Ambassador Thomas Byrne to accept the honor in his place during ceremonies Dec. 10.

Kissinger said that, although he cannot attend the ceremony, "I would hope and consider it a privilege, should you so wish, to visit Oslo at a future appropriate date to deliver the lecture which I understand is customarily given by laureates of the Nobel Peace Prize."

MIDLAND, Mich. — Victory Compton, a Freeland Township farmer, went to check his farm surplus Tuesday and found he didn't have any.

The Saginaw County sheriff's department said someone apparently stole Compton's 4,500 pounds of navy beans, worth an estimated $1,500, with the help of a big truck and a bean elevator.

It was the fourth such incident in a month.

CALTANISETTA, Sicily — Baker Luigi Bocca found a dividend in his bunch of bananas — $3,120.

Bocca returned the banknotes to fruitseller Salvatore Carciofolo who said he had absentmindedly put Boccas' pound of bananas in the plastic sack in which he earlier had hidden his own bank deposit.

A hospital spokesman said the 55-year-old singer's condition was unchanged. He added that she will remain under observation. She was reported "resting comfortably."

Miss Bailey collapsed in her dressing room and the tentative diagnosis was exhaustion.

TURIN, Italy — Police Tuesday said an opera singer from Moscow's Bolshoi Theatre has applied for political asylum in Italy.

They said Renata Babak, 38, a mezzo-soprano, had been scheduled to perform in Milan with a Bolshoi troupe in the Serge Prokofiev opera Simeon Kotko, and applied for asylum at the Turin police headquarters.

GWYNN ISLAND, Va. — Malcolm Forbes, publisher of Forbes Magazine, ended his cross-country balloon trip Tuesday with a landing in the shallow waters of Chesapeake Bay.

The 54-year-old publisher started the trip in Coos Bay, Ore., on Oct. 4. It was believed to be the first transcontinental balloon trip.

PHILIPPINES SHUT OFF AIR COOLERS

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand Marcos has ordered all Philippine government offices to turn off their air conditioners in a further attempt to ward off an energy crisis.

The temperature in Manila today averaged 75 degrees.

Marcos also told all government offices to stop non-essential usage of petroleum, and urged private offices to observe the same measures.

Vesco Pays Bail, Police Watching

NASSAU, The Bahamas (UPI) — Police reported fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco under "intensive surveillance" at his villa today, free on $75,000 bail to await a hearing on a U.S. request for extradition to face fraud charges.

Vesco, under indictment by a federal grand jury with former Nixon cabinet members John Mitchell and Maurice Stans, was arrested Tuesday at his plush villa in Nassau. The extradition hearing was set for next Tuesday.

Magistrate Emmanual Osadebay set Vesco's bail at $75,000. Although the 36-year-old financier paid it and went free, police sources said he would be kept under "intensive surveillance" until Tuesday's hearing.

Vesco was arrested on an indictment charging him with defrauding $50,000 from the International Controls Corp. of Fairfield, N.J. — a firm he once controlled.

Rap Brown Cleared of Charges

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (WP) — Charges of riot, inciting to riot and arson, pending against black militant leader H. Rap Brown since a 1967 riot in Cambridge, Md., were dropped Tuesday by Dorchester County state's attorney William Yates.

The tall, thin Brown — wearing a red bandanna on his head and keeping a toothpick in his mouth — then rose in the heavily guarded courtroom and quietly pleaded guilty to failing to appear here for trial in 1970 on the Cambridge charges.

Thus the six-year legal battle between the former leader of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) and Maryland prosecutors ended. Brown's lawyer had unsuccessfully demanded that Brown be tried on the Cambridge charges in order to clear himself, but the decision to drop the charges was made by Yates.

Howard Couny circuit judge James MacGill sentenced Brown to one year in jail on the failing-to-appear charge, which had been changed from a felony to a misdemeanor. The sentence was made concurrent with time Brown already has spent in prison in New York after being convicted of an armed robbery there last year and does not add anything to Brown's New York sentence.

Carl Broege, Brown's lawyer said dropping of all the Cambridge charges proved the defence's contention there never was a solid case against Brown and Cambridge officials had "used Brown as a scapegoat for their own evil."

Yates said in an interview after the hearing the deaths of two key witnesses since the riot would have made it more difficult to convict Brown, but that his decision to drop the charges "would have been very different" if Brown were not already in prison.

"What do we have to gain? Times are changed. Things are different," Yates said.

The sudden end of Brown's long fight with Maryland prosecutors came after a half-hour conference of opposing lawyers in the chambers of Judge MacGill. The case had been moved from Dorchester County, where Cambridge is, three years ago at Yates request.

Hi-C Eludes False Ad Charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. federal trade commission today dropped all charges of false advertising against "Hi-C" fruit drinks, ending a three-year case once regarded as a major part of a government crackdown on advertising.

By a 4-1 vote the FTC dismissed allegations Hi-C misrepresented the nature, nutritional value and content of its fruit drinks. The original complaint, first proposel in September of 1970, contended Hi-C was not high in vitamin C compared to natural fruit juices, and was not "unqualifiedly good" for children.

But the commission said today it was unable to find "persuasive evidence" the Coca-Cola Co., and its advertising agency, the Marschalk Co. of New York, promoted Hi-C as the equivalent of fresh orange juice. The fact that natural orange juice is high in vitamin C, it added, does not prevent another drink from claiming to be rich in that same vitamin.

The Hi-C case, and a second one concluded earlier this week involving "Wonder Bread," were both part of a more intense scrutiny of advertising begun during the reign of former FTC chairman Miles Kirkpatrick. The FTC staff lost both cases, however, when they were tried within the agency's legal channels, and largely lost a second time when both were appealed to the full commission.

In both cases former commissioner Mary Gardiner Jones, a frequent consumer spokesman who has since left the FTC but who was still a member when the decisions were made, filed vigorous dissents.

"The commission opinion displays a gross naivete and begs the real question when it reasons that consumers will not be misled by the ads because they understand the difference between fruit juices and fruit drinks," she wrote. "Obviously ads for Hi-C were designed to blur this difference. . . ."

Blaze in Hand

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — After battling high winds and below-freezing temperatures for three days, firefighters have contained a blaze that charred 7,650 acres of Ponderosa pines in the Coconino National Forest. The fire, believed caused by an illegal campfire, blackened an area roughly five miles long and two miles wide.

CIVIC ELECTION '73 . . .
AND THE SCHOOL TRUSTEES

. . . In the City Area

Two new candidates and four incumbent trustees are running for seats on Greater Victoria school board in the Nov. 17 election.

They are:

Peter Bunn, 50, of 888 Linkleas, contractor.

Bunn is school board chairman and has been on the board longer than anyone else, 12 years.

More co-operation from the new NDP government with the school district is a major reason why he decided to run again, Bunn said.

The board is now doing some "extremely interesting" things in co-operation with the provincial government, he said, and he thinks his experience can be of value.

Seeking his second term on school board, Graham advocates the community school idea to attain maximum use of school facilities, and more aid for children with learning disabilities and physical handicaps.

He wants school taxes removed from property and more emphasis on teaching self-esteem, ethics and good behavior.

Daphne Temple, 1243 Richardson St., widow.

Seeking her third term on the board, Mrs. Temple says student councils should have a more meaningful role in schools and should be encouraged.

She says parents "have simply got to take more interest in the schools" and says schools may need a parent advocate or ombudsman that parents may approach with queries or problems.

Dr. Harold Knight, 4190 Glendenning Rd., management consultant.

Knight, a four-year veteran of the board, supports financial reform of the school board budget and better communication within the school district and with other educational groups.

He says he will continue to encourage greater public participation in decision-making in education through home and school associations and community schools. He is chairman of Camosun College council.

Philip Perry, of 1151 Palmer Rd., director of a counselling and teaching program for delinquent youths at the youth attendance centre.

Perry says schools must have facilities for early detection of children with learning difficulties and for teaching life skills.

Parent-teacher associations must be revitalized, he says, and schools become centres for community development and personal growth. In his present job, he says, he has often dealt with "some of the most tragic shortcomings of the school system."

Ray Ferris, 44, of 4124 Longview Dr., supervisor of community development for the human resources department in the capital region.

"Parent power" is Ferris's platform.

He says parents should be evaluating and planning the education of their children, should participate in evaluation of teachers and principals, and should help teach children with learning disabilities.

"Parents are usually the best experts on their own children," says Ferris.

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — The state house and senate transportation committees have approved the first step toward experimental use of jet hydrofoils in the state ferry system.

The action will allow the highways department to seek a preliminary grant from the federal urban mass transit administration. A permanent grant would be sought later.

The committees must approve any purchase of vessels by the state.

Assistant highways director Hollis Goff said the legislature has authorized $2.8 million of the $4.4 million total needed for purchase, and the funds are contingent on federal matching funds.

Goff said he expects federal approval of a demonstration grant to pick up most of the difference.

. . . AND FOR THE SAANICH BOARD

ARMSTRONG

DOYLE

CLAYARDS

Saanich school board chairman Rubymay Parrott is running unopposed in North Saanish ward in the upcoming municipal elections, but two other incumbent trustees are being challenged.

Armstrong, a six-year veteran of the board, says "we need more painleess procedures for dismissal of incompetent teachers,'" to avoid the "expensive hassles" that now occur.

He advocates continued expansion of vocational programs, and teachers salaries which depend largely on competence rather than on degrees and experience.

Doyle says he thinks more can be done for the special problems of both bright children and slow learners in the school.

He suggests forming a pool of specialists in areas such as community services, art and physical education to visit schools in the district. He says he believes in discipline but not corporal punishment.

ANN FOERSTER, 508 Senanus, housewife.

Trustee for the past two years, Mrs. Foerster says she wants to continue her efforts to provide for a good basic education, development of positive individual interests and values, the most efficient use of the tax dollar, and greater community involvement in schools.

She is chairman of the planning educational directions committee of the board.

TED CLAYARDS, 49 of 1217 Mt. Newton Crossroad, civilian personnel administrator and training officer for defence department civilians.

A former Central Saanich alderman, Clayards wants an expanded counselling and guidance program to help students choose a career.

He wants better management of school board affairs, and more emphasis on teachers teaching their professional subject, and a school board that concentrates on policy and leaves administrative details to district staff.

Evans Closure Bucked by IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — International Woodworkers of America Tuesday asked the provincial government to investigate the impending closure of a Vancouver forest products company.

Syd Thompson, president of Vancouver Local 1-217, said if Evans Products Co. Ltd. insists on closing down, the B.C. Government should expropriate its other operations and timber rights in the interior of the province.

Evans said Monday it was closing its plywood plant. President Mark H. Gunther said the company does not have tree farm licences on the coast and buying logs on the open market has become uneconomic.

He said company efforts to obtain tree farm licences from the government have been unsuccessful. Closure is expected to be completed in December.

Thompson sent telegrams to Premier Dave Barrett and opposition party leaders protesting the closure.

He said the company has sawmill, plywood and shingle mill operations in the interior.

"It almost appears that they have pursued a deliberate policy to expand in the interior and abandon operations here," Thompson said.

He conceded it is difficult to get logs on the open market and that the company has problems, but insisted it still could be a viable operation.

The company has said it will attempt to offer as many of its employees as possible the chance to move to its interior operations and also will work with Canada Manpower to assist in finding alternative jobs for workers.

Vancouver and District Labor Council Tuesday passed a resolution to petition the provincial government to keep the plywood operation open "by whatever means necessary."

Justice Wilson Adjourns

VANCOUVER (CP) — J. O. Wison stepped down Tuesday as chief justice of the British Columbia Supreme Court with a word of advice to young lawyers.

The grey-haired native of Nelson, who retired the day before his 75th birthday, spent much of his last day as chief justice greeting fellow judges and friends.

Looking back over a career in law which began when he was called to the bar in 1922, Chief Justice Wilson said young lawyers should never lose sight of the fact they are students of the law.

He said lawyers in today's affluent society may find little effort is needed to build up a large clientele, but nevertheless hard work is still needed to practise law.

Wilson, whose father was a county court judge in the Kootenays, served in the armed forces during the First World War, returned to the University of B.C. and articled with a Vancouver law firm. He was chief justice for 10 years.

Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, who has served as a Supreme Court judge and judge of the B.C. court of appeal, was sworn in today as the new chief justice.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 20-year-old girl was convicted of shoplifting Tuesday despite an admission by her younger sister that she — not the accused — was the guilty person.

In what Judge F. S Green called "an issue of credibility," Barbara Anne Barry, 460 Kipling, was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation.

The charge was laid Sept. 20 after Simpson Sears security officers found a $10 wallet tucked in the lining of her coat.

The accused denied knowledge of the wallet and in a sudden twist of events her 15-year-old sister told provincial court she had placed the wallet in the coat while both shopped in the store that evening.

Two security officers testified they had followed the sisters and saw the younger sister conceal the wallet.

Green, however, said if the security officers' testimony was correct it would be "very difficult to argue" the accused didn't know what her sister was doing.

"It's an issue of credibility," he said adding he couldn't "persuade (himself)" the evidence of the security officers was false.

"I believe the accused did have knowledge (of the theft)," he said in finding her guilty.

Green dismissed an application for discharge.

"Shoplifting is endemic in the city and must be dealt with in that light."

A $400 fine and a warning "if it happens again you will have to go to jail" were given by Judge William Ostler to Rogert Leslie Dyer, 29, of No. 3, 516 Admirals, who pleaded guilty to impaired driving Monday in the 4000 block Interurban. Dyer admitted to a prior conviction on the same charge in July 1972.

A 17-year-old who told the court he had been smoking marijuana since he was 14 was placed on six months probation after pleading guilty to possession of hashish.

Luc Pierre Frechett, 21, of 1527 Amelia, was fined $50 after pleading guilty to stealing a sheet of plywood from a construction site in the 800 block Pandora Sunday night.

The accused said he was drunk at the time and "didn't know what I was doing."

Brewers Joining Teamster Union

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — International Brewery Workers Union voted Tuesday to merge with the Teamsters Union.

A Teamsters official said the vote by about 500 IBW delegates meeting here was "overwhelming."

Each delegate represents IBW locals that have a total membership of about 40,00 in the U.S. and Canada.

Teamsters official Charles Klare, said the merger, taking effect by the end of 1974, will end more than 70 years of membership rivalry between both unions.

TOILET PAPER PANIC BUYING

TOKYO (UPI) — Scare buying of toilet paper in Japan came to an end Tuesday after the government and the paper industry convinced the public that rumors of an impending shortage were unfounded.

For the last week crowds had thronged daily around the front doors of supermarkets, waiting for opening time, when they would rush to the shelves and buy every low-priced roll of toilet paper in sight. Only the most expensive brands were exempt from the panic.

Asthma Drug Blamed In Death of Driver

CALGARY (CP) — Doctors said today a controversial drug used to treat Asthma is "very suspect" in the death of a 19-year-old taxi driver Tuesday.

The driver had been taking isoproterenol, currently sold across the counter in Canada but soon to be restricted to use under a doctor's prescription.

The man who had been taking the drug collapsed in his home early Tuesday and was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

"He had been a patient of mine for 1½ years and was in the habit of taking the stuff although I never prescribed it for him," said the man's doctor, who would not permit use of his name or the name of his patient.

"I told him not to use it and his father tells me he also told his son not to use as much as he was.

"I'm convinced that this drug is very suspect in this death — but it is very difficult to prove. The man must have been buying the drug from a local drug store."

Coroner Dr. L. A. McKercher said he is not planning to hold an autopsy or inquest into the death. He had spoken to the man's doctor and both agreed that an examination would show nothing.

Dr. McKercher said two weeks ago it is possible that people are dying from abuse of the drug without the cause of their death being realized.

Doctors say isoproterenol, also called isoprenaline, is used to enlarge the bronchial tube, part of the air passage to the lungs. It also increases the patient's heart beat rapidly.

If taken in excess, it can lead to irregularities and possibly to death, doctors say, it is not dangerous when taken in correct doses and is good treatment for Asthma, they add.

220 JOBS WENT UP IN SMOKE

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Pockets of fire continued to burn today at Formpac Canada Ltd. following Tuesday's $5 million blaze that destroyed most of the company's plant.

Fire Chief Charles Townson said it was difficult to get at the pockets because of fallen walls and other debris.

Portions of the building remained standing today. The shipping area appears to be intact and hydro transformers do not appear damaged, said the fire chief.

The office area was not touched by fire but smoke and water damage was extensive.

Representatives of the provincial fire marshal's office were studying the ruins to determine the cause of fire.

Management officials were attending a meeting of employees called by the Textile Workers Union of American to discuss the workers' future. About 220 hourly-rated and salaried staff are out of work as a result of the fire.

Canada Manpower and Unemployment Insurance Commission officials also were attending the meeting.

Hydrogen Touted As New Jet Fuel

OTTAWA (CP) — A new aircraft fuel, hydrogen, may help you travel between Vancouver and Halifax in less than an hour in coming years, suggests a University of Toronto aviation expert.

I. I. Glass, assistant director of the university's Institute for Aerospace Studies, wrote in a recent issue of the Canadian Aeronautics and Space Journal that hyydrogen is the key to hypersonic transport (HST) — aircraft travelling at three to 10 times the speed of sound.

Prof. Glass said that hydrogen "will yield spectacular performance." It provides about three times more energy per pound than jet fuel, greatly increasing the range of aircraft.

And: "It leaves no noxious emissions or solid particles to pollute the atmosphere."

The fuel can also be used to cool important parts of the engine or aircroft structure.

Tests indicate hydrogen would perform well in HSTs carrying 300 passengers at speeds of 2,100 to 7,000 miles an hour while jet fuel and methane would not, Prof. Glass said.

Another plus for hydrogen is that existing fossil-fuel resources, such as oil, are being used up rapidly.

It has otner advantages. It would allow aircraft to fly at higher altitudes reducing the effect of sonic booms. And hydrogen woud cut takeoff thrust reducing engine noise.

Prof. Glass said the main program facing hypersonic planes is the severe heat created by high speeds. Several proposals were being examined including a hydrogen cooling system.

"The advantages of this type of HST are great enough to warrant its development in the future, probably as a military aircraft first," he said.

Former A-G Opposed Chicago 7 Trial

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ramsey Clark testified Tuesday he informed "all officialdom" while he was attorney general in 1968 that he did not think there was enough evidence to bring the Chicago Seven to trial.

Clark, testifying at the contempt trial of the seven and their attorneys, also said he refused a request to wiretap some of the defendants early in 1969 before the Democratic national convention.

Clark was on the stand for several hours despite prosecution objections that events leading up to the 1969 conspiracy trial had no bearing on the contempt citations issued during the trial and would not excuse the defendants' raucous conduct.

U.S. District Court Judge Edward Gignoux said he believed the testimony would be irrelevant, but would allow the defence to present it anyway since there is no jury in the case.

Clark said the request for a wiretap in 1968 was the first contact he had with the Chicago Seven case, but he was in constant contact with events prior to and during the convention, which ended in bloody street fights.

Marysville 14 Free On a Technicality

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Fourteen persons charged with a $1 million drug smuggling conspiracy were freed temporarily Tuesday on a technicality.

They are being re-charged, however, with the consent of the federal government.

Defence counsel Sid Simmons said the consent of the federal attorney-general was necessary before proceedings could be instituted against aliens arrested in Canadian territorial waters.

He is representing 11 of the accused, including six Americans.

A total of 20 persons were arrested on two boats including the converted minesweeper Marysville off Quatsino Sound on the West coast of Vancouver Island. A cache of 1,000 pounds of hashish and marijuana was later found on the shore.

Crown prosecutor John Halprin told the court Tuesday that Quatsino Sound is a body of water and not the land around it.

Judge James Bartman then granted stays of proceedings.

Halpern said he had received the consent necessary to lay new charges.

All were charged with conspiracy to possess hashish for the purpose of trafficking and 10 were also charged with conspiring to import hashish into Canada.

Charged are Alexander Derenzy, 38, Richard Wlliam Burgess, Frank Comarmy, 30, Denny Wilcher, 24, George Steven McDonald, 49, all of the United States; Ralph Stanley Carpenter, 26, and Kenneth Henry Carpenter, 27, both of North Vancouer; John Colin Thomson, 21, of Vancouver; Brian Edward Lewis, 21, of Nanaimo; and Andrew George Dumyn, 31, of Quatsino Sound.

Time Bomb Disputed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Indian Affairs Department officials have indirectly denied a charge that a house that burned at Lytton was a wooden time bomb.

Fred House, president of the British Columbia Association of Non-Status Indians, made the charge Monday after six persons died in a weekend fire on the Lytton reserve.

Lytton RCMP said Tuesday that Indian Affairs officials has shown them the specifications for the house. They noted that the specifications included fire retarding factors required by the National Housing Act.

Tots Terrorized: Trustee

SURREY (CP) — Surrey school trustee Betty McClurg says a gang of elementary school students has been terrorizing other students, beating them with lead pipes and pelting them with rocks.

She told the Surrey school board, after a meeting with parents of six children who had been beaten, that complaints to school officials had been dismissed.

The incidents at the school, which she refused to name, have been going on for two years, she said.

The school board ordered superintenlent Jack Evans to launch a full investigation into the allegations.

"The children's lives have been hell on earth for the last two years," McClurg said.

The problem did not appear to be widespread, but she wanted an investigation "to make sure it isn't happening in other schools."

It appeared, from discussions with parents, that about 24 students in grades four through seven were terrorizing other children on their way to and from school.

About 12 children had been victimized.

Parents who complained were told by the principal and vice-principal that they were to blame for the incidents because they had been overprotective of their children, the board was told.

CP Line Cleared

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The CP Rail mainline through the Fraser Canyon has been reopened and traffic is moving normally. Eight coal cars from a CP Rail freight train went off the tracks Saturday between Lytton and North Bend. There were no injuries.

VANCOUVER (CP) — City Council Tuesday agreed to auction off Mayor Art Phillips' official car, a 1968 Cadillac, after the mayor noted it had been driven on only six official occasions since January. From now on, when the mayor needs official transporatation, he'll rent a limousine.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edward Posen of Winnipeg, founder and president of Host-Rent-Car, charged Tuesday that a deliberate pressure campaign by United States rivals in the car-rental business is preventing the Canadian firm from operating in Canadian airports. The federal government appears to be aiding and abetting the campaign of his rivals, he said.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor has declared all telephone poles in the Okanagan "hot" as the result of a strike by more than 500 telephone workers against Okanagan Telephone Co. This also affects poles that carry both Hydro and telephone installations, the federation said.

SURREY (CP) — The school board has approved a provisional budget of nearly $36 million for 1974, an increase of more than $8 million over this year's budget.

VANCOVER (CP) — An application questioning the authority of National Parole Board chairman George Street to hold office was dismissed in British Columbia supreme court Tuesday after the crown questioned jurisdiction of the matter.

Sweet 'n' Sour Carrots

10 medium size carrots
½ cup seedless raisins
1½ cups boiling water
1 tsp salt
½ cup lightly packed brown sugar
¼ cup butter
½ tsp salt
1 tbsp lemon juice

Wash, peel and slice carrots diagonally. Place in a saucepan; add raisins, boiling water and the 1 teaspoon salt. Cook, covered, until carrots are crisp tender, about 20 minutes. Drain thouroughly. Stir in brown sugar, butter, the ½ tsp salt and lemon juice. Bring to boiling point, reduce heat and simmer gently, stirring often until carrots are glazed, about 20 minutes.

The Challenge Is Now

Speaking directly to the present generation of gainfully employed women "who are young, eager and extremely knowledgeable," Sylva Gelber director of the women's bureau, federal department of labor, tossed out a direct challenge last Sunday.

A challenge that, if accepted, could lead to the equality that, more and more, is becoming a priority with all working women.

It was at a breakfast meeting in the Empress Hotel arranged by Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, to mark beginning of Business Women's Week, a yearly event sponsored across Canada by the club's national federation.

Present were members from Victoria, Sidney and Oak Bay BPW Clubs, representatives of other women's organizations and six young women who are competing in a career woman's contest (also a part of Business Women's Week) to be held in Newcombe Auditorium at the provincial museum, tomorrow night, commencing at 8 p.m.

The time is now, Miss Gelber said. The challenge is also now.

Gainfully employed young women must set their options and follow them through to successful conclusions. They must insist on the right to employment and advancement on the basis of ability and performance — not on sex preference.

Speaking directly to the young career woman contestants (a nutritionist, a policewoman, an elementary school teacher and three secretaries) and through them to others of their generation, she said "if you believe you have the qualifications, then push ahead . . . don't settle for secondary positions."

Today, women make up over one-third of the labor force. Yet, only four per cent are in senior administrative and policy-making positions.

"Don't accept that percentage," she urged. "Don't be satisfied with it. Don't be brain-washed into thinking men must have the top positions."

Reason often given for not advancing women into top appointments is the risk that they will eventually opt for marriage, a home, and children.

Marriage is "no ticket to security today," Miss Gelber warned. "You only need look at divorce figures to know that."

The gainfully employed woman of today must be ready to "land on her own feet." She must never cease to strive for equality.

"Sex ghettos" must be eliminated. Like those in medicine and related professions "where not more than 10 per cent of doctors in Canada are women, while in the nursing professions nearly 100 per cent are women."

In the past women predominated in the teaching professions. Now, the pattern has changed. "There has been an influx of men and women hold secondary positions."

Speaking briefly of her own generation, Miss Gelber pointed to "the depression years of the thirties, the forties with their aftermath problems of war, and the fifties with their "great influx of war babies."

Don't make the same mistake, she urged today's generation. "Work for training on the job in business and industry . . . for increased entry of women into professional fields . . . for better educational opportunities and for the right to advancement on merit."

Then she concluded — "your future . . . and indeed the future of Canada lies in the way your generation of gainfully employed women cope with their jobs and positions."

KEEP SALADS IN FALL FARE

By HILDA BEASTALL

Just because November is here is no reason to forget about raw salads for lunch or supper. All kinds of vegetables are still in the garden or in storage; if you must buy, the vegetable and fruit displays are full of ideas too.

Choose mainly what you already know and like, but sometimes try a new combination.

Apple, Celery and Raisin Salad: Wash McIntosh apples thoroughly, cut into quarters to remove cores. Dice, and sprinkle at once with lemon juice to prevent loss of vitamins and discoloration. Mix with equal quantity of finely chopped celery stalk and leaves. Add a tablespoon of yogurt to each serving. Sprinkle a tablespoon of raisins over the top.

Tomatoes, Chives and American Cress: Scald ripe tomatoes, slip the skins off. Slice, and arrange in overlapping circle around plate; sprinkle with chopped chives; fill center with cress. Use yogurt dressing with dash of paprika and few grains of brown sugar, or honey.

Pear, Nuts and Wensleydale Cheese on Lettuce: Arrange green lettuce on plates; two pear halves (canned or fresh), filled with finely ground cashew or brazil nuts; crumble the delicately flavored cheese over all; moisten with a little pear juice; few grains of nutmeg grated over all.

Purple Cabbage, Pineapple and Walnuts: Arrange finely shredded cabbage, top with chunks of canned or fresh pineapple; sprinkle tablespoon chopped walnuts over each serving. Use yogurt with a little brown sugar and lemon juice as dressing.

Cottage Cheese, applesauce, Chickweed and Violets: A mound of chopped chickweed tips; a half cup of cottage cheese; top with McIntosh applesauce; sprinkle with sweet violet flowers and buds.

No dressing needed on that one.

Seedless Green Grapes, McIntosh Apples, Green Cabbage: Line the plates with finely shredded green cabbage; mound with grapes and diced unpared apples drizzled at once with lemon juice to prevent loss of vitamins and to preserve whiteness. Serve with yogurt, sprinkled with brown sugar.

Any one of these salads in large enough quantity makes a meal for an active adult not doing heavy labor. Grated carrot, turnip, winter radish and parsnip are alternatives, each adding its own distinctive flavor.

Yogurt (plain) as a dressing is capable of taking any herb as a flavoring—chopped chives, mint leaves, parsley, chervil.

By adding a few crushed frozen raspberries or blackberries you make a dressing for a fruit salad.

A whole cup of yogurt (this should be home made for real delicacy of flavor) in a cereal bowl makes a satisfying complete lunch just be adding the spoonful of cooked green beans, peas, broccoli, squash and, or, cauliflower left from previous day's supper. Sprinkle with nuts or cheese of your choice.

All these suggestions are salads of a sort; and they are all good food, yet economical and easy to prepare.

Usable Toys Sought By Inmates

The inmates of William Head Institution have expressed to The John Howard Society a desire to repeat their highly successful Christmas Toy Recycle Project, which originated in 1972.

Devised by the inmates themselves, this project is a scheme whereby usable toys donated by the public are renovated, then distributed as Christmas gifts to inmates' children at a party in December. Should there be a surplus, toys would be given to the Native Friendship Centre and Victoria Self-Help Society.

Children will be able to make their donations at a matinee performance of Black Beauty, 11 a.m. at the Fox Cinema, Quadra at Hillside, November 17th, when the price of admission will be a minimum of one usable or new toy, preferably not plastic. Theatre doors will open at 10 a.m.

Other contributions may be deposited in the marked barrels which will be placed in the Mayfair Shopping Centre at Woodwards, Hillside Shopping Centre, and the T. Eaton Company in mid-November. Or donors may take toys to The John Howard Society, Room 214, 1951 Cook Street, Victoria. Home pick-ups may be arranged by phoning June Young, project co-ordinator, 386-2714.

Nurses Asked To Feed Will

OTTAWA (CP) — Nurses should try harder to make elderly patients more cheerful so they can maintain the will to live, a health-team conference was told here.

Old patients near death are often made to feel useless, an attitude that makes recovery in hospitals from such illnesses as cancer extremely difficult, said Virginia Barckley, a nurse consultant with the American Cancer Society.

"The value of the physical care and the emotional support nurses give to patients and their families can be incalculable, yet so often our response has been hurried withdrawal or determined cheerfulness."

In the past nurses have responded to the excitement of some aspects of medical care, said Miss Barckley.

'Middlescents' Need Help Of Employers

NEW YORK (AP) — Middlescence, it is claimed, is a crisis period that calls for special understanding by employers. It is a traumatic, sometimes debilitating change of life that hits men between ages 35 and 55.

If the corporation doesn't know how to deal with middlescence in its midst, says the American Management Associations, it might find itself "drained of crucial managerial resources," because the midelescent is a troubled man.

Add the word to the vocabulary that describes corporate management, a group so thoroughly studied, analysed and labelled that one wonders how further studies can do more than create more labels and phrases.

Once the middle management men who are prone to middlescence were called bureaucrats. Now they are likely to be called technocrats, a word popularized by John Kenneth Galbraith, the Canadian-born Harvard economist and litterateur.

A technocrat is the product of technology and specialization, and he is a member of the technocracy, the amalgam of specialists, scientists, engineers and technicians found in most large corporations.

No one technocrat can move a corporation; it takes the merged energies of many of them to produce a decision or other result. The individual is subordinated, which is frustrating enough.

The disease of middlescence, if it actually exists, probably has its origins way back when the young man joins the company, full of hope and ambition. He impresses management, and soon he is on a fast track.

Remember that phrase "fast track." All young men want to get on it, because it means they have been marked out for quick ascendancy through middle management.

The fast track rider enjoys life thoroughly for a while, and probably a long time. But he sometimes gets derailed, disillusioned, dispirited. By middle age he might not look ahead anymore but, instead, reflect wistfully on life.

Such a frustrated man, we are told by Auren Uris, author of The Frustrated Titan, subtitled The Emasculation of the Executive, may dissipate in extra-technical ways.

If that doesn't get him expelled from membership, or if he doesn't fall victim to middlescence, he might find himself tied to the technostructure for life by the golden fetters.

What are they? Says Peter Drucker in The Age of Discontinuity, they are the pension plans, stock options, delayed compensation schemes and the like that bind a man to the company, that make it impossible for him to leave.

Terrible, isn't it? . . . until you reflect that the ties that bind, that Drucker says are to be viewed "with grave suspicion," are made of dollar bills, a fitting reward for anyone who has faced so many perils, including dreaded middlescence.

Women Allowed On the Buses

LONDON (AP) — Women have been given the go-ahead to drive London's red double-decker buses, a job hitherto reserved to men.

A meeting of the London busmen's union leaders decided with an overwhelming majority that women should be given equal opportunities with men.

Already 3,000 women work as "clippies"—conductors on London buses.

The decision comes as an acute staff shortage has hit the capital's transport services. Some 4,000 jobs are open.

Nutrition Problems Outlined in Survey

OTTAWA (UPI) — A large number of Canadians are overweight and suffer from iron deficiency according to comprehensive study released Tuesday.

The Nutrition Canada survey, conducted by the Department of National Health and Welfare over the past three years at a cost of more than $1 million, concluded that there are serious nutritional problems in Canada.

The study found that "a large proportion of Canadian adults are overweight" and there were "iron deficiencies in large numbers of Canadians of all ages."

Protein deficiencies were found in "some pregnant women and some children" and shortages of calcium and Vitamin D were identified "in the diet of many infants, children and adolescents."

The survey also found "some evidence of Vitamin C deficiency in Eskimos and, to a lesser extent, among Indians."

In addition to overweight, blamed on overeating and "a sedentary life style," the study found that there were high cholesterol levels among many adults in Canada.

A surprising finding was the deficiency of folic acid, a B vitamin, in a large numbers of Canadians.

The survey said this shortage, along with the widespread iron deficiency problem, should be "viewed with concern."

The study does not recommend specific policies for government such as a subsidized school lunch prgram, but it sets out six "priorities" for action:

- "Strengthening the government regulatory role in ensuring that the Canadian food supply is nutritionally adequate.
- "Developing effective programs by government and industry to inform and motivate the Canadian public to realize the value of nutrition.
- "Placing adequate emphasis in nutrition-education programs regarding the concerns and vulnerability of certain segments of the population.
- "Emphasizing responsibility of the individual in adopting sound eating habits.
- "Gearing the training of health professionals to meet the nutritional needs of society.

The survey did not include detailed breakdowns of statistics for various regions.

dear abby

Mom as a Censor

DEAR ABBY: I can't quit thinking about what I did today, and I've got to tell someone about it. If you consider it wrong, I won't do it again.

I became suspicious, and opened a letter my 17-year-old daughter received from her 19-year-old cousin who is in the service, stationed in a foreign country. It was full of explicit descriptions of sexual practices he said he had been indulging in—some I never even knew existed. I tore up the letter before I finished it. It was nauseating.

He also asked her to bake him some brownies with "grass" and send them to him without a return address on the box. I know "grass' is marijuana, but I never knew she had access to it.

Although I fully trust my daughter, I would shield her from the knowledge of such sexual practices as her cousin described. I am glad she will never read such trash, but I feel guilty about opening her mail.

Don't I have some rights as a parent to protect my daughter from unwanted, unwelcome information? Should I feel anxious about what she hears of âbnormal sex practices? I lived all my life without this knowledge and still feel complete. She is the typical all-American girl, and I want to keep her mind pure and unadulterated. Am I wrong?—Confused.

DEAR CONFUSED: No one (parent or not) has the right to open another person's mail, and then destroy it. If the lines of communication had been open between you and your daughter, you wouldn't have to resort to such acts to find out what kind of dialogue she has with her cousin. Judging from his letter, your daughter probably knows much more about sex than you think she does.

Even the most protective parent can't "shield" her children from the real world. All you can do is teach your daughter by daily influence and example what YOU think is right, moral and ethical, and let her make up her own mind.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old virgin and proud of it. My problem is whether to remain a virgin. Half the guys I talk to want virgins for brides. The other half want girls with experience so they know what's going on when they're honeymooning. What do you think?

Another problem: One night my boy friend and I were sitting in his car making out in front of my house. We weren't doing anything indecent, but a nosy neighbor told my mother about it, and now she won't let me go out for a month.

Can you help me? — Miss No Name.

DEAR MISS: Stay sweet as you are. And endure your penalty like an obedient daughter. And don't ever make out in a parked car again. It's dangerous in more ways than two.

Prostitution Boom Tied to Loophole

ROME (Reuter) — Close to Rome's ancient walls, flames flicker round the bare thighs of young girls waiting by the roadside at night.

Attracted by the bonfires, drivers slowly cruise past the huddled groups of two or three. Some stop ,while others move on to the next fire.

The girls, many of them in their early teens, light the fires to keep warm as winter sets in. But, even more, the flames display their charms in the dimly-lit streets.

The scene is the same in Milan, Turin and other major cities in Italy, where prostitution is a booming industry.

Prostitution is allowed by law, and now a kind o ftrade union—the Italian League for the Defence of Prostitutes—has been launched in a welter of publicity.

The embryonic union, set up by a government emcused public attention on the growth of prostitution.

Miss Sciascia, post office worker and mother of a 16-year-old girl, was suspended from work and then reinstated after proposing the establishment of legal brothels, or "Eros Centres," like those in West Germany.

Sociological surveys have given Italians a jolt by reporting that 38 per cent of all prostitutes started plying their trade between the ages of 14 and 16, while 11 per cent took to the streets when they were between 11 and 13.

The boom, ironically, got under way after a crusading ex-schoolmistress and Socialist senator pushed a bill through parliament closing down Italy's 717 state-controlled brothels i n1958.

The reform, known as the Merlin Law after Senator Angelina Merlin, seems to have backfired. The state-licensed brothels have gone, but the number of prostitutes has more than quadrupled.

Even though prostitutes and male transvestites openly line streets such as Rome's fashionable Via Veneto, police have their hands tied.

itself, prostitution is not an offence. Even accosting normally results in only brief arrests and ineffectual fines under a legal provision against "people who in public places make invitations to debauchery in a scandalous or offensive manner."

The state, said Rome law professor Raffaele Juse, "has virtually no powers to hold back prostitution today. . . . The prostitute is untouchable if she has her (identity) documents in order."

work through newspaper advertisements with wording such as "expert masseuse, Thousands of prostitutes elegant, refined atmosphere."

The network of "masseuses" operating as call-girls, makes i t difficult for anyone wanting a genuine massage.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By WALTER ALVAREZ

Many people ask me to explain to them about anemia. In order to answer them, I have to know whether they mean primary (pernicious) anemia or secondary anemia. AN means without, and HEMIA refers to blood, so anemia means literally, lack of blood.

Primary anemia is sometimes called pernicious anemia because in the old days, before we had a treatment for it, it killed probably everyone who was born with a tendency to it. In these cases, something wrong can be found with organs, like the liver, that form the blood, and then, the red blood cells are poorly formed. An expert, with microscope, can generally recognize at a glance deformed cells in a stained smear of blood.

Fortunately, today the person born with a tendency to primary anemia need no longer die, because we now have a good treatment, with Vitamin B12. A tiny amount of this, given once every month, usually will keep the person in good health.

There are several types of primary anemia, and many types of secondary anemia. In secondary anemia, the person is usually losing blood from somewhere. Curiously, some people can have a decided secondary anemia without many symptoms.

For example, a big, husky ranch wife came to see me at the Mayo Clinic. On looking at the results of her blood tests, I discovered that she had only about 50 per cent of her hemoglobin, or red coloring matter in the blood, which carries oxygen to the tissues, and hence is most important.

I immediately said to the woman, "You must be bleeding terribly and constantly from somewhere in your body." And she said, "Yes, from my piles; I have terrible piles." This woman showed so well how a person can be badly anemic without showing any of the usual symptoms of secondary anemia, such as weakness in the knees, or lack of a good sense of balance, or lack of a feeling of strength. She maintained that she was as husky as she had ever been and was taking care of a family plus a number of cowboys.

A common cause for secondary anemia in some women is "flooding," or a too heavy menstruation, or also in men, a bad stomach ulcer, or a cancer.

In some cases, it is essential to the life of the patient to find a cancer and to operate to remove it. For instance, I learned an important lesson from a dear student of mine who was a fine physician. One Sunday he went to a picnic and there, while opening a can, the can-opener slipped and tore a hole in his finger. As the wound bled, my friend said to his wife, "Look, this is the thinnest excuse for blood that I ever saw. I should say that it is only half as red as it should be."

Next day in a laboratory, he did find that he had only half of the usual amount of hemoglobin, and when they X-rayed him, they found what was to be expected—a big cancer of the cecum, the first and widest part of the bowel.

My friend immediately had surgery to remove the cancer, and fortunately, he has remained perfectly well. But the reason I tell the story is that he, like the ranch wife, had only 50 per cent of hemoglobin and no symptoms of weakness or illness of any kind.

Obviously, the worst possible thing a physician can do is to get from the laboratory man a diagnosis of a secondary anemia and then let his patient go without finding out from whence he or she has been losing the blood. In many a case, especially in persons past 50 or 60, the cause is a bleeding cancer, and naturally, as I have said, the person's life then depends on having the tumor quickly removed.

I myself am an example of a person who hasn't a normal amount of hemoglobin, and never feels any symptoms from that. I work usually long hours a day, seven days a week without feeling tired, and I seldom have more than 70 per cent of hemoglobin. I would be extremely foolish if I were to take an iron tonic without first making sure that there wasn't any blood leaking from somewhere — which there is not.

Sometimes the taking of some iron helps, but in other cases, iron has no effect.

Each year over 5,000 Canadians lose their lives in traffic accidents and 200,000 more are injured. These accidents result in $1 billion worth of property damage!

The 20-page booklet "Nine Lives" contains much practical advice on how these losses of lives and property can be reduced.

One way to avoid injuries is to insist that every passenger wear a safety belt and to make sure that small children travel in properly constructed car seats and not on their mother's lap.

In addition, the booklet suggests several ways to avoid fatal injuries. Since prompt action can save lives, everybody should be familiar with basic first aid measures.

To avoid a crash, keep your car in good condition. Pay special attention to the lights, windshield wipers, tires, suspension and steering mechanism.

But safety depends not only on your car and how carefully you drive. It also depends on the road system. According to this booklet, computer-controlled traffic systems can decrease rear-end collisions by up to 25 per cent.

The booklet also urges that if you drive past a multi-vehicle collision, to maintain your speed. Slowing down could aggravate the accident.

Squeeze Play Catches Ralph the Rented Man

It will cost you $35 an evening and most escort agencies will rent you a man or woman willing to do anything as long as it's legal and moral.

Lots of would-be customers hope for more, but Dorothy Halliday of Adrian's Executive Escort Services Ltd., says "sex is absolutely out . . . our hostesses and escorts just aren't available for that."

Ralph, the rented man, knew he had problems when he showed up at a party in his tuxedo and everyone else was in jeans.

Then he noticed a big bruiser glaring at him and muttering threats.

"Who's that?" Ralph nervously asked the girl he was escorting.

"Oh, that's just my boyfriend," she replied. "I hired you to bring me here so I could make him jealous."

That's one of the hazards of the profession. "It gets to be hard work," concedes Ralph (not his real name), a bachelor part-time actor who accepts escorting jobs about twice a week "because I'd rather be dining in a high-class hotel than some hash-house."

There are more than 100 men and women in Toronto working for a dozen or so agencies.

ROBERT BOESE didn't learn to talk until he was nine years old, but the experience has made him an expert in sign language. Dr. Boese, now a medical sociologist at the University of British Columbia, demonstrates a sign.

Nine Years of Silence Bring Later Benefits

VANCOUVER (CP) — When Robert Boese was growing up on a farm in Saskatchewan, he didn't learn to speak until he was nine years old.

It wasn't because of sickness or learning difficulties, but because his parents were both deaf and the absence of neighbors didn't allow him to learn that people could, indeed, communicate by speaking.

Instead, the Boeses all conversed in sign language—the only form of communication Boese knew for the first nine years of his life.

Now Robert Boese is Dr. Boese, a medical sociologist in the University of British Columbia faculty of medicine and his early training in sign language has made him an authority on the subject.

Sign language, Boese said, is a unique language, just as English is different from Greek and Spanish is different from French.

What he calls "native sign language" has a grammar all its own, he said, which might be considered strange. "But then, you don't speak French with English grammar."

"A parallel can be drawn with the blacks and Chicanos in the United States, who speak what educationists call non-standard English," Boese said.

"In the 1950s and 1960s, teachers tried to correct them, then researchers went in with tape recorders and studied the grammar. They concluded that the grammatical structure and the way blacks and Chicanos expressed themselves was nothing more than a dialect."

Boese said non-standard English now is being taught in some big-city schools, and there are even textbooks available.,

Learning sign language, like acquiring Dutch or Chinese, opens one to a whole new range of experience, he said adding that even for people who can speak, sign language is an aid to communication.

"The deaf help us hearing people to understand what communication is all about," Boese said.

"You can tell a lot about a person, for example, just by shaking his hand. Yu can know the meaning of a smile. You become more receptive and have so much more insight into relationships.

"We all use non-verbal communication. We all see and all use visual information.

"The deaf have much more to tell by their visual information. They are very skilled, very adept."

But Boese said there is a lingering prejudice against sign language, with the result that deaf or handicapped children are discouraged from learning it.

"We penalize children who don't come through with speech. Deaf children will never have speech like a hearing person. The fact that sign language is different doesn't mean it's deficient—we must all accept that fact.

"To some hearing parents who have deaf children, sign language is a negative—not allowed. They go to extremes in some schools for the deaf in that they allow no gestures.

"You can't say there is just one way for a deaf child to communicate. They don't need to learn mechanically, they have their natural thing. The deaf communicate in signs, touch, smell and body sense far more than the hearing and talking child."

The beauty of sign language is its flexibility, Boese said.

"Deaf people of different nationalities and cultures don't need an interpreter to talk to one another. They may use their space (the length hands are held apart in making signs) differently.

"They teach each other their signs and then they do what they like to do best—talk for hours and hours."

Buses Help French Study

TORONTO (CP) — A 65-mile, two-hour trip begins the school day for 18-year-old Suzanne Desjardins of Aldershot, who makes her way from a community west of Toronto to attend Metropolitan Toronto's first publicly-supported French-language high school.

But it's worth it, says the Grade 13 student, one of 600 enrolled at Etienne Brule High School in north Toronto.

"It is important for Canadians to know the two official languages," she says. "Gradually French-speaking residents of Ontario are getting the opportunity to retain their language."

Like Suzanne, 140 students spend at least two hours a day on buses from Burlington, Georgetown, Peel County and Oshawa for the chance to study in French. Only three live close enough to walk to the $2.5-million school which opened in 1969 with about 200 students.

Despite the transportation problem, Etienne Brule — named after the first white man to reach the present site of Toronto — is becoming one of the major French-language educational and cultural centres in southern Ontario.

The 70 per cent of the student body with French as their mother tongue "knew they were French but really didn't know what that was," says school principal Lionel Remillard.

At Brule, they have the opportunity to study French authors and get a taste of French culture through dramatical and artistic presentations imported from Quebec.

The remaining 30 per cent of the students come from homes where French is not the spoken language. But all are required to have a working knowledge of French before being admitted.

The experiment is one way of counteracting French-English friction, which has developed larely through school systems outside of Quebec neglecting the French fact, says Mr. Remillard.

If more schools had taught French "as a living language — the singers, the writers, the theatre — and as a part of Canada, the French-English situation would not have developed," he says.

The great interest outside of Quebec in French as a working language and in French culture has also contributed to the new spirit among Franco-Ontarians.

"In the spring we have employers lined up at the doors trying to hire our graduates, Remillard says. "Our commercial graduates command excellent salaries now but I am happy to say that the great majority of our students go on to university or community college in either Ontario of Quebec."

The school also has plans to open the school's 5,000-square-ty. Already some French-language associations hold their meetings there and a much-expanded adult education program is under way.

The next step will be to open the school's5,000-square-foot library and resource centre to the public.

FBI File a Poser In Ford Hearings

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. House Judiciary Committee plans to begin confirmation hearings on vice president-designate Gerald Ford Nov. 15, but committee Democrats are embroiled in a dispute with the justice department over the availability of the FBI file on Ford.

Justice decided, and the Senate Rules Committee agreed, that only the chairman and senior Republican could read the FBI's 1,700 pages of unevaluated data it has collected on Ford, the House minority leader.

This was explained as a compromise to meet the needs of Congress for information and the need to protect the confidentiality of the raw files.

Democratic members of the house commitee rebelled against this last week, saying each member needs to read the files to make an informed judgment on Ford's nomination. Acting Attorney-General Robert Bork rejected their request that the files be made available to all committee members.

Though Ford has been one of their colleagues for 25 years, the liberal-dominated Democratic side of the House committee does not plan to rush through his nomination with only a perfunctory glance.

Several members have drafted long lists of questions on his views of the presidency.

After a nearly two-hour meeting of committee Democrats Tuesday, Chairman Peter Rodino (Den—N.H.) said he will discuss the FBI files with Bork today and press for making them available to the entire committee. Rodino said he has refused to read the files himself until the issue is resolved. The committee has received other investigation reports on Ford, including one by the General Accounting Office (GAO) the investigating arm of Congress.

Rodino said he would not delay the hearings if the FBI files remain restricted, but said that "whether we could conduct the thorough investigation needed under those conditions is another matter."

Pressed both by Republicans and Democratic leaders for expeditious action on Ford, Rodino said the committee will hold hearings Thursday and Friday, Nov. 15-16, and on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday before Thanksgiving, even though the house plans to be on recess that week.

Rodino said he expected the hearings would take "at least" one week.

Ford will be the lead-off witness as he was before the Senate Rules Committee last Thursday.

In response to criticism of slow action, Rodino replied that while the senate committee had only Ford's nomination before it, House judiciary must also simultaneously gear up for an impeachment inquiry of President Nixon and consider a bill to create an independent Watergate special prosecutor.

Speaker Carl Albert has been pushing Rodino, because until Ford is confirmed Albert would become president if the office became vacant and he does not want to appear to be going slow for possible personal gain.

He said he was getting word that Ford's nomination wouldn't reach the house floor until Dec. 15.

Rep. Trent Lott (Rep.—Miss.), a freshman on the judiciary committee, accused Rodino of "dragging his feet" on the Ford nomination.

Rep. Jerome Waldie (Dem.—Calif.), a leading advocate of Nixon's impeachment, proposed that the president withdraw Ford's nomination, nominate Elliot Richardson and then resign so Richardson could become president.

Dog Tags Found

KEARNS, Utah (Reuter) — They have been lost nearly 30 years, but Pte. Noel Ericson is about to get back dog tags lost fighting during the Battle of the Bulge in the Second World War. A German family working the ground near their home found the metal identification tags and mailed them to Ericson, now superintendent of streets in South Salt Lake City.

Kremlin Unveils New Tank

The Soviet Union put its military might on display today and unveiled a new airborne tank (above) giving Russia the ability to fly a mobile armored force to trouble spots around the world. The new tank, along with troops and missiles, paraded through a rain-swept Red Square to mark the 56th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution. Soviet leaders watched the parade from a vantage point atop Lenin's mausoleum and used the occasion to call for a peace settlement in the Middle East. Western experts said the lightweight tank was the only new weapon in the parade. The sources said it would significantly boost the firepower of Soviet airborne units.

SUPERTANKER SCUTTLED

SANTA CRUZ de TENERIFE, Spain (UPI) — Rescued crew members of the Golar Patricia said Tuesday three explosions touched off huge fires and caused the sinking of 216,000-ton supertanker—the largest ship ever lost at sea.

The ship sank within an hour, according to its Norwegian captain Harald Stormo. It split in two before going down, crew members said. The Spanish navy said the only casualty was a Spanish seaman who died of burns.

Stormo refused to discuss what caused the blast, although one seaman believed fumes in empty tanks were ignited. Stormo described the evacuation of the 43 crew members as "orderly" and said there was no chance to save the ship.

The crew, 30 of them Norwegians including Stormo, were picked up by the Spanish ocean liner Cabo de San Vicente.

Crew members tried to fight the flames, but were ordered to take to lifeboats when it became clear the supertanker could not be saved, they said Tuesday.

Seaman Jose Escuela, a Spaniard, said crew members had just taken a lunch break from cleaning one of the ship's tanks when the first blast "gave the boat a terrific jolt and started a fire in the foreship. There was utter confusion. There were new explosions."

Fighting Flares In Indochina

Times News Services

SAIGON—Heavy Communist shelling of the sprawling Bien Hoa airbase 15 miles northeast of here Tuesday has fuelled official speculation that the expected dry season offensives may have begun.

Elsewhere in Indochina there were also signs of renewed warfare.

—In Cambodia rebel troops ambushed a column of 1,200 soldiers and civilians trying to flee a besieged town Tuesday night, killing or capturing more than half of them in one of the fiercest battles of the war.

—In Saigon the Viet Cong said government planes today bombed Loc Ninh, their administrative capital 75 miles north of Saigon, "striking at people while they were at market."

—Also, North Vietnamese infantry and tanks stormed a government outpost in the central highlands, apparently driving out the defenders, the South Vietnamese military command reported today.

The base, if actually lost, would be the third government base to fall to the Communists in three days of fierce tank, infantry, air and artillery fighting in the southern central highlands.

Despite the step-up in hostilities Western diplomats in Saigon for the most part warned against attributing too much significance to the attacks.

Some pointed out that while the Communists seem to have prepared for a general offensive with a steady infiltration of troops and weapons to the south since the January ceasefire, there has not yet been any hard evidence that the decision to launch an offensive has been taken in Hanoi.

The Communists, through a spokesman here, denied that the airbase attack signalled an offensive and called it a reprisal for government air attacks against large Communist-controlled areas north of Saigon.

Government spokesmen, on the other hand, said the attack was the first phase of a major offenive.

The ministry of foreign affairs rushed off a special communique denouncing the shelling as "a blatant act of war."

"The government of the Republic of Vietnam denounces before world public opinion these acts of aggression," said the Communique. It said that the shelling by "the warlike Communists, in blatant violation of the Paris agreement of Jan. 27, 1973 (clearly shows) their intention to resume their war of aggression against South Vietnam."

Light-Smashing Policeman Guilty

LAC LA BICHE, Alta. (CP) — An RCMP constable has been found guilty in provincial judge's court in this northeastern community of smashing the head and tail lights of a car he stopped.

Provincial Judge Carl H. Rolf, who heard the case after the regular circuit judge for the area disqualified himself, found Cons. E. S. Bergsma, 32, guilty of wilful damage.

After the guilty verdict, the judge granted the constable an absolute discharge which avoids any criminal record for the offence.

A senior RCMP spokesman said the incident occurred April 8, 1973 near Lac La Biche, 120 miles northeast of Edmonton, when Cons. Bergsma stopped a car driven by Isadore Cardinal, of Lac La Biche.

The RCMP spokesman said the constable had attempted to stop Cardinal for a check, but the man had ignored the flashing red light. When the car was finally halted, Bergsma broke the lights to prevent Cardinal from driving away.

The spokesman said the constable now is stationed in Edmonton. There may be a review of the case for possible internal disciplinary action.

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Robert Billyard, 26, has been sentenced to one year's imprisonment on the charge of excaping lawful custody.

Billyard was serving a life sentence for murder of a six-year-old when he walked away from the home of a prison staff member at Prince Albert while on a social pass. The one-year term is to be served before he resumes his life sentence. He was recaptured Oct. 8 at Dunnville, Ont.

SPOKANE, Wash (AP) — The province of Alberta has unveiled plans for a 4,500-square-foot exhibit on Cannon Island at Expo '74.

The province, which recntly said it would join B.C. and the federal government in exhibiting at the world's fair, said its exhibit will be a natural amphitheatre tiered with rocks and logs to seat 150 spectators and be surrounded by Canadian spruce and pine trees.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Agriculture Minister Sam Uskiw predicted Tuesday the Canadian Wheat Board could collapse within a year under the weight of the federal government's new feed grains marketing policy, which he described as "political expediency."

He repeated the government's willingness to challenge the policy in the courts to prevent it from harming the interests of Western Canadian producers, meanwhile studying the alternatives.

SASKATOON (CP) — A provincial pensioners group told the NDP cabinet Tuesday many senior citizens in Saskatchewan are forced to live on low pensions while many widows are experiencing real poverty.

A brief presented by Joe Phelps of Saskatoon on behalf of the Saskatchewan Pensioners Action Now Association also alleged many female senior citizens are discriminated against, and urged the government to:

—establish a basic pension of $300 per month;
—protect the property rights of women;
—involve seniors in planning and responsibility for programs aimed at improving their way of life;
—establish a department of senior citizens affairs;
—give financial assistance to set up a Saskatoon information centre for seniors.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Plans for a police education centre on the University of Manitoba campus were given approval in principle Tuesday by the university's senate.

The 130-member senate agreed with the plans "provided the university establish an appropriate academic program in police studies." Before final approval is given, a study will be conducted into the impact such a program would have on campus activities and into the academic and financial aspects.

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — RCMP said Tuesday an investigation is continuing into the disappearance of 33 gunny sacks containing $18,000 worth of high-grade silver concentrate. Disappearance of the 100-pound bags with the gravel-like substance was noticed last week.

Bags were stored in the open prior to being shipped to a smelter in Helena, Mont. They were from the Echo Bay Mine, Great Bear Lake.

EDMONTON (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the death of an Edmonton man recommended transport trailer land supports should be double-checked.

Klause Dykstra, 30, died in hospital five days after he was crushed against a loading dock by a trailer. The jury said a locking device designed to hold a pin that secures the land supports was not used. The pin became bent, causing the supports to slide out of their proper positions when the trailer unit was nudged by a truck, jurors found.

Lost Hunter Short an Elk, Butt of Rifle

BLAIRMORE, Alta. (CP) — When a three-man hunting party found hunter Clarence Schmidt he was short one elk and the butt of his .303 rifle and in good spirits.

"It was a rough two days out there," said the 40-year-old Calgary man who was lost for two days in the wooded Livington Range about 25 miles north of here.

"I got pretty worried at times and I don't mind saying I was scared."

He was found Monday on a forestry road north of here.

"I don't know what happened," he said in an interview from a Blairmore motel bed where he rested before returning to Calgary. "I'd walked a couple of miles in off the Kanaskis Road, saw a small elk and shot it."

"After I'd dressed it and was walking back to meet the other three fellows in the party, I realized I had lost my bearings.

Without food for the two days, it was all Schmidt could do to keep awake, he said, "and finally I just couldn't stay awake any more."

"I dozed off for about three hours and when I woke up the fire was almost out. God, it was cold out there."

He said he had walked 15 hours and about 15 miles in zero temperatures before being found.

Two RCMP officers, three forestry officers and a 13-man search party from Calgary had been searching for him.

"I got so mad on Sunday about my situation that I burned the butt of my rifle," he laughed, holding up the remains of the gun which had been "the cause of the whole thing, I guess."

"I don't think I'd ever want to go through that again. I don't think I'll be doing any hunting for the next while."

Warmly dressed and with six boxes of matches, Schmidt said he had no trouble keeping warm during the two days.

"The problem was I just kept walking abound in circles for a long time. I wasn't getting anywhere. Finally I hit the road and everything I saw looked like a truck or a car or a man. It was pretty bad. You keep hoping you did see a truck or something and it wasn't.

"I guess my wife's pretty happy — there are five kids at home."

Aleuts Shocked By 2 Temblors

PALMER, Alaska (UPI) — Two earthquakes of 6.2 magnitude on the Richter scale happened nine hours apart south of Adak in the Aleutian Islands, the Palmer Observatory reported Tuesday.

No damage was reported from either temblor but they were felt strongly at the Adak naval base, the observatory said. The first quake occurred at 11:36 p.m., Alaska time, Monday, and the second at 8:26 a.m. Tuesday.

Both were centred about 85 miles south of Adak.

Teachers 'Chalk Up' Real Estate Fortune

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twelve years ago 10 young schoolteachers gathered around a desk and agreed they could afford an extra-curricular activity.

On a blackboard, after school was out, one figured the profits to be made on land. Each teacher agreed to buy at least one $500 share and Chalk Holdings Ltd. was born with an initial investment of $6,500.

The company has assets worth $1.5 million today, including five shopping centres and hundreds of residential and commercial lots.

Six of the original 10 still are directors and nine of the 10 are still in the teaching field. The 10th is Thomas H. Goode Jr., former Liberal MP for Burnaby-Richmond-Delta and now full-time president of Chalk Holdings.

The number of shareholders has risen to 200 and the company has just made a public offering of 160,000 shares at $1.50 a share, Goode said.

The company got off to a slow start.

With the initial investment and a line of credit from the Bank of Montreal, the group bought a property in Burnaby on which they built a 12-suite apartment building.

But this was in 1961 and no renters could be found, so the 10 directors moved in.

HAD TROUBLE

The directors eventually traded their building for a 70-lot subdivision in Delta. And after what Goode called "unbelievable trouble" with financing, roads and sewers, the lots were sold for $1,400 each.

Goode said during this first shakey period, none of the directors pulled out and there was no serious disagreement over the direction in which they were going.

He said last year Chalk Holdings' land bank contained $1 million dollars worth of property.

The company has shifted from a buy-and-sell policy to a buy-and-develop thrust. It has plans for a high-rise and condominium development on a 5½-acre site in Surrey and an apartment-condominium project at Whistler Mountain, about 60 miles north of here.

The company has stayed away from rural property.

"We've always bought urban land, even though it's more expensive, because it's easier to get zoning for it.

"And now we've benefitted from this policy because the provincial government's land freeze made our holdings more valuable."

He says while the original shareholders have made "a fair amount of money" from their investment, they still regard it as more of a hobby than an investment.

NEW SOVIET 'STAR'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Siberian miners have found a 232-carat diamond, equalling the largest diamond ever found in the Soviet Union, the newspaper Trud said today.

The new diamond, named the Star of Yakutia, was found in the rich diamond fields at Mirnyy in the Yakutskaya region.

On Aug. 19, another 232-carat diamond was found in the same fields and named "50 years of Aeroflot" in commemoration of Soviet aviation day which was observed that day.

According to the Guinness Book of Records, the largest diamond ever found was the 3,106-carat Cullinan, discovered in South Africa in 1905.

ALMOST $1M IN DISPUTE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver School Board has a $900,000 disagreement with the provincial government.

This is the total of federal Local Initiatives Project (LIP) grants applied for by the school board but rejected last week by direct order from Victoria.

The board decided to complain to Education Minister Eileen Dailly, and insist the government approve and fund the projects.

Board chairman Peter Bullen said projects requested by 16 of 18 secondary schools and 71 of 77 elementary schools were involved.

The board had received a letter from J. R. Fleming, associate deputy education minister, who said over-reliance on LIP projects tended to distort proper budgeting techniques. The letter specifically singled out teacher aides as a category of LIP jobs that must be abandoned.

Bullen said Vancouver district teachers had tripled their requests for teacher aides to 300 from 100 in the grants rejected.

Study First, Airport Later

VANCOUVER (CP) — Massive ecological studies should precede any expansion or relocation of Vancouver Internatonal Airport, says the ecologist who studied the St. Scholastique, Que. site for the new Montreal International Airport.

Pierre Dansereau, who won this year's Canadian Geographical Society Massey medal for his pioneering study of the St. Scholastique site, said an equally extensive study should be done here.

Although the St. Scholastique ecological assessment was not an exact model for similar studies elsewhere, Dansereau said the study method was applicable to Vancouver.

Dansereau called for legislation at all levels of government to make ecological assessment mandatory for airports, urban development, oil tanker development, pipelines and hydro-electric plants.

"They must pass the ecological test as well as the economic test," he said.

"The time has come to contest decisions made by politicians on political ground and on economic grounds."

Dansereau said the James Bay power project in Quebec was an example of economic and political factors outweighing ecological factors.

He showed slides of the St. Scholastique study showing how plant and animal life were catalogued and considered in planning the airport there.

"There are vast areas of bog in the approximate centre of the airport."

"Through a miscalculation early in the planning a major runway was to go through this area . . ."

The study was designed "to go several steps beyond protection of the airport environment."

Effluents from two industrial plants in nearby St. Jerome were isolated and rerouted. Scattered maple forests threatened by indiscriminate farming patterns were consolidated to provide better animal habitats. And a huge buffer zone to surround the airport—for which the federal government expropriated 95,000 acres—was zoned for optimum industrial, recreatioinal, residential and transportation use with his staff's help, Dansereau said.

"It will take some time before we will know how useful we have been," Dansereau said, adding that a nine-volume report on the St. Scholastique study now is being written.

"But we have pioneered a methodology. We do have the skill in Canada to make at least preliminary assessments" of the environmental impact of such major projects as airports.

Aircraft Search Called Off

EDMONTON (CP) — A search for a single-engine airplane, missing on a flight Oct. 13 from Nelson, B.C., to Edmonton with two people on board, has ended, says an armed forces spokesman.

He said in an interview Tuesday the decision to end the search was made by national defence headquarters in Ottawa on the recommendation of the search supervisor, Maj. Wilf Gammie.

Maj. Gammie said the main probability search areas along the pilot's intended route, including the mountainous Crowsnest Pass area, have been covered several times during the 22-day search.

The search's end coincided with recent storms which have covered the area with up to several feet of snow.

Relatives of the pilot, William Dubois of Edmonton, and his passenger, Patricia Goodale of Nelson, were informed Monday and Tuesday that the search would be discontinued, said Maj. Gammie.

Although the formal search has ended, civilian and military aircraft flying over the area will be advised to look for signs of the missing plane.

The Edmonton spokesman said the search involved five to eight military airplanes as well as nine civilian airplanes. The armed forces' aircraft logged 765 flying hours, covering 97,000 square miles.

Nanaimo Handles Gov't Newsprint

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Harbor Commission has negotiated to ship newsprint from Ocean Falls through the port for a minimum of three years.

"This agreement will mean at least 25 more vessels using the port each year and, as a result, a larger work force on the assembly wharf to handle the cargoes, with more money going into the local economy," said Doug Robinson, chairman of the harbor commission.

How to Split Work, Major UNEF Problem

The support functions for the 7,000-member force will be provided by Canada and Poland and the UN military staff now has to decide how to divide the work, which might range from cooking and dish-washing to mine-clearing, between the two countries without more loss of efficiency than necessary.

Canada originally was to have provided the entire logistic support but the Security Council, bowing to Soviet demands for Warsaw pact representation in the peacekeeping operation, decided Friday to ask Canada and Poland to share the role.

UN sources said Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's staff will not be able to decide on the allocation of tasks until they have a clear idea of what role the Poles are prepared to play.

Poland has been asked to send to the UN a military mission similar to the six-man team of Canadian specialists which came to New York a week ago to outline Canadian proposals for the logistic planning. As a result of those talks, the UN already knows what Canada is able to do.

Similarly, both Canada and Poland were asked by Waldheim to send military teams to Cairo to determine there, in talks with UN military men in the field, what kind of support the force will need. The Canadian team, headed by Brig.-Gen. D. S. Nicholson of Cornwall, Ont., left Ottawa Sunday.

The Canadians have proposed that they handle headquarters administration, signals and air support, leaving ground transportation and supply functions to the Poles.

Canadian military planners are known here to be concerned that the division of work not be in a form that would lead to inefficiency, although they concede that a price must be paid when people of different languages and mechanical techniques try to work together.

UN informants said inefficiency was likely to develop, for example, if the Poles were given charge of communications while the Canadians took on the support function because each Pole handling communications would have to have a translator at his side.

These informants suggested the Poles might be given a supply role, which would include sanitation, clearing of mines, building supply roads, and maintenance, all tasks which would not require a high degree of linguistic ability.

It was considered likely that three-cornered talks between Canadians, Poles and the UN staff will develop here following the initial discussions between the Polish military mission and the UN military planners. Similar consultations are expected to take place between the three parties in Cairo.

PUBLIC MAY PAY FOR MPs' ADS

OTTAWA (CP) — Taxpayers could end up paying more than $3 million for political advertising and programs during election campaigns under proposed election expenses legislation.

Officials of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission told the Commons elections committee Tuesday that a minute's worth of advertising on the country's roughly 1,200 radio and TV outlets costs about $15,600.

Under the legislation, all stations would be required to provide 6½ hours to political parties for advertising and programs during four-week campaigns.

On that basis, total cost of radio and television election advertising would amount to $6.08 million, half of which would be paid from the public purse.

Committee discussion centred on the problems of allocating, using and paying for the time that would be given to the parties during campaigns.

J. D. Hylton, the commission's managing director of operations, agreed with Terry O'Connor (PC—Halton) that the best system for dealing with the 6½ hour time law would be through agreements between broadcasters and political parties.

But the CRTC would step in to adjudicate any dispute over differences.

During the meeting, New Democrats tabled a list of 28 amendments they intend to introduce in an effort to modify the bill.

Under them, federal political parties would no longer be able to use money from foreign sources in campaigns and candidates would only be eligible for reimbursements for a quarter of what they spent.

As well, contributors of more than $100 would have to make a declaration that the money was theirs to give, and that it did not come through them from other contributors.

$40,000 Etching Worth $90

NEW YORK (UPI) — A "valuable" Picasso found in a Queens garbage can appeared Tuesday to be a mass-produced etching that sells for $45.

Bernard Schwartz, vice-president of the Collectors Guild — a mail order graphics club — said that the authentification on the back and frame indicate the etching is the one sold by the guild since 1967 to some 1,000 members.

"There is no question in my mind that the etching is ours, he said."

The drawing of a man's face, he said, was appraised at $90, nowhere near the $40,000 value reportedly placed upon it by a Picasso expert.

Police, however, say that the work's value is unimportant to their investigation, "what we do know is that some men were fighting about it and considered it of great value."

Three men have been arrested since a Queens man told police last month that he was beaten by four men because they thought he had stolen a valuable painting from them. Police say the "valuable painting" was the Picasso etching.

It was retrieved after an anonymous caller gave police its location. No one, however, had reported the etching stolen or come forward to claim it.

Air Association Discusses Fuel

GENEVA (Reuter) — The International Air Transport Association has scheduled a special meeting of airlines in mid-December to discuss rising fuel costs following the cut in Middle East oil supplies, an IATA spokesman said. Date and place of the meeting have not been set.

Price Controls Don't Always Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baby chicks are drowned because it costs too much to raise them. Beef disappears from some meat counters. The price of a dozen eggs soars to $1. Shortages of key commodities emerge.

With these images fresh in their minds, United States consumers are discovering what many economists have been saying for a long time: Price controls don't always work.

The evidence is strong. In the first eight months of this year, consumer prices went up at a 9.4-per-cent annual rate after rising only 3.4 per cent during all of 1972.

The surge in food prices alone exceeded an annual rate of 20 per cent, pinching the pocketbooks of consumers, particularly those on fixed incomes.

The Nixon administration is disenchanted with the effectiveness of wage-price controls.

Interviews with economists both inside and outside government turned up a number of opinions about why President Nixon's control system has failed to halt the price surge. Here are some of them:

1. Like oil and water, controls and a booming economy don't mix. When Nixon slapped on controls in August 1971, the economy was sluggish and the rate of inflation, although high, was lower than it is now. Then the economic expansion got stronger, and the demand for goods put pressure on prices.

2. The controls program doesn't cover everything. Roughly one-fifth of the economy was exempt from controls which lasted from November, 1971 to January. Farm prices were indirectly controlled during Nixon's recent 60-day freeze, but are not now covered.

3. Controls caused too many bad side effects and thus prevent government controllers from going all out.

4. The inflation that has occurred this year is primarily "commodity inflation," goods traded mainly on world markets, such as food and oil. If domestic prices are held below the world price, exports pick up so fast that shortages develop at home.

5. Because the price of controllers were unable to halt the surge in food prices, there was a temptation to crack down on other sectors, leading to more distortions in basic industries.

6. The psychological impact of putting on controls soon wears off and confidence in them tends to erode the longer they are in effect.

7. Too much weight was put on controls in trying to restrain inflation. Had the administration decided sooner to expand agricultural production and clamp down harder on government spending, some of the inflation grief might have been avoided.

Experts Misread Signs

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadian government economic experts misread the signs and concluded, incorrectly as it turned out, that the economy was "faltering badly" in the fall of 1972, according to R. W. Lawson senior deputy govenor of the Bank of Canada.

As a result many "gloomy statements" were made about the growth prospects for the economy, he said when he spoke to the Regina Chamber of Commerce. A text of his address was released simultaneously in the parliamentary press gallery.

It is now clear to the central banks experts, in retrospect, that the Canadian economy was expanding strongly during 1971 and 1972. The growth during 1971 was evident at the time. But for a while it was not easy to see that the underlying economic situation continued to be strong during 1972 and into 1973.

"The reason for this is that during the autumn months of 1972—a year ago—a number of current economic indicators turned weak and made it look as if the economic expansion was faltering badly," said Lawson.

"However the expansion did not falter. On the contrary economic growth as measured by the available statistics leaps forward dramatically during the next six months, exceeding the rate of growth for any other six-month period since the mid- 1910's," he said.

The deputy governor said this experience illustrated how difficult is the job of assessing correctly the current underlying thrust of the economy. It is not enough simply to suspect what it is but it is also necessary to have sufficient confidence in the assessment to act on it and to be able to convince those affected to tolerate the action, he explained.

"In the present state of the art of economic analysis this is never easy, and it is sometimes almost impossibly difficult. One element in the problem is that almost all the current economic indicators are inevitably subject to a considerable margin of error," he explained.

The secret of good economic analysis lies in fact fully as much in knowing what current indicators to doubt as in knowing which ones to get weight to, he said.

Lawson said Canada has been living for several months in an environment that is characterized far more by shortages than by surpluses. The shortages in many cases are world wide.

All the major countries in the world have reached very high levels of economic activity at the same time. This coincidence of timing is very unusual, he said.

The widespread prosperity has generated an enormous demand for primary commodities including foods. The pressure on food supplies has been exacerbated by some poor harvest. It has also been exacerbated by the recent outbreak of fighting in the Middle East.

In Canada the labor market is also tight. In recent months there have been shortages of skilled workers as well as those who are less-skilled.

"How the recorded unemployment rate can be so high when the labor market generally is so tight is a puzzling question," said Lawson.

Meantime world wide shortages continue to generate strong upward pressures on prices in Canada. However he said it was expected there would be some over-all easing in the upward pressure on Canadian prices from external sources. A danger in the meantime is that the current surge of price inflation will get built into the cost structure in Canada, he warned.

'Help Wanted' Sign Is Out As ICBC Set to Lure Staff

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

VANCOUVER — The Insurance Corporation of British Columbia is open for business but the busiest department is the personnel office.

As of Monday there were 410 employees on staff but there are 900 more to be hired before compulsory car insurance comes into effect March 1.

"We will open on schedule all right — we have to," Norman Bortnick, general manager of the corporation, said in an interview here.

"However, we are concerned about whether we will have located all the trained people we need."

The "help wanted' sign is up for all types of office workers, particularly key punch operators for the data processing section.

The corporation also is hoping to lure an additional number of underwriters from private insurance firms.

The corporation needs about 26 more underwriters immediately.

Of the total staff of 1,300 to be hired, about 1,000 will work at the Vancouver office, the Royal Centre Tower at Burrard and Georgia. The rest will work at branch offices across B.C.

The Victoria office will hire about 25 people.

Bortnick said Victoria was never seriously considered as headquarters for the corporation because the bulk of the province's drivers are on the lower mainland and downtown Vancouver was the only area with enough office space available at this time.

The headquarters staff will be in nine floors of the building scattered between the 21st and 31st floors of the 39 storey tower.

As available staff fills up a floor, they move up to the next available floor.

The general insurance section of the corporation opened for business on October 1 and sold 2,103 policies for fire and theft insurance in the first month.

First claim paid out by the ICBC came on Oct. 6 when a Vernon family was paid $214 following a theft. There were three other claims in the first month.

Only about 20 per cent of the corporation's total business will be general insurance, however, with the compulsory car insurance dominating operations.

"With general insurance we are in competition with private industry," Bortnick said.

"It will take a long time to build up that section of the business."

Car insurance, however, is a monopoly and involves every driver in B.C. Policies will be available Jan. 2 and must be obtained by March 1, along with licence plates.

Bortnick comes to the insurance corporation from Saskatchewan where he worked in government insurance for 20 years. He was treasurer when he resigned to direct the B.C. corporation.

Bortnick said premium rates for car insurance would be announced as soon as they were approved by cabinet.

Premium rates for general insurance are already available because the company is open for business in the fire and theft fields.

An ICBC official in the general insurance department said the rates were comparable to private industry although the coverage was more comprehensive in some cases.

He said the government corporation had to make a profit but at the same time be competitive with private industry. And it had to be more aware of the need for good service than a private company would be.

He said the government corporation will eliminate small print clauses on insurance contracts and the forms will be greatly simplified.

These forms are not yet available because of the speed with which the corporation went into business. But they have high priority for the next two years.

The corporation came into existence with an act of the legislature on April 19 and by May 1 had six employees. It opened for business Oct. 1 and the number of employees grows every day.

So far only about half the space on the nine floors in the Royal Centre is used by the staff hired to date.

Among pictures on the wall of Bortnick's office is a portrait of Transport Minister Robert Strachan, president of the insurance corporation.

"I ordered it myself," Bortnick said. "Most companies have pictures of the president in offices of staff members."

Many lesser corporation officials have photographs of Strachan and other cabinet ministers on their walls, not as a tribute but so they will recognize the boss and other important personages if they come through on an inspection tour.

The pictures were first ordered for the computer department, where security is very strict.

WORK GOES ON at Insurance Corporation of British Columbia headquarters in Vancouver although there is a shortage of workers and desks. About 900 people have yet to be hired in massive recruiting drive.

Former CIA Man On Gas Study

EDMONTON (CP) — The Journal says an Economic Council of Canada employee who formerly worked for the United States Central Intelligence agency, is also working for the consortium proposing a multi-billion dollar natural gas pipeline along the Mackenzie Valley.

M. C. McCracken, president of Informetrica Ltd. of Ottawa, was identified in the Commons Monday as a former employee of the CIA.

The Journal said today Informetrica has been retained for the last year as a senior consulting firm for Canadian Arctic Gas Study Ltd., which is proposing to build a gas pipeline from Alaska's North Slope and the Mackenzie Delta to markets in the U.S. and southern Canada.

The newspaper report says McCracken's research for the pepeline consortium has been aimed at evaluating the possible economic impact of the $5 billion project.

McCracken told the newspaper in a telephone interview from Ottawa it was no secret he had worked for the CIA for two years after leaving the U.S. Army in 1969.

He said he terminated his employment with the CIA in 1970 and came to Canada to work for the Economic Council. While with the council he developed the computer model now used by the federal government to make economic forecasts.

He said the pipeline consortium was using several large econometric models of the Canadian economy to assess the impact of the pipeline project.

McCracken told the newspaper he had been employed by the CIA as an economic researcher on foreign countries* in the development of economic tools.

"I am not ashamed off having worked for them. It is the principle, and I feel the best, economic research institution in the United States."

He rejected any suggestion he might still be an employee of the CIA and said it "would not be so stupid" as to send an openly identified former member to engage in intelligence-gathering activities in foreign countries.

Israelis pray at Wailing Wall for 1854 war dead

Death Toll Shocks Israel

TEL AVIV (WP) — A wave of shock swept across Israel Tuesday night when the army announced 1,854 soldiers had died in the Yom Kippur war.

The figure was much higher than the public had feared. It represented six-hundreds of 1 per cent of the population; the equivalent proportion for the U.S. would be 126,000.

The state radio, reporting the death toll, followed the announcement immediately with David's lament in Second Samuel over the deaths of Saul and Jonathan at the hands of the Philistines:

"The beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places.

"How are the mighty fallen."

The army announcement also said the number of wounded in action and still hospitalized stands at 1,800, but a military spokesman added there were "many, many more" wounded.

Some of them apparently are in recuperation centres, some temporarily at home awaiting further treatment, some back with their units.

Israel has said that 449 of its soldiers are missing on the Egyptian and Syrian fronts. It is assumed here that some of them are dead.

Only the 1948 battle for independence, during which about 4,500 troops died, cost Israel more than last month's war.

The military command also disclosed that Egypt had slightly softened its hard-line stand on prisoners of war. A spokesman said Israel had received through the International Red Cross a list of 113 PoWs from Cairo.

Israel believes the list is incomplete, however, and no names have been given Israel by Syria, the spokesman said.

Egypt has said it will exchange no prisoners until Israeli forces withdraw to UN truce lines of Oct. 22. Israel, in a standoff, has said there will be no pullback until the PoWs are exchanged.

The command Tuesday announced three alleged Egyptian ceasefire violations reported to the UN truce observers. All were relatively minor.

He said he had "no information" on — and would neither confirm nor deny — a Syrian report that two flights of Israeli planes fired U.S.-supplied Shrike missiles at Syrian positions Tuesday in the first reported ceasefire violation by either side in the region.

Spokesmen said Israel was taking seriously reports from Cairo that the Egyptians are moving their 1st Army to the front from the capital.

But they said despite the threats of renewed war, Israel had agreed to send 50 more truckloads of water, food and medical supplies through to the besieged 3rd Army east of the Suez Canal after completing the processing of 125 trucks in the past 10 days.

Ply Plant Closes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Evans Products Company Ltd. announced Monday the closure of its Vancouver plywood plant, which employs about 270 persons, because the company doesn't have tree farm licences on the coast and therefore doesn't have a secured supply of wood. The company said the plant depends on the open market for supplies, which have become more scarce and expensive. The company will try to transfer employees.

'Packaged' Money Bylaw Runs Into Stiff Opposition

Saanich's $4,115,000 capital projects referendum should be split, mayoralty candidate Ed Lum said Tuesday.

Lum was addressing a joint meeting of the Royal Oak District Ratepayers' Association and the Northridge Community Association in the Netherlands Hall on Vanalman.

Several of the ratepayers resented the referendum being presented as a package deal, containing $3,350,000 for roads and drainage, along with $600,000 for an arena at Lambrick Park and $165,000 for an auditorium at the Senior Citizens' Activity Centre at Hampton Park.

Lum said he was "very surprised to see this referendum come out in this manner". He said he would have preferred to see it divided into "servicing the land" (public works) and "servicing to the people" (recreation facilities).

If the referendum failed "because of the way it was put to the people," Lum said he would present it agains in two parts at the "earliest opportunity" if he is elected.

Jim Robbins led the ratepayer concern:

"You're giving us a package deal, it's all or nothing," he told aldermen attending the meeting," and that for me is wrong."

Mayoralty candidate Edith Gunning said some aldermen had at first felt "public works should be separated from recreation works". She said council felt that dividing the referendum would weaken its voter appeal and council should show leadership over what it felt is essential.

Aldermanic candidate Mel Couvelier said he favored a "shopping list" approach. He said some aldermen had felt the same but had gone along with the rest of council to "maximize its (re referendum) changes" of going through. This, he said, was a measure of their integrity.

Foster Isherwood, Couvelier's opponent for the one-year aldermanic term, said council was dishonest in combining recreation and public works on the same ballot and "forcing the two on the municipality".

Wally Russell, principal of the proposed Saanich Community School, was one of the 12-man panel of speakers.

He urged ratepayers to support the $250,000 separate ballot which will be presented Nov. 17 for an auditorium at the school.

Noting the residents' concern that a proposed swimming pool close to the school had not been included in the referendum, Russell asked ratepayers not to vote down the auditorium as a "backlashing".

Ald. Alan Newberry said Russell's exposition of the "concept of the community school", presented to the meeting, was the "first time that I have heard the Victoria school district concept of a community school."

Ratepayers' fears that a 100-acre light industrial park was planned for the Glanford-Vanalman-Mann area were eased when aldermen Gunning, Bill Noel and Newberry assured them that council had made no decision nor would without full public discussion.

Gunning said council did not own land in the area and the property, in any case, was not exempt from the agricultural land freeze. Saanich had not applied for exemption, she added.

SHE'S AN 'ANGEL' on wheels — in Cincinnati, Ohio. Angel's owner, Mrs. Margo Ostholthoff, thought it would be helpful to give Angel a lift since she's expecting a family soon. Angel, according to the expression on her face, isn't too impressed.

College Exchange Approved

Camosun College council will seek money from provincial Education Commissioner John Bremer to finance three new college programs proposed by college principal Dr. Grant Fisher.

The council formally approved the request at its regular meeting Tuesday. Details were given earlier at a committee meeting.

Proposed programs are:

—An exchange between a senior college administrator and a University of Alberta college administration program faculty member for a period of time;

—Hiring one or more PhD studentsin adult education or college administration as interns to work at Camosun for a few months; and —Arranging a tour by several Camosun staff, students and councillors of selected Canadian and U.S. colleges.

Council also agreed to inform the ministers of education, health and labor it "objects most strenuously" to an apprenticeship or indenture system for nursing students. A system of apprenticing practical nursing students to hospitals has been proposed by the B.C. Hospital Employees Union.

The council gave support in principle to a proposal by the Citizens Association to Save the Environment (CASE) to hold a world conference in Victoria.

Students and faculty members of the college will be elected to regular council committees from now on, the council also decided.

Remove That Wet Mass From Tops of Plants

The moving of fallen leaves from the tops of rather flat plants is readily seen this week as an urgent job. The snow fell wetly on the leaves, then froze a little. This was followed by rain, making a solid mat excluding air from the plants.

As the sun and warmer air melts the ice and snow covering, the moisture is added to the leaves making them flatter and soggier. No longer is there any chance for them to blow away.

Suppose you have a prostrate growing Juniper pfitzeriana with broad flat branches of foliage. This perfectly hardy shrub can be badly damaged by allowing a thick pack of leaves to remain for a few weeks on the spread branches.

Air and light are as vital as moisture to growing plants; exclude any one of these necessities and the plants have trouble maintaining life.

Exclude two, such as air and light as kept out by the packing of wet leaves, you will have the moisture rotting away the tissue of the foliage beneath.

Leaves must be taken from the tops (we call them crowns) of any plants with living parts above ground in winter. These may be alpine plants such as gentian and sempervivum, ordinary rockery plants like aubrieta and phlox, or border perennials as erigeron and geum. All have green leaved shoots above ground during winter, thus are vulnerable to winter rot from any wet mass on top.

Heathers are affected too, and should be checked for fallen leaves before they inhibit the free flowering of those species due to bloom before Christmas. Their buds are already making the plants attractive.

Leaves are a fine mulch to spread over bare soil.

By sprinkling good soil over them you not only prevent their blowing away but initiate decomposition by adding soil bacteria. Not much activity can be expected during winter but a certain amount goes on in every mild spell as can be seen by the lowering in height of a raw material compost heap.

Crabapple trees, apples, hawthorns and some others are still retaining their foliage, the second crop produced after early spring loss by caterpillars. Plenty of leaves will be dropping in the next week or two.

Gather them all, especially where they fall on low growing plants. Look over the beds of primulas and wallflowers too. They need all the light and air they can get to go on growing.

An unbroken, undisturbed snow covering over plants is an excellent insulation against frost. The temperature below will remain at 32 degrees and a certain amount of air passes each way through the snow covering, thus keeping the plants healthy. If you disturb the structure of the natural snow cover, you create difficulties for the plants beneath, breaking the delicate balance of exchange.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

One of the reasons why an expert is an expert is that he has at his disposal dozens and dozens of conventional and artificial bids which he brings into use when the occasion so demands. The non-expert, unfamiliar with these tools, is forced to rely on guesswork when previously unencountered bidding situations arise.

In today's deal we have an example of a rarely-encountered conventional bid which the expert had stored in his arsenal of weapons.

♠ 5 3 2
♡ A 7 4

WEST
♠ K 4
♡ J 10 9 5 2
◊ 10 7
♣ 9 8 6 5

EAST
♡ K Q 8 6 3
◊ 8 5 3

SOUTH
♠ Q J 10 9 8 7 6
◊ A K Q J 9 4

South	West	North	East
5 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

In the hands of two experts, the proper North-South contract of five spades was arrived at in one bid. In the hands of the non-expert, in all probability a hopeless, unmakable slam would be reached. Even if, somehow, the slam were not reached, South would anxiously await the appearance of the dummy to see whether or not a slam had been in the cards.

In non-expert circles, South would undoubtedly (and correctly) open the bidding with a game-forcing bid of two spades. North, having a magnificent responding hand, would then surely push on to a slam, in either spades or notrump. As is apparent, any slam contract is doomed to defeat.

In expert circles, South would open his hand with a conventional (artificial) five-in-a-major opening bid, in this case, "five spades." An opening bid of five in a major states:

"Partner, if you have either the ace or king in my suit, bid a small slam in my suit. If you have both of these cards, bid a grand slam in my suit. And if you have neither of these key cards, no matter what the rest of your hand is, PASS!"

Thus, on the given North hand, South would open with five spades, which would become the final contract.

Quite obviously, hands such as South's do not arise very often. But, on occasion, they do come up — and when they do, the knowledgable expert is a winner and the non-expert a loser. For those who believe that "common sense" is in itself sufficient to yield the optimum result, this deal is submitted in refutation.

POLICE TRY SPEEDUP

Patrolmen issued 844 traffic citations in two days this week and that is about half the number written in a normal month.

The patrolmen weren't commenting on their action — but the city fathers were.

"I don't condone such tactics," said city manager Richard Larsen. Law enforcement that is not judicioulsy handled is no longer effective."

"It would seem this was an organized campaign to embarrass the administration," said Mayor Bart Wolthuis.

Police Chief L. A. Jacobsen said the citations were all written for valid offences, "but good discretion was not used in all cases."

"It was, in a way, their form of getting attention, but it was a poor way to do it," the chief added.

WHOLE SQUADRON SIGHTED UFO

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — At least 68 persons, including a squadron of soldiers, have reported sighting an unidentified flying object Monday over this town near the border with Nova Scotia.

"I was going to phone the Mounties but I was afraid they would think I was drinking and the whole thing would be blown out of proportion," Alexander Grant said after spotting a brightly-lit object curve around the eastern fringe of the town.

Laird MacLellan, basketball coach at Mount Allison University, was driving toward the town when he saw a brilliant light moving from the east, up the Bay of Fundy. He watched the object circle the town.

"It was definitely not a plane and I couldn't hear any noise," he said.

Others who saw the object included the entire C. Squadron of the 8th Princess Louise Hussars, on parade at the time on a hill in the town.

Officers of the squadron said they believed the object was too close to the ground to be an airplane or helicopter.

Watergate Probe of 'Dirty Tricks' Ends

WASHINGTON (WP) — The senate select Watergate committee concluded its inquiry into 1972 campaign "dirty tricks" Tuesday with the Republican minority presenting their long-waited witnesses, none of whom was able to link a single act of sabotage or espionage to Democratic candidates or their campaign workers.

Committee vice-chairman Sen. Howard Baker (R—Tenn.). who reportedly has been under pressure from Tennessee Republicans to present testimony against the Democrats, said at the conclusion of the day's testimony, "it is not our purpose to imply a connection between these activities and any candidate or campaign worker if the facts do not merit such a conclusion."

The only witness who positively connected a Democrat with a "dirty trick" — in this instance campaing literature attacking President Nixon — was one, called by the committee's Democratic majority, who had been a campaign worker for Sen. George McGovern (D—S.D.) in Los Angeles.

The rest of the day's testimony was taken up describing an Oct. 30, 1972, rally in Fresno, Calif., that allegedly was distrupted by members of the United Farmworkers, campaign literature distributed in Jewish areas of Los Angeles attacking President Nixon, demonstrations that occurred during the Republican national convention in Miami in August, 1972. and a demonstration in Boston on Oct. 31, 1972 at a Republican fundraising dinner.

The committee heard testimony from Michael Heller, 19, a student of Mount Hood community college in Gresham, Ore., concerning a leaflet distributed in Jewish areas of Los Angeles during the 1972 campaign.

The leaflet, printed in English on one side and Yiddish on the other, begins by statting that "Nixon is treyf."

Heller and chief committee counsel engaged in a lengthy discussion over the meaning of the Yiddish word, "treyf," which generally issued to connote non-kosher food such as pork or shellfish. Heller suggested that the word as used in the pamphlet had a much more "hard core" meaning for the persons at whom it was aimed, and that it was a "slimy tactic."

Another line in the pamphlet asserted. "Nixon brings the ovens to the people rather than the people to the ovens," an apparent attempt to link Nixon's Vietman War policies with the slaughter of 6 million Jews by the Nazis during the Second World War.

Heller told the committee that he was a registered Democrat who had found himself unable to support McGovern and had worked instead in Los Angeles for the Democrats for Nixon campaign. Heller said he saw McGovern volunteers passing out the leaflet in West Los Angeles and also saw large quantities of the leaflet in a nearby McGovern headquarters.

Paul Brindze, a UCLA law school student called by the committee majority, testified that he had helped mimeograph 1,500 to 3,000 copies of the leaflet without permission from anyone else in the McGovern campaign and without reading the entire leaflet first.

Brindze, under questioning by chief counsel Sam Dash, agreed that the language of the leaflet was "unfortunate" more closely before agreeing and that if he had read it to reproduce it he might not have authorized it.

Truman Campbell, a Republican lawyer from Fresno, Calif., told the committee that an Oct. 30, 1972, rally sponsored by the local Nixon reelection committee had to be cancelled when persons appearing to the United Farmworkers members disrupted the rally by heckling and jostling persons.

According to Campbell, reports filed with the General Accounting Office, the investigative and watchdog agency for congress, approximately $52,000 in funds were turned over by the McGovern campaign to the UFW union for voter registration. Under questioning by Dash, Campbell said he had no evidence that the money was used to disrupt Republican rallies or for any purpose other than voter registration.

9 IN MEMORIAM

du TEMPLE—In loving memory of George Walter, who left us suddenly on November 7, 1961.
—Sadly missed by his loving wife, Alice, and his three sons, Wally, Barry and Ronald and their families.
—There is a tie which death cannot sever.

REYNOLDS—In loving memory of a dear husband and father Herbert E. Reynolds, who passed away Nov. 7, 1972.
—Hazel and Susan.

STANCIL—In cherished and loving memory of a dear husband and father Robert Alfred Stancil, who passed away Nov. 7, 1971.
To some dear Bob, you are just a memory
To others a part of the past.
But we who loved you in life sincerely
Will love you as long as our lives shall last.
There is no parting from those we love
No distance can divide
For each day in memory's garden
We shall walk side by side
Wherever life may take us,
Whatever we may do,
The memory of the years we shared
Will keep us close to you.
—Lovingly remembered now and always, your loving wife Lillian and daughter Barbara.

STANCIL—In cherished and loving memory of my dear dad Mr. Robert Alfred Stancil, who passed away, Nov. 7, 1971.
They say that time will ease the pain,
And help me to forget,
But time so far has only shown
How much I miss you yet.
I miss your smile, your voice, your talk,
your talk,
The things we used to do,
I miss the happy times we had,
But, mostly I miss you, dear dad.
Deep in my heart, your memory is kept
I loved you too deeply, to ever forget.
—Lovingly remembered always, your daughter Barbara.

STANCIL — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law and uncle, Robert A. Stancil, who passed away Nov. 7, 1971
Down a road that's calm and peaceful
Guided by God's loving hand
Bob has gone upon a journey
To a distant, brighter land.
And although our hearts are heavy,
With the sorrow we must bear,
It helps to bring us comfort
Knowing Bob is happy there.
He is just away!
—Lovingly remembered and so sadly missed by sister-in-laws Dorothy Grexton, Mabel and Ed Stenseth and their family.

STANCIL—In loving memory of a dear brother, brother-in-law and uncle Robert Alfred Stancil, who passed away Nov. 7, 1971.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak
When all other things decay,
Our love for him, will still keep green,
And never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered always. Your loving sister, Dorothy Simms and family.

TUCKER—In loving memory of our mother Lydia who passed away Nov. 7, 1971.
Deep in the heart lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.

SAYS . . .

16' LARSON SHARK 1650
This sleek Bow-Rider is the ultimate outboard. You're going to have to see this one to believe it. Finished in rich Nassau Blue with white Tri-hull, the nylon top is Blue tint. Pure comfort for your crew of six. The Bow-rider section features a self-bailing well, full upholstery, complete bow rails, a huge beer chest, and locking beverage-bar. Walk-thru windshields. The cockpit features a teak sports wheel, speedometer, fuel and temperature gauge, full sleeper seats, carpeting, under a teak cover you'll find an ample built-in fish tank. Self ventilating bilge and pump, 18 gal. built-in fuel tank, rear lumper seats, complete stern rails (even around the motor well). Stern boarding ladder, full perimeter rubber fender. Without a doubt, you'll have the best 16' Runabout ever made!

15' LARSON SHARK 1550
So much in only 15'. This sleek tri-hull is loaded, green topsides with white hull, it also features a tinted top. Walk-thru windshield to Bow-rider, features full bow rails, completely upholstered including built-in beer chest, cockpit has carpets, sleeper seats, lump seats, padded side pockets. Built-in 18 gal. tank, self-ventilating bilge, running lights. The quietest and smoothest ride of any 15' runabout in the water!

Triple-thick HULLS
Larson's most famous feature is their sturdy thick hulls. Able to withstand the most severe punishment and give you the smoothest quietest ride you ever thought possible with a fiberglass hull.

WONDERFUL POTENTIAL
LOVELY 3 BEDROOM QUARTERS
5 STORES, 2.46 ACRES—$115,000
This is fantastic opportunity. Over 30,000 sq. ft. of commercial zoning with 155' frontage on major thoroughfare. Huge 5,000 sq. ft. building has a replacement cost of about $80,000. Full high basement under only 50%. Back 70,000 sq. ft., might be able to be subdivided off. This price includes really fine living quarters, with huge kitchen, living room, family room, or 3rd bedroom with fireplace. Also includes grocery business that needs complete revamping to supermarket stature, and food take-out operation that is closed, but must be opened immediately. You won't believe this until you see it. What a family opportunity to start hardware, sporting goods, and nursery plus a terrific grocery business. $80,000 mortgage indicated available. Trade your house in for $35,000 equity. F. WILLS at 598-3344.

68-UNIT DINING LOUNGE
RENOWNED-STRIKING DECOR
PENTHOUSE QUARTERS
This is one of the areas most striking licensed dining lounges, with a very large functional kitchen. Owners must sell due to health reasons. Second storey penthouse style living quarters are beautiful. Main level also has small office with own 2-piece bathroom, plus one bedroom self contained suite. You should really expand dining lounge into this area. Separate matching building has great possibilities. Situated on four lots with two road frontages, all zoned commercial. Good financing available, and owners will trade for apartment block or motel. Asking $179,500. F. WILLS at 598-3344.

EXTRA LOT
One of the busiest grocery stores in town is now for sale as owners are retiring. Grossing approximately $120,000 per year, and well situated on a corner lot with parking, you can't miss at the price of $79,500. Cosy 1-bedroom suite at rear of store for owners and a spacious 2-bedroom suite upstairs with private entrance. Land alone is worth close to the asking price, as there is 20,600 sq. ft., the main lot is C-2 zoned. An excellent investment in a prime area. Call Cliff Salmond at Gardner Realty, 385-7721 or 477-3626. MLS.

CORDOVA BAY RIDGE
SMALL COUNTRY ESTATE
MINUTES FROM TOWN
This is truly one of the finest built homes you will see. About 2,500 sq. ft. of quiet country living, so close to town. Huge living room with white brick, full end wall fireplace, with raised white marble hearth. Full length of living room is glass with sliding door to 12'x45' patio, and outdoor built-in barbecue. Adjacent in landscaped enclosure is 20'x40' heated and filtered pool. Formal dining room open to large kitchen, with adjacent utility area containing many, many, customized counters and cupboards. Beautiful w-w carpet everywhere. There are 3 bedrooms with ensuite master bedroom. Lovely entrance hall opens to living room, guest bathroom, beautiful library with W-W carpet, custom wood panelling, and bookshelves, as well as a full height brick fireplace and corner picture windows. With over 100 ft. roofline and wide over-hang, this is a truly elegant long, low rancher. Huge drive-in garage for up to 3 cars. Quality is evident everywhere. View of straits can easily be widened through beautiful timbers. A lovely wooded acreage, with about 1¾ acres landscaped in thousands of dollars of planters, pools, shrubs, flowers, and trees. Discriminating buyers should see this. Terms available. $125,000, firm. F. WILLS 598-3344.

YOUR OWN PRIVATE PARK
$125,500
Secluded executive home on .72 of an acre, this is an older aristocratic home of historic interest. The rooms are large, and the entertainment size dining room is offset by a chandelier, and wall brackets that could not be replaced today. If you require plenty of room for yourself, but would also like some revenue to help maintain this outstanding home; the upstairs is presently used as a private 2-bedroom suite. Sea view from upper floor. For more information, call MARJ NAPPER at 598-3344 or 383-1783. No drive-bys please.

CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF ESQUIMALT

BY-LAW NO. 1455

BEING a By-law to expropriate certain lands for recreational and community uses of the public.

WHEREAS by Section 621 (1) (a) of the "Municipal Act", being Chapter 235 of the Revised Statutes of British Columbia, 1960, the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Township of Esquimalt is empowered to acquire lands for the purpose of recreational and community uses of the public;

AND WHEREAS by Section 622 of the said "Municipal Act", it is enacted that the said Municipal Council may, by by-law, expropriate any real property for the purpose of acquiring any real property for recreational and community uses of the public, without the consent of the owners of the real property but subject to the provisions of Division (4) of Part XII of the said "Municipal Act";

AND WHEREAS the Municipal Council deems it necessary or convenient for the establishment of lands for recreational and community uses of the public to enter upon, expropriate, break up, take and enter into possession of and use of the real property hereinafter described;

AND WHEREAS this By-law, by Section 485 of the said "Municipal Act", shall, before coming into effect be published once in the Gazette and in a newspaper published or circulating in the Municipality of Esquimalt, and a certified copy thereof is to be filed in the Land Registry Office of the Victoria Land Registration District, Victoria, British Columbia;

NOW THEREFORE THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF ESQUIMALT, enacts as follows:

1. That for the above recited purpose and subject to Division (4) of Part XII of the "Municipal Act", the real property lying and being within the Corporation of the Township of Esquimalt, in the Province of British Columbia, and being more particularly known and described as Lot Two (2), Section Eleven (11), Esquimalt District Plan 391, and all the rights, title and interest thereto and therein of any and all persons whomsoever, save only Her Majesty the Queen, shall be and are hereby taken and expropriated unto the sole and only use of the Corporation of the Township of Esquimalt, forever, which may and is hereby empowered and authorized in that behalf to enter upon and into possession of and use the said real property for the said purpose.
2. That it shall be and it is hereby directed that such taking, entering upon and into possession and use of such real property shall take place forthwith after this By-law shall have come into effect.
3. This By-law shall come into effect on and from the day next following the day upon which the same is published in the Gazette and in a newspaper as above recited, or if it shall not be published both in the Gazette and in a newspaper on the same day, then on the day next following the day when it is last so published in the Gazette or newspaper, as the case may be.
4. This By-law may be cited as the "RECRATION CENTRE EXPROPRIATION BY-LAW, 1973".

PASSED by the Municipal Council on 29th October, 1973.

G. MERZ — MUNICIPAL CLERK
A. G. YOUNG — MAYOR

P.O. Box 278, Duncan, B.C.

NOTICE TO GENERAL CONTRACTORS

Stipulated Sum Contract Proposals are invited for the construction of a Swim Pool Complex at Pioneer Park, North Cowichan, B.C., and will be received by the undersigned until 5 p.m. November 29, 1973, at the North Cowichan Municipal Hall, 7030 Trans-Canada Highway (Duncan North).

Tenders will be opened at 10 a.m. Friday, November 30, 1973, at the Municipal Hall.

The work consists of an enclosed 25 meter pool plus training pool, lounge, change rooms, and related facilities.

A bid bond is required with each tender in the amount of Forty-Five Thousand Dollars ($45,000) to be replaced by a performance bond as specified within 21 days of the contract date.

Drawings, specifications, tender forms, and instructions to bidders may be obtained by General Contractors only on or after 2 p.m. November 9, 1973, at the office of Hammond, Farmer & Sharp, Architects, 715 Canada Avenue, Duncan, B.C.

A returnable deposit of Fify Dollars ($50) per set is required.

A. VANDE CASTEYEN,
Municipal Clerk.

A BUDDY weighing 3,000 pounds doesn't seem to intimidate four-year-old David Perlich, of Lethbridge, Alberta. At the other end of the rope in David's hand is Golden Nuggett, a purebred brown Swiss bull, registered as the largest bull in Texas. Golden Nuggett stands six feet high at the shoulders and is 12 feet long.

NEW BODY FOR APPEALS

Appeals for persons who do not want their land included in an agricultural land reserve will be heard from now on by the B.C. Land Commission instead of the environment and land use committee of the cabinet.

The announcement came today from Resources Minister Bob Williams, chairman of the cabinet committee, and from William Lane, chairman of the land commission.

As a result of passage of the Land Commission Act at the spring session of the legislature, the 27 regional districts in the province have been required to file plans of the land which is agricultural in their areas, land which the cabinet will designate for agricultural use only.

Because all the regional plans have not yet been filed and approved, it has been necessary that appeals affecting land use as a result of the land freeze be heard by the environment and land use committee of the cabinet.

Williams said today it is now time that the land commission itself hear the land appeals so that it can co-ordinate its planning activities.

More than 750 appeals have been heard so far by the cabinet committee.

The committee's support staff is being given over to the land commission, which will now hold periodic meetings in Vancouver to consider appeals regarding the land freeze.

Pollen Forecasts A Mill Rate Drop

Victoria taxpayers can look forward to the possibility of a mill rate decrease in 1974, Mayor Peter Pollen predicted today.

The mayor said at his weekly press conference the city's budget for next year has not been worked out in detail, but already the indications are that it will be "very good."

Pollen made a similar announcement some months ago, when he said the provincial government's action in removing the assessment limitation on commercial properties would hit businessmen with a heavier tax load but produce a saving for home owners.

The forecast at that time was for a mill rate drop of about five mills for residential taxpayers, based on current budget figures.

But Pollen said today there are other factors to account for the healthy revenue and expenditure picture shaping up for 1974.

City-owned property has been managed well with a policy of leasing rather than selling, improvements to the waterfront and other areas will be carried out at little expense to city residents and the city has been wise in steering away from "grandiose schemes" such as a combined convention-cultural centre, he said.

Research Head

F. Bryan Armitage has been appointed program co-ordinator for forest production research with the department of the environment's forestry service in Ottawa.

Armitage is currently the program manager for the forest resources research group at the Pacific Forest Research Centre on Burnside Road.

Democratic Gains Mark U.S. Voting

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Democrats scored strongly in off-year United States elections with a record-breaking statewide victory in New Jersey and municipal triumphs in New York, Philadelphia, Minneapolis and Detroit in the first national balloting since the Watergate scandal erupted.

In Seattle, Democratic Mayor Wes Uhlman won re-election, turning back a strong effort by Liem Tuai, the son of a Chinese immigrant cook who quit his job as city council president to take on the modish mayor.

When he was trailing by 5,500 votes with 38 per cent of the vote tallied, Tuai, 47, said "tomorrow, it's back to law practice for me. I'll be looking for clients."

Washington state voters rejected for the sixth time an attempt to write into the state constitution an amendment that would authorize imposition of a graduated income tax.

A referendum to reduce the drinking age in Washington from 21 to 19 also was defeated.

In an action some observers linked to a Watergate backlash, Washington voters approved a citizen initiative slashing pay increases legislators approved earlier this year for themselves and state elected officials.

—Michigan State Senator Coleman Young became the third black candidate this year to win a big city mayoral race, coming from behind in Detroit to defeat former police commissioner John Nichols. Blacks also won mayoral elections in Raleigh, N.C., and Dayton, Ohio.

—City comptroller Abraham Beame became the first Jewish mayor of New York City, easily defeating Republican, Liberal and Conservative opponents to succeed John Lindsay.

Another Court Round In Religious Row

The B.C. Court of Appeal dismissed an appeal by one faction Tuesday in a lengthy dispute over control of the Society of the Love of Jesus, but another court battle is pending.

At issue is who controls the Langford religious group, which operates an extended care hospital and senior citizens' home and has assets estimated at $1.5 million.

The opposing groups have been described as "traditional" and "modern" and Tuesday's appeal hearing dealt with a challenge by the traditional group of a Supreme Court decision last year.

That decision upheld the election of Sister Leonette Hoesing of the modern faction as mother prioress.

Hugh McMillan, lawyer for the traditional group, said today their appeal was dismissed on two grounds:

—the question at issue has been rendered largely academic because the traditionalists later launched a suit aimed at proving they are entitled to control of the society and its assets.

—the society had not been named as a party in the action, as the appeal judges held it should have been.

Because of the changed circumstances, the appeal bourt did not deal with the merits of the case.

The suit by the traditionalists, which has been answered with a counter-suit by the modern faction, will likely come before the court next year. Examinations for discovery are scheduled to start Nov. 20.

The two factions physically divided last March when the modern group moved from the priory into another building. Three of the traditional group, Sisters Mary Agnes Eaton, Mary Josephine Donovan and Mary Lucy Ford, subsequently conducted a sit-in at the priory, refusing to move out.

In June the three sit-in sisters and two others, Mother Cecilia Mary, founder of the society, and Sister Mary Julia, were stripped of their status as religious sisters by the Roman Catholic Church.

APPLICATION FOR A WATER LICENCE
WATER ACT
(Section 8)

I, Robert and Norah Erskine, of 4126 Delmar Ave., Victoria, B.C., hereby apply to the Comptroller of Water Rights for a licence to divert and use water out of Cowan Brook which flows south and discharges into Cowichan Lake and give notice of my application to all persons affected.

The point of diversion will be located at C.N.R. R/W Post O.J.B. Sec. 45, S88° 10' 50 E 4.65.

The quantity of water to be diverted is 300 g.a.d.

The purpose for which water will be used is domestic.

The land on which the water will be used is Lot 3 of Sec. 45, Renfrew within Cowichan Lake District, Pl. 31223.

A copy of this application was posted on the 8th September, 1973, at the proposed point of diversion and on the land or mine where the water is to be used and two copies were filed in the office of the Water Recorder at Victoria, B.C.

Objections to this application may be filed with the said Water Recorder or with the Comptroller of Water Rights, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., within THIRTY days of the first date of publication of the application.

Wilson Rites On Thursday

Funeral services will be held in McCall's Floral Chapel Thursday, at 3:30 p.m. for Mrs. Chisholm Wilson, an active member of First United Church, who died Monday at the age of 94.

She was the widow of Rev. D. William George Wilson, minister emeritus of First United Church, who predeceased her in 1971 at the age of 102.

Mrs. Wilson is survived by her daughter and son-in-law, Georgiana (Joey) and Charles Ossulston of San Francisco, three grandchildren, Anne, Peter and Alexandra and several nieces and nephews.

Rev. Dr. Hugh A. McLeod will officiated at the service, followed by burial at Royal Oak Burial Park.

The Last Of A Gallant Breed

Though they have never talked enough for us to really know what they went through, the men who fought for Canada in the First World War had a profound effect on Canadian destiny. They were hard and tough and ruthless and they made of their country something it had never been. Douglas How tells about our soldiers of 1914-1918 in a Remembrance Day tribute illustrated by Jim Bruce — this Saturday in Weekend Magazine.

Stuart Trueman writes about Sackville Harness — the only shop of its kind in North America turning out handmade horse collars.

CANADA HIKES REFUGEE CASH

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Canada announced Tuesday an increase of $450,000 in its contribution to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine refugees in the Middle East.

Senator Henry Hicks, member of the Canadian delegation, told the UN's political committee that the increase, which is subject to parliamentary approval, will bring Canada's 1973 contribution to $2.05 million of which $1.15 million will be in cash and $900,000 in food.

Hicks, a Liberal member of the Canadian Senate from Nova Scotia, noted that the agency's financial situation has worsened during the last year despite efforts of UN members to keep it solvent.

"It is of real concern to us that the services offered by UN-RWA are in danger of being withheld or reduced because of a lack of funds. Since nearly half of the UNRWA budget is expended on education and training, there is always the temptatoin to think that expenditures can be cut in this sector without doing immediate damage."

TANKER-AUTO CRASH on Highway 101, eight miles north of Salinas, Calif., today killed two of three people in the car but the truck driver escaped. The auto was run over by the tanker which then burst into flames.

COMET ON FILM

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The first photo of the comet Kohoutek, captured while it was still nearly 200 million miles from earth was released Monday by Hale Observatories.

The photo is believed to be the first to show the comet's developing coma — the gassy envelope surrounding its solid nucleus—and a dusty tail, estimated to be 50 million to 100 million miles long.

The photo was taken while the comet — not expected to be visible to the naked eye until the end of November or early December — was 196,230,000 miles from earth.

Conflict Charge Repeated

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men who accused former Vancouver mayor Bill Rathie of conflict of interest as long as he is a member of the National Harbors Board say nothing has changed their minds.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand said in Ottawa Rathie would not be asked to resign from the NHB or to divest himself of private waterfront business holdings.

Ald. Setty Pendakur, chairman of the Vancouver Waterfront Committee, and former Alderman Ed Sweeney, of the Vancouver Port Authority, made the charges after the NHB refused to approve a waterfront development, including a cold storage facility.

Marchand said there was no conflict of interest and "it was known by everybody" that Rathie owned Vancouver Cold Storage Ltd. long before he was appointed to the NHB.

"If it hadn't been known it would have been different," said Marchand.

Ald. Pendakur said he still believed "there is a definite conflict of interest when a man holds a position where he has the power to decide what kind of developments will be allowed by his competitors."

Sweeney said Marchand's decision left him wondering "how much of an investigation did the minister of transport make." He said he couldn't understand the reasoning that because Rathie's holdings were known, there was no conflict of interest.

Sweeney said that "developments of any kind on the west coast must depend on Rathie's recommendations," because of the four members, Rathie is the only one from the west coast.

Rathie said Monday that the NHB had not turned down a proposal by the N. B. Cook Corp. to develop a one million square foot area on the waterfront.

He said the proposal was still being studied.

Cape Breton Scot Tackles CBC Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC took the high road and Robert Muir took the low road Tuesday en route to a confrontation over the national broadcasting corporation's decision to restrict Gaelic programming in Nova Scotia.

Muir (PC—Cape Breton-The Sydneys) told the Commons broadcasting committee that the CBC decision "poses a real threat to all ethnic programming in the country."

Laurent Picard, president of the CBC, said, however, the Crown corporation's mandate is to give top priority to English and French programs within a framework of multiculturalism.

"But we are flexible," said Picard. "There is exclusion of a third language in the mandate; we recognize this."

He indicated that if Parliament approves, as is necessary, the CBC will reinstate full third-language programming for the diverse ethnic groups scattered across the country.

At issue was a decision by CBC vice-president Lister Sinclair to eliminate, over the next year, live Gaelic programming on CBC on Cape Breton Island. Music, however, is to be continued.

Muir first raised the question in the Commons Sept. 21 when he asked the House for unanimous consent to send the problem to the broadcasting committee for study.

Laughing, the Commons agreed.

The Conservative MP talked ominously of "clan warfare between the MacEachens and the Sinclairs," a reference to Government House Leader Allan MacEachen, who represents Cape Breton Highlands-Canso.

Muir was dressed appropriately when he showed up for the committee meeting Tuesday. Resplendent in MacLeod hunting tartan kilt and sporran, he topped it off with a green tweed jacket, white shirt and tie.

He winced visibly, however, when he sat in a cold leatherette-covered chair.

3 Die in Blast

SAIGON (Reuter) — Three persons were killed and 22 wounded in a bomb explosion at a restaurant in South Vietnam's Mekong delta. The Vietnamese military command said the explosion occurred on the outskirts of Ben Tre, capital of Kien Hoa province. He said the bomb was planted by Viet Cong guerrillas.

CALIFORNIA REDUCING SPEED LIMIT

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California is reducing its maximum speed limit to 65 from 70 miles and hour on some highways to cut fuel consumption, Lt.-Gov. Ed Reinecke announced Monday.

"This will save hundreds of thousands of barrels of oil a year," Reinecke told the Comstock Club, an organization of Sacramento business and professional leaders.

Rainy Respite Nearing End

PHNOM PENH (WP) — The rains have all but stopped and the stately rivers are beginning to recede. In a month or so, the vast flooded rice fields will be drying out. Cambodia's four-month rainy season respite is coming to an end.

It is taken for granted in military and diplomatic circles that the dry season will bring with it a major military campaign against the government of President Lon Nol by North Vietnamese-led Khmer Rouge insurgents.

Lon Nol, who is known for his mystical beliefs, is said to have dismissed two of his soothsayers who predicted that November would be an extremely bad month for him. But to judge by the prevailing uncertainty here, reading the omens would seem to be as good a way as any to predict the outcome of the fighting.

The once-prevalent assumption that government forces would collapse under pressure without American bombing support has been dissipated by events since the bombing was halted in August, especially the successful defence of the provincial city of Kompong Cham.

Bolstered by its modest successes, the army is conducting a new conscription and recruitment campaign that is reportedly making good earyl progress. There is no immediate threat to any of the encircled provincial cities that have been viewed as possible targets of Communist attacks. Military spokesmen say government forces are actually conducting a campaign to retake the town of Kep, on the Gulf of Siam, which along with most of southeastern Cambodia was lost in the last dry season.

In addition, American officials say Cambodian commanders have been assured that they will have enough ammunition to defend themselves, which is an important commitment to an army that relies more on firepower than on manpower or tactical enterprise.

Around the capital, Communist forces are generally being contained outside a defenseive perimeter about 20 miles in diameter, which Western experts say in the minimum distance needed to protect the city from 122mm. rocket fire.

The road from Phnom Penh to the northwestern provinces has been closed for nine weeks, but the road to the seaport of Kompong Som and the Mekong River convoy route are open, at least for now, so there is no real supply problem.

Artillery fire dominates the city's nocturnal sounds, but aside from the nervous scrambling by young men, who face a serious conscription threat for the first time, Phnom Penh's languid life goes on as usual.

By comparison with the situation in early August, when the city defence lines appeared to be crumbling, supply routes were cut and the end of American bombing was imminent, the situation today is considerably better from the government's point of view.

But for unknown reasons, the Khmer Rouge have not put the capital's defences to a real test since then. Cambodian and Western military sources believe that test will come no later than January, though they say they do not know when or in what form. Still less do they claim to know how it will come out.

"My own personal feeling," one said, "is that they will try to take the city by strangling it, but they won't succeed. The problem is, the government's success in holding it won't be conclusive and we will have more of the same next year."

"What you have now," an authoritative official said, "is a battle for recruitment. The enemy lost perhaps 6,000 men at Kompong Cham. If the government can get enough men to fill its ranks, they cannot be beaten because the other side just does not have enough forces. And if the government can hold them off this year, the prospect is for a long military stalemate."

EMBASSY ROLE QUERIED

By SIDNEY H. SCHANBERG

PHNOM PENH (NYT) — The question of whether United States embassy personnel here are acting as military advisers to the Cambodian armed forces, in violation of a congressional ban, has been brought into the open again by a critical report from the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of congress.

The 92-page report, related some two weeks ago, charged that the embassy's military equipment delivery team had gone far beyond its statutory function and had assumed duties making its members the equivalent of advisers.

The embassy denied this at a regular briefing for American newsmen. An embassy official said: "I think the G.A.O. inspectors are working from a different philosphy than we are. Their philosophy seems to go like this: The purpose of the program is to deliver military goods, aid and assistance to Cambodia but that beyond physical delivery, our responsibility should stop.

"The kind of things they regard as having a statutory or regulatory obligation to do, such as seeing that military equipment is put to good use. We feel our activities are consistent with the law."

The law, the Cooper-Church Amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act of 1971, says that no American aid "may be used to finance the introduction of United States ground combat troops into Cambodia or to provide United States advisers to, or for Cambodian military forces in Cambodia.

The G.A.O. report, prepared by a team of inspectors who spent several months in Cambodia in 1972, said that the Military Equipment Delivery Team and others in the embassy had performed such advisory functions as recommending changes in the Cambodian military structure, advising and assisting on contingency plans, providing technical assistance on logistical aspects of military aid, providing technical military assistance and information about American material and helping the Cambodia military operate its headquarters and its supply system.

"Except for not assigning advisers to specific field units, M.E.D.T. operated much the same as a Military Assistance Advisory Group does in any other country," the agency said.

The embassy does not deny that it performs the functions cited in the agency's report but disputes that these functions are the kind of advisory activity banned by the law.

Acknowledging that the embassy did make recommendations to the Cambodians on how to reorganize their armed forces, an embassy official asked at the briefing: "How are you going to know how many weapons to deliver unless you know what kind of force structure you're delivering them to?"

After news reports appeared about the embassy's role in the bombing, the standard radio frequencies used in directing air strikes were quickly changed to prevent newsmen in Phnom Penh from continuing to listen to the directions on regular commercial radios.

Of the nearly 300 employed at the embassy — there is a congressional ceiling of 200 American employees and 85 third-country nationals — approximately two-thirds have direct military functions. These are the more than 70 men on the Military Equipment Delivery Team, the more than 20 in the defence attaches office and the 85 nationals, almost all of whom work on the equipment team.

American aid to Cambodia, which has averaged about $300 million a year since the war began here three and a half years ago is almost entirely military. Although about $100 million of the total is described as economic aid, almost all of it pays for such Cambodian expenses as army payrolls. The $300 million in aid does not include the cost of the bombing, which this year alone ran at least $50 million a month and probably higher.

A-G's Plea On Bugging Turned Down

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons justice committee rejected Tuesday pleas from provincial attorneys-general for a reversal of a change the committee made to the government's wiretapping bill.

Justice Minister Otto Lang relayed the "very strong" opposition of police and attorneys-general to an amendment passed by the committee earlier this year.

The amendment would outlaw use in court of evidence obtained from an illegal wiretap, and Lang said outside the committee he considers it to be a "disaster."

Ronald Atkey (PC—Toronto St. Paul's) who originally moved the amendment, said in an interview that he considers the pleas from the attorneys-general to be the effect of a strong police lobby. They did not reflect provincial government policy.

Under the bill presented by the government almost all wiretapping is outlawed. Approval by a judge is necessary before police can intercept conversations and evidence from the interception can be used in a prosecution.

But the bill did allow use of evidence that was uncovered as a result of an illegal wiretap. In other words the intercepted conversation could not be used in evidence but if that conversation led police to other evidence, that "indirect" evidence could be used.

The majority of the committee, both Liberals and opposition members, approved the amendment that would outlaw that indirect evidence.

Tuesday, Lang gave copies of wires and letters opposing the amendment from these attorneys-general: Howard Pawley of Manitoba, Roy Romanow of Saskatchewan, Gordon Bennett of Prince Edward Island, Alex Macdonald of British Columbia, Allan E. Sullivan of Nova Scotia, Jerome Choquette of Quebec, T. Alex Hickman of Newfoundland. He said he also has an opposing wire from Justice Minister George Kerr of Ontario.

James Jerome (L—Sudbury) chairman of the committee, also passed on a letter of opposition from the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs.

A move to have a subcommittee consider the possibility of hearing representations from at least some of the attorneys-general was defeated with the Conservatives and New Democrats voting against the Liberals.

Lang said outside the committee he would probably seek to have the amendment defeated in the Commons.

"It's nothing short of a disaster," he told a reporter.

In the committee he said there were two strong objections to outlawing "indirect evidence."

- It would deny the courts "extremely relevant" evidence and because of that allow an obviously guilty criminal to go free.
- It would tie up the courts with long procedural arguments over whether wiretapping was involved in the collecting of evidence.

The minister raised the spectre of a court being unable to use such evidence as a murder weapon with fingerprints on it because it was discovered by police as a result of an illegal wiretap.

B.C. Oil Low

Times News Serrvices

Industry in British Columbia is facing a shortage of heavy oil supplies.

James Rhodes, chairman of the B.C. Energy Commission, said this winter's situation is known to be marginal — "it appears . . . it will be nip-and-tuck."

Barry Sleigh, president of B.C. Petroleum Association, said it appeared traditional users of heavy oil would be covered but there may be spot problems.

He said he was more concerned about next winter's supply, since contracts for that will be negotiated in the spring.

Council of Forest Industries spokesman Pat Hrushowy said industry users received assurances before the Middle East war that contracts would be met.

"If Canada and the United States get into a situation where neither will send oil to the other we could be in trouble," he said.

Vancouver Island mills rely heavily on California-supplied oil.

Sleigh added that B.C. should have sufficient furnace oil unless a large industry such as a pulp mill decided to switch from natural gas for heating purposes.

The energy commission, meanwhile, expects to have a preliminary report to the provincial government on oil supply, demand and price ready by Feb. 1.

However, it will be up to the government to decide whether the public will have access to the data contained in the report.

In an effort to protect Canadian consumers from winter gasoline and heating oil shortages, the National Energy Board today, rejected export applications from former cus-

Session Ending Today

The B.C. legislature will prorogue today as MLAs on both sides of the house have agreed to give speedy approval to bills still remaining on the order paper.

Only nine of 69 bills introduced during the eight-week session still have to be dealt with and Premier Barrett says Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen's administrator, Chief Justice John Ferris, will be on hand to wind up the session sometime today.

Opposition spokesmen confirm arrangements have been made to end the session and say they do not expect any stall tactics.

One of the remaining bills is a contentious one, however, setting up the department of transport and communications under Robert Strachan, the minister who has come under opposition fire recently and was cleared Tuesday of a charge by another member that he lied to the house.

Once the nine bills pass through committee stage in the house today, formal approval of third reading will be given a number of bills which were amended during the session and Ferris will be called to give royal assent to all bills passed by the House.

Thirty-two bills were dealt with Tuesday, 24 given committee stage approval and eight given second reading during the afternoon and long evening sittings.

Most of the debate was speedy as is traditional during the last days of any session but the Human Rights Code of B.C. sparked some discussion as David Anderson (L-Victoria) prodded Labor Minister Bill King for what he said were inconsistencies in the legislation.

Different sections of the bill prohibit discrimination in areas such as housing, purchase of preperty, wages and employment.

Nixon Loses Veto Battle

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — With substantial defections of Republican congressmen, the House of Representatives today over-rode President Nixon's veto of a bill to restrict his powers to wage war.

The 284-135 vote sent Nixon's political effectiveness skidding to an all-time low. The Senate planned a speedy vote on the same subject later today. It is expected to have a similar result.

The override came despite an impassioned plea by Rep. Georald Ford, vice-president-designate, to avoid the "potential of disaster" he said it represented during the Mideast crisis.

Ford argued that the bill carried "the potential of disaster for us at this juncture, to take away support from the president as he works day and night with the Secretary of State to achieve peace" in the Mideast.

"We are not out of the woods yet," Ford said. "we may be a long way from being out of the woods. I'm very concerned that to override this veto at this time could . . . ruin the president's position."

The bill would impose a 60-day limit on presidents' power to commit United States forces abroad without Congress's approval.

Its terms would empower Congress to halt the war any time during the 60 days with a veto-proof resolution. There could be a 30-day extension for withdrawal.

Supporters of the bill said their biggest override obstacles were the popularity of vice-president-designate Ford and opposition of more than a dozen anti-war congressmen.

Speaker Carl Albert was among Democratic House leaders urging the override to give Congress a hand in war commitments.

When the vote — four more than the necessary two-thirds majority — was announced, there was applause and cheering from house members.

Democrats scored big gains in off-year elections across the U.S. Tuesday. (See Page 56.)

Edge of Peace . . . Or of War?

Times News Services

Egypt and the United States said today they were restoring diplomatic relations immediately and moving toward peace in the Middle East. But an official Israeli military spokesman charged that Egypt was preparing its forces to resume the war.

Both Syria and Israel reported artillery duels along the Golan Heights today and there were minor clashes along the Suez Canal front where the semi-official Middle East News Agency said the Egyptian armed forces had been placed in an extreme state of alert.

Egypt broke relations with the United States during the 1967 Six Day War with a charge — later denied — that the U.S. 6th Fleet was flying combat missions for Israel. The resumption was announced today after Cairo talks between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Kissinger said after the talks and before leaving for Amman and talks with Jordan's King Hussein that "we are moving towards peace." Sadat told newsmen on the conference on the lawn of the presidential palace, "I agree with him."

There was no immediate reaction from Israel on the "towards peace" statements but shortly afterwards Israeli military spokesman Col. Nachman Karni told a military briefing in Tel Aviv:

"In the past hours there were a number of statements out of Cairo, some optimistic and some pessimistic, on the question of the resumption of fighting or the continuation of the ceasefire.

Senator Demands Ouster

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Veteran Republican Senator George Aiken of Vermont called today for impeachment proceedings against President Nixon, but opposed the president's resignation over the Watergate controversy.

The influential dean of the Republican miniority in the Senate said: "It is the clear duty of the House of Representatives, through whatever procedures it chooses, to frame a charge of impeachment and to set itself a deadline for the task."

If no agreement can be reached on an impeachment charge — in effect an indictment paving the way for a Senate trail—the House leaders should tell the American people no agreed charge can be found against Nixon, Aiken said.

"That is the way to begin to restore confidence," Aiken said.

Meanwhile, a White House lawyer said today that Rose Woods, President Nixon's personal secretary, will testify about the Watergate tapes she listened to and apparently transcribed.

Lawyer Douglas Parker said she probably will appear Thursday at a hearing into the circumstances surrounding two Watergate conversations that presidential lawyers say went unrecorded.

A White House assistant, Stephen Bull, revealed Tuesday that Miss Woods has had possession of eight watergate tapes since late September.

On that weekend at Camp David, Md., she was said to have begun transcribing conversations on the tapes.

Miss Woods was given six more tapes to transcribe two

Mass Slaying Claims Nine

ACAMPO, Calif. (AP) — Nine persons were discovered shot to death and strewn about a luxury ranch-style house in this small community about 30 miles south of Sacramento, the San Joaquin County sheriff's office reported today.

The mass "execution" apparently was connected with the burglary of a grocery store owned by one of the victims, who include his wife and two children, a baby sitter, her boyfriend, brother and parents.

Two young children of the Walter Parking family were found by a roomer, shot on a bed. Seven victims were found in a closet, bound, gagged and shot, and in the kitchen of the house at Victor, two miles east of Lodi.

Sheriff Michael M. Canlis said the slayings "look like the work of a madman."

"All these people appear to have been executed," the sheriff said.

Parkin, 33, and his father, operated the United Store, a roadside market.

Sheriff's deputies said the discovery was made by the Acampo fire department this morning while answering a rescue call.

Fugitives Holding 6 Hostage

WADENA, Minn. (UPI) — Two fugitives who shot their way out of jail held a family of six hostage in a farmhouse circled by dozens of law enforcement officers today but a snow storm stymied the escaper's getaway.

A light plane demanded by the runaways sat at Wadena airport with a sheriff's deputy at the controls, but swirling snow reduced visibility to less than a mile, delaying the takeoff and promised release of the hostages.

The fugitives, John Morgan, 37, and William L. Winans, 18, escaped from the county jail in this northwestern Minnesota community Monday, wounding jailer Randy Hanson. They went to the farm of Elmer Wegscheid at 6 p.m. Tuesday and have kept Wegscheid, his wife and their four teen-age children hostage while more than 50 local and state officers and FBI agents surrounded the house.

NEWS BRIEFS

$1B Added to '73 Ottawa Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — Supplementary estimates totalling just more than $1 billion were tabled in the Commons today by C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board.

They bring the federal government's intended record spending for the 1973-74 fiscal year to about $20.3 billion, and include $222 million for family allowances. The year's main estimates, tabled in February, totalled $19.3 billion.

Cracks in Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Skylab 3 launching, scheduled for Saturday, probably will be delayed five days until Nov. 15 because of cracks in all eight stabilizing fins in the first stage of the booster rocket, United States space agency officials said today.

Housing Starts Off

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said starts in urban areas of 10,000 people and over amounted to 22,013 in October, down from 22,592 in the same month last year.

UIC Rates To Jump On Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpowr Minister Robert Andras announced new unemployment insurance contribution rates today after disclosing that a deficit of $335 million is expected this year in the employer-employee account.

He also told the Commons the government is taking further steps to tighten administration of the unemployment insurance fund reduce abuses of benefits.

The employer's contribution will rise to $1.96 from $1.40. The are effective next Jan. 1.

The minister said the government has decided to increase the contribution rates because the cumulative deficit in the employer-employee account at the end of this year would be $509.6 million. That includes a net cash deficit of $174.5 million carried over from last year.

Shouting over Conservative heckling, Andras said the government is withdrawing a bill designed to cut down abuses of the unemployment insurance fund. New Democrats, who have opposed the bill as discriminatory, welcomed the announcement by thumping their desks.

DETERMINATION REALLY POLLUTES

VANCOUVER (CP)—A welded seal had to be broken open to allow an oil truck driver to pump 1,925 gallons of fuel into an unused tank which allowed some of it to leak into Vancouver harbor.

Federal environment co-ordinator Chris Hatfield said the fact the pipe was welded shut should have "told somebody something."

But a B.C. Hydro spokesman said those involved in the delivery thought the pipe was rusted — not welded — closed.

Delivery was made by Imperial Oil Ltd., to Hydro's Pacific Stage Lines Ltd. terminal near the waterfront.

The Hydro spokesman said that of the 1,925 gallons pumped in about 1,000 gallons remained in the tank. Some of the balance was mopped up on the spot and the rest got into the storm sewers and was carried into the harbor.

The spokesman could not say how much got into the sewers. The driver found two intake pipes about eight inches apart and a depot employee removed the cap from one pipe and told the driver to deliver it there, said an oil firm spokesman.

Hatfield said the department is continuing to investigate with a view to eventually laying charges.

"There was not a lot of oil, but some of the litte beaches around Stanley Park could get a good coat of oil," he said.

"This is certainly not very good for marine life — it wouldn't take very many of these things before there wouldn't be any more marine life."

CIVIC ELECTIONS '73

The first of several special features outlining the platforms of Greater Victoria candidates seeking election Nov. 17 starts in the Times today on Page 25 with candidates vying for Greater Victoria and Saanich school district positions.

The platforms of all candidates seeking regional district, aldermanic and school trustee berths will be published before the Nov. 17 election.

Plywood Prices Rising

The retail price of plywood will go up between 5 and 10 per cent in the next two months, industry spokesmen said Tuesday.

Although revisions of price lists have not been sent out by manufacturers, one Victoria retailer said he has been told the price increase on fir plywood will be 5 per cent for sanded, and 7 per cent for unsanded.

Other dealers confirm that a general increase is coming.

Quarter-inch one-sided sanded fir plywood is selling in Victoria this week at between $7.05 and $7.45 a sheet.

The expected price hike follows a year of gradual increases in the plywood market which is strongly influenced by supply and defand in the United States (unlike the lumber market which is influenced by international demand), dealers point out.

A spokesman for Victoria Building Supplied Ltd. said despite the increases in prices "people seem to find the money somewhere" and sales volume is good.

A spokesman for another firm said the price increase has been more evident in so called "fall-down" grades of plywood while better grades have tended to hold steady.

He estimated the general increase in the past year has been about 10 per cent.

Shortage of supply of certain grades of plywood continues to be a problem for dealers.

Many are also concerned the closure of Ebans Products Co. Ltd. Vancouver plywood division will affect the market.

Evans has been one of the few independent suppliers of plywood and, "has been able to be very competitive" with thet larger manufacturers, a Victoria dealer said.

One of the major influences on future prices of plywood is the prospect of supply shortages in the U.S. as a result of shortages of fuel and phenol, industry publications have warned.

WELDWOOD PROFITS DOUBLE

Weldwood of Canada Ltd. reports net earnings for the first nine months of 1973 of $10.9 million of $2.14 per share, up 114 per cent from $4.9 million or $1 per share in the corresponding 1972 period.

Sales of lumber, plywood and other wood products amounted to $192 million in the nine-month period, up 40 per cent.

Third-quarter sales were $62 million, up from $45 million a year ago, while net income in the third quarter was up 48 per cent aat $2.5 million or 49 cents a share.

Strachan Cleared of Lying Charge

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Transport Minister Robert Strachan, accused by a Social Credit MLA of lying in the legislature, was cleared of the charge Tuesday after getting the support of six of his government colleagues on a special committee.

After more than eight hours of testimony from witnesses, the committee split along party lines and voted 6-4 against a motion saying Strachan had lied when questioned in the house about a management study of the B.C Ferries Service.

The charge was levelled Monday by Bob McClelland (SC—Langley) and was referred to the all-party committee for a decision on the question of privilege.

McClelland said today he will not resign despite the fact Strachan has been officially cleared.

"There's no way I will resign. There's no way I intended to resign at any point in this thing," he said.

"At no time in the House or outside the House have I lied. I have been very truthful and all my allegations have been upheld and proven."

The committee heard testimony all day and evening Tuesday, questioning Strachan, McClelland, ferries manager Monty Aldous, operations manager William Weston and management consultant Frank Machin of F. R. Machin and Associates Ltd. of Victoria.

The charge raised by McClelland related to a question he asked during Monday's question period and the answer given by Strachan. McClelland contended Strachan lied in saying no management study on the ferry system had been authorized.

Strachan countered that he had at no time authorized any study.

Testimony heard by the committee established Strachan had no knowledge of the management survey until it had been well along the way to completion. The evidence was not as clear-cut, however, on the question of whether Strachan's responses to McClellani's questions related specifically to the existence of a management survey.

The committee members who voted that Strachan lied to the house were: Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-

Pure Cocaine Seized In Mainland Raid

Three suspects were arrested, one at the Vancouver International Airport and the other two at the Bayshore Inn. Potential value of the narcotic on the illicit market is about $150,000, police said.

Weird Ways of Guilt When a Bird Is Caged

Any psychiatrist will tell you. It's the little things that do it. One tiny screw comes loose, the whole complicated machinery of the mind becomes unhinged, and first thing you know the men in the white suits are there with their soothing voices and rough hands. Talk it out, the psychiatrists say. Face the problem. Deal with it an outspoken manner. It is your only hope.

All right, then, I will. It began when our nearest, dearest and oldest friend brought us this budgie bird at the small house-warming we held in the place we've moved to. My first reaction was, I think, characteristically gracious. Take it away, I said, and give us the cash. I told her frankly that I've always been repelled by the idea of caging anything, particularly birds, and if I were King I'd make it a law to release them all. A creature meant for a roofless sky has no business behind bars, I said. I was really quite splendid about it.

"Just give the wee thing a chance," said our nearest, dearest and oldest, who rarely takes no for an answer, and when she left the small party she left the small bird behind and I hope, as Maude says, that God will get her for it.

From the moment "Dickie" became a part of our lives I have vacillated between compassion and anger. Indeed, the bird and I have had a curiously emotional relationship based, I suspect, on my feeling of guilt plus the indisputable fact that a meaner bird never lived. If you tell me now that all budgies are mean I would have to believe you because "Dickie" is the first budgie I have come to know intimately and — boy! — is he mean!

He looks like any other budgie at first glance. Small enough to hold in the cup of your palm, if you don't mind losing a finger or two. A greenish-yellow in color. Beady, close-set eyes with the cold, killer-look of the chicken hawk.

The female life which surrounds me lightly accepted Dickie at face value and, unlike me, made no attempt to psychoanalyze him. The fact that he made a twittering sound only when the vacuum cleaner was on was accepted by them matter-of-factly, though it troubles me for hours at a time. The fact that he burst into glorious song once and once only — when he was looking from his warm cage during Sunday's snow storm at a porch full of cold, miserable little birds facing imminent starvation — disturbed them not at all.

It began to be a kind of local joke that I detested the bird and I protested in vain that I was, in fact, the only one who was concerned about him being held prisoner.

It was I who consulted a neighbor named Alice who is practically embedded in laughing, trilling, talking, happy-type budgies. Buy him a little mirror and a little bell, Alice advised. Talk to him. Teach him to stand on your finger and fly about the room.

I bought Dickie a little bell and a little mirror. He went into a complete panic and hung upside down in one corner of his cage in wall-eyed terror until I removed my peace offering. I spoke to him soothingly and offered him my index finger as a pedestal. He bit it sharply and drew blood. I left the cage door open and Dickie stepped out, went into a supersonic dive and had to be rescued from the sink and a swift, septic death down the drain.

After each of these experiences his natural expression of melancholy deepened noticeably and the shadows lengthened over my conscience.

I dreamed one night that Dickie was talking to me. "Why don't you give me my freedom oh cruel master?" he asked. "If I let you free," I responded, "you'd freeze to death out there or the hawks would get you." I awoke at the point where Dickie was carrying me in his great talons out to sea.

It does no good to try to rationalize. One day when I was passing his cage, trying not to notice his doleful expression, I suddenly found myself with my face against the bars, shouting, "Oh, buck up, Dickie! For heaven's sake, buck up!" The bird eyed me malevolently. He did not buck up.

I had decided with one half of my brain that Dickie was malingering in not facing up to his responsibility. After all, we were doing all we could for his morale and his comfort and getting nothing in return. One way or the other, we're all prisoners, aren't we? Well, aren't we Dickie?

But behind this was the knowledge that sadness is a caged bird's birthright — the right to sing the blues or not to sing at all. I often fancy myself in there with him, sitting on that same old perch day and night with a view of the open sky latticed by the slender, impregnable bands of aluminum and I marvel that Dickie isn't meaner than he is.

I have tried to explain all this to my wife, but she is no help at all. She keeps saying, "Why not consult a psychiatrist?" But who ever heard of a bird psychiatrist?

Pollen Wants To Appeal Reid Decision

Mayor Peter Pollen said today he will urge city council to appeal a B.C. Supreme Court judgement last week which confirmed the validity of a land-use contract between the city of Victoria and Vancouver developer J. A. Reid.

But Pollen told reporters at his weekly press conference his purpose is not to try to halt the proposed Reid Centre project on Wharf Street.

"It's a move to clarify the situation through a higher court," he explained with a straight face.

When a reporter observed that Reid would not be able to proceed with his development if a higher court found the contract invalid, the mayor merely smiled and said: "That's quite true."

Pollen said he had come to the conclusion the city should appeal after discussing the matter with city solicitor Jake de Villiers and studying the judgment handed down last week by Mr. Justice F. C. Munroe.

He said he considered Munroe's ruling was "in error for a number of reasons," but didn't state what those reasons were.

Munroe had ruled Reid's contract with the city was valid "notwhthstanding the fact that the perod for fulfilling the contract was not adhered to," Pollen said.

The judgement said the city had the power to extend certain time limits in the contract, necessitated by Reid's failure to carry out stipulated lot consolidation within 90 days of the signing of the contract in July, 1972.

The court determination had been sought both with regard to the status of the contract itself, and on the legality of council's recent action in granting time extensions.

Pollen said today that a condition of granting extra time to Reid was that he furnish the city with satisfactory guarantees as to his firm's ability to complete the project.

Such assurances have yet to be provided, he added.

Aldermen 'Bit Hooks'

Both from inside and outside City Hall, certain city aldermen were rebuked Tuesday for participating in "promotion" of the Reid Centre project.

Mayor Peter Pollen told council's caucus meeting he considers it "inappropriate" for aldermen to play any part in the "flamboyant promotional aspects of development."

The fact that some aldermen had attended last Friday's sod-turning ceremony for the Reid development on Wharf Street amounted to a "biting on hooks," he added.

"I think the public has been very seriously misled by the sod-turning—or sad turning as one alderman appropriately noted — indicating they are about ready to commence construction," Pollen said.

He reminded council that Reid has yet to supply the financial guarantees demanded by the city before it allows construction to proceed.

Meanwhile, Esquimalt NDP MLA Jim Gorst said in an interview he also deplored the attendance at the ceremony by some council members.

"I guess some people just can't resist the offer of a free cup of coffee," he commented.

Gorst described the Reid ceremony as "an attempt to make the public think the whole thing is a fait accompli, so everyone will fold their tents and go home."

But he said as far as he's concerned that's far from the case, and appealed for "hundreds and hundreds of letters" asking the provincial government to acquire the Reid site for

Clubs in the Rough After Barrett's Drive

There was a "wait-and-see" reaction by Victoria area golf course officials today to Premier Dave Barrett's conditions if golf clubs are to get a reprieve from heavy increases in taxation.

Barrett announced in the legislature Tuesday that golf courses will be exempted from the much higher taxation levels which they now face through amendments passed in the spring session to the Assessment Equalization Act if they meet two conditions:

— Courses be dedicated to the playing of golf for perpetuity.

— That there be public access on a first-come-first-served basis.

It's the second condition that has local golf managers confused.

Barrett was unavailable this moning to explain his comments.

"We're very pleased that there's going to be some easement," Peter Simpson, manager of the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club, said, "But we have to know what it (the second condition) means. We'll have to wait and see."

His puzzlement was shared by Doug Long, manager of the Uplands Golf Club.

Long said he was hesitant to comment until the ramifications of Barrett's first-come-first-served edict were spelled out.

"We don't know the total conditions," he said, "But members have to have some privileges over non-members when they take the trouble to belong to a club and pay annual subscriptions."

He added, "Our members (some 500 men and 200 women) would be up in arms" if the condition meant that a non-member would have as much right to "prime-time" on the course as members.

"If he (Barrett) is inferring that he wants us to go public this would not be acceptable as far as we are concerned."

Manager Leo Derman of the Gorge Vale Golf Club also said Barrett's conditions needed clarification.

"We're not in a position to comment," he said, "until we know what he means. We're not public but we're a long way toward it. Our green fees are very low and members only have prime play on the weekends."

The amendments to the act have had the effect of eliminating the former 10 per cent ceiling, which was passed on assessment increases per year. Land, including that used for golf courses, is now assessed at 50 per cent of its market value.

The effect on most golf courses — including Uplandands and the Victoria Golf Club — is that assessments have doubled.

Barrett has promised the government will bring in further legislation at the next spring session to allow for exemption of those golf courses which comply with his conditions.

As long as the conditions are met, he said, the courses will be entitled to special long-rerun considerations on assessments since they are valuable greenspace land.

He said the challenge has now been made to the golf courses; there should be no discrimination by the operators of the courses against people wanting to use them.

Oak Bay Chief To Stay On

Oak Bay Fire Chief Bill Pearson, due to retire at the end of November, will stay on another year.

Pearson said today the extension was recommended by Oak Bay's personnel committee to allow more time to find a suitable successor.

Pearson has been a department member 36 years and served 17 years as chief. Deputy Chief Al Reside is also due to retire in November, 1974.

Strike Vote Set at Gorge

Employees of Gorge Road Hospital will be asked at union meetings Friday night and early Saturday to approve serving 72 hours strike notice against the hospital.

The Hospital Employees Union, representing 350 employees, said in a statement today its executive will recommend that the statutory notice be served and that the union would exercise its strike right "in the event the employer continues its refusal to agree to arbitration."

The union's members — everyone in the hospital except registered nurses and paramedical employees — voted 98.2 per cent in favor of strike action last week.

Mediation efforts were unsuccessful last week in resolving the dispute and the union said today that mediation officer Charles Stewart has filed his report.

The union said it offered arbitration as an alternative to strike action "but the employer disagreed." British Columbia's new labor code, expected to be proclaimed before the end of the year, would allow a hospital union to choose arbitration regardless of what the employer wants.

"The employer wants the union to agree to discriminatory wage rates," said Hospital Employees Union assistant business manager, Jack Gerow, referring to successful union arbitration cases at various hospitals this year, including Royal Jubilee, which held that practical nurses must be brought up to orderlies pay levels.

The new labor code prohibits discrimination which is contrary to the Human Rights Act and if such an agreement is reached the contract is deemed not to be a collective agreement.

Day shift and graveyard shift workers will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Centre and afternoon shift workers will meet Saturday at 1 a.m.

Gorge Road administrator Bill Morrison said today he would "prefer to defer making a statement for a day or two."

The hospital has delegated its bargaining authority to the B.C. Hospitals Association but Joe Roberts, BCHA employee relations director, was unavailable for comment this morning.

Robbed Again

For the second time in less than a month a downtown jewelry store has been robbed by a snatch-and-grab thief.

Police said today two trays containing 14 white gold diamond rings were taken from Grassie Firbanks, 1209 Douglas, during the noon hour Tuesday.

The same store lost 12 rings, valued at $6,000, in a similar theft Oct. 11.

Value of Tuesday's loss has not been determined.

It All Depends On Weather...

The price of fresh vegetables — which are between 10 and 20 per cent higher than they were a year ago — will go up or down in the next month depending on the weather, industry spokesmen said today.

The recent five-day cold snap is not expected to seriously affect the supply, and therefore the price, of B.C. grown produce, says Alan Barker, manager of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Co-operative Association.

Although there are still carrots, turnips and cabbages in the fields, the cold period was not long enough to damage these crops, he said.

But he warns that continued rain could cause problems.

Because there are no shortages of any vegetables grown on Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland, prices have not "gone out of line" this fall and in many cases they are actually lower than they were 10 months ago, Barker said.

Robert Swanson of Slade and Stewart Ltd., a major produce wholesaler, confirmed that supplies are good.

"When you handle perishable items, they have to be sold. You can't have unrealistic prices," he said.

Import of produce from the U.S. which might have forced prices down, is not high this month. A much more important factor is the ability of B.C. farmers to bring in their crops before they are destroyed by continued wet weather.

Co-op manager Barker said he does not expect any major increase in prices between now and Christmas because it is the practice of retailers to stockpile as much produce as possible in November in preparation for the Christmas rush.

7-Mile Trek After Grounding

A 40-foot troller was wrecked Tuesday afternoon when heavy seas and high winds swept it onto an isolated beach at Logan Creek, 15 miles north of Port Renfrew.

Only one man was aboard the vessel, the Johny-Boy, and he managed to get off safely, a spokesman at the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre said today.

The spokesman said Storie walked seven miles north along the rugged coastline to the Carmanah Lighthouse where he called for help.

The trek took more than six hours through high winds, lightning and hail before he arrived, feet cut and badly bruised, late Tuesday night, the spokesman said.

An air-sea rescue helicopter left Pat Bay airport at 11 a.m. today to evacuate Storie from the lighthouse. It is expected to return to Victoria later this afternoon.

In another boating mishap, L. Pootlass, aboard the 33-foot gillnetter Victor M. was rescued after being stranded four days in Restoration Bay on Burke Channel near Bella Bella.

The Coast Guard cutter Ready reached Pootlass this morning and towed the stricken boat into Namu.

Rescue had been delayed because of extremely strong winds north of Vancouver Island, an official at Victoria rescue centre said.

CPR Fire Alarm Just Hot Air

The fire department sent two trucks this morning to put out a fire in a rail car at the CPR yard on Store Street.

Killer Dog Packs Finish Off Metchosin Farmer's Flock

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

After more than 50 years of sheep farming in Metchosin, 87-year-old William Whitney-Griffithis is out of business.

His last three sheep were killed by dogs Sunday.

The three sheep were the only survivors of another dog attack in March when 10 sheep were killed.

"One of the sheep killed Sunday was just a lamb and the other two had been attacked in March when the 10 were killed. We patched them up—one took 20 stitches—but now they're all gone," Whitney-Griffiths said today.

When the farmer and his brother started raising sheep years ago, they had a flock of 150 between them," but now the last one is gone. I guess that's it."

Whitney-Griffiths discovered the dead sheep, all pureberd, Sunday afternoon. One had been attacked inside the barn, the other two just outside.

"They were badly torn and quite a mess—one had its stomach ripped out."

In two years, Whitney-Griffiths has lost 18 of his sheep to dogs who were "just out for a bit of hellery."

"The dogs around here are kept chained most of the time, but people let them loose on Saturdays and Sundays and they just go wild."

Whitney-Griffiths has taken the loss philosophically—"New people are moving in here and everybody has dogs. I guess, though, that it's just the advance of time."

Any farmer who loses his sheep to dogs gets $30 compensation from the provincial government," but I could have sold them for more than $50 a piece so you don't really get your money back."

The Sheep Protection Act, which allows farmers to shoot dogs on their own property, "looks lovely on paper, but it still doesn't stop the dogs from roaming and you can't carry a gun around with you all the time."

With his own spaniel, Tammy, jumping around his knees, Whitney-Griffiths says he has "almost decided for sure not to get anymore sheep.

"I'm getting older and they're a worry, but it's sad to see the end of such a flock—they were such good animals."

9 IN MEMORIAM

du TEMPLE—In loving memory of George Walter, who left us suddenly on November 7, 1961.
—Sadly missed by his loving wife, Alice, and his three sons, Wally, Barry and Ronald and their families.
—There is a tie which death cannot sever.

REYNOLDS—In loving memory of a dear husband and father Herbert E. Reynolds, who passed away Nov. 7, 1972.
—Hazel and Susan.

STANCIL—In cherished and loving memory of a dear husband and father Robert Alfred Stancil, who passed away Nov. 7, 1971.
To some dear Bob, you are just a memory
To others a part of the past.
But we who loved you in life sincerely
Will love you as long as our lives shall last.
There is no parting from those we love
No distance can divide
For each day in memory's garden
We shall walk side by side
Wherever life may take us,
Whatever we may do.
The memory of the years we shared
Will keep us close to you.
—Lovingly remembered now and always, your loving wife Lillian and daughter Barbara.

STANCIL—In cherished and loving memory of my dear dad Mr. Robert Alfred Stancil, who passed away, Nov. 7, 1971.
They say that time will ease the pain,
And help me to forget,
But time so far has only shown
How much I miss you yet.
I miss your smile, your voice, your talk,
your talk,
The things we used to do,
I miss the happy times we had,
But mostly I miss you, dear dad.
Deep in my heart, your memory is kept
I loved you too deeply, to ever forget.
—Lovingly remembered always, your daughter Barbara.

STANCIL — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law and uncle, Robert A. Stancil, who passed away Nov. 7, 1971
Down a road that's calm and peaceful
Guided by God's loving hand
Bob has gone upon a journey
To a distant, brighter land.
And although our hearts are heavy,
With the sorrow we must bear.
It helps to bring us comfort
Knowing Bob is happy there.
He is just away!
—Lovingly remembered and so sadly missed by sister-in-laws Dorothy Grexton, Mabel and Ed Stenseth and their family.

STANCIL—In loving memory of a dear brother, brother-in-law and uncle Robert Alfred Stancil, who passed away Nov. 7, 1971.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak
When all other things decay,
Our love for him, will still keep green,
And never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered always. Your loving sister, Dorothy Simms and family.

TUCKER—In loving memory of our mother Lydia who passed away Nov. 7, 1971.
Deep in the heart lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest
In memory's frame we shall keep it.
Because she was one of the best.

CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF ESQUIMALT
BY-LAW NO. 1455
BEING a By-law to expropriate certain lands for recreational and community uses of the public.

WHEREAS by Section 621 (1) (a) of the "Municipal Act", being Chapter 255 of the Revised Statutes of British Columbia, 1960, the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Township of Esquimalt is empowered to acquire lands for the purpose of recreational and community uses of the public;

AND WHEREAS by Section 622 of the said "Municipal Act", it is enacted that the said Municipal Council may, by by-law, expropriate any real property for the purpose of acquiring any real property for recreational and community uses of the public, without the consent of the owners of the real property but subject to the provisions of Division (4) of Part XII of the said "Municipal Act";

AND WHEREAS the Municipal Council deems it necessary or convenient for the establishment of lands for recreational and community uses of the public to enter upon, expropriate, break up, take and enter into possession of and use of the real property hereinafter described;

AND WHEREAS this By-law, by Section 485 of the said "Municipal Act", shall, before coming into effect be published once in the Gazette and in a newspaper published or circulating in the Municipality of Esquimalt, and a certified copy thereof is to be filed in the Land Registry Office of the Victoria Land Registration District, Victoria, British Columbia;

NOW THEREFORE THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF ESQUIMALT, enacts as follows:

1. That for the above recited purpose and subject to Division (4) of Part XII of the "Municipal Act", the real property lying and being within the Corporation of the Township of Esquimalt, in the Province of British Columbia, and being more particularly known and described as Lot Two (2), Section Eleven (11), Esquimalt District Plan 391, and all the rights, title and interest thereto and therein of any and all persons whomsoever, save only Her Majesty the Queen, shall be and are hereby taken and expropriated unto the sole and only use of the Corporation of the Township of Esquimalt, forever, which may and is hereby empowered and authorized in that behalf to enter upon and into possession of and use the said real property for the said purpose.

2. That it shall be and it is hereby directed that such taking, entering upon and into possession and use of such real property shall take place forthwith after this By-law shall have come into effect.

3. This By-law shall come into effect on and from the day next following the day upon which the same is published in the Gazette and in a newspaper as above recited, or if it shall not be published both in the Gazette and in a newspaper on the same day, then on the day next following the day when it is last so published in the Gazette or newspaper, as the case may be.

4. This By-law may be cited as the "RECRATION CENTRE EXPROPRIATION BY-LAW, 1973".

PASSED by the Municipal Council on 29th October, 1973.

A. G. YOUNG — MAYOR

P.O. Box 278, Duncan, B.C.
NOTICE TO GENERAL CONTRACTORS

Stipulated Sum Contract Proposals are invited for the construction of a Swim Pool Complex at Pioneer Park, North Cowichan, B.C., and will be received by the undersigned until 5 p.m., November 29, 1973, at the North Cowichan Municipal Hall, 7030 Trans-Canada Highway (Duncan North).

Tenders will be opened at 10 a.m. Friday, November 30, 1973, at the Municipal Hall.

The work consists of an enclosed 25 meter pool plus training pool, lounge, change rooms, and related facilities.

A bid bond is required with each tender in the amount of Forty-Five Thousand Dollars ($45,000) to be replaced by a performance bond as specified within 21 days of the contract date.

Drawings, specifications, tender forms, and instructions to bidders may be obtained by General Contractors only on or after 2 p.m. November 9, 1973, at the office of Hammond, Farmer & Sharp, Architects, 715 Canada Avenue, Duncan, B.C.

A returnable deposit of Fify Dollars ($50) per set is required.

A. VANDE CASTEYEN,
Municipal Clerk.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Democrats scored strongly in off-year United States elections with a record-breaking statewide victory in New Jersey and municipal triumphs in New York, Philadelphia, Minneapolis and Detroit in the first national balloting since the Watergate scandal erupted.

In Seattle, Democratic Mayor Wes Uhlman won re-election, turning back a strong effort by Liem Tuai, the son of a Chinese immigrant cook who quit his job as city council president to take on the modish mayor.

When he was trailing by 5,500 votes with 38 per cent of the vote tallied, Tuai, 47, said "tomorrow, it's back to law practice for me. I'll be looking for clients."

Washington state voters rejected for the sixth time an attempt to write into the state constitution an amendment that would authorize imposition of a graduated income tax.

A referendum to reduce the drinking age in Washington from 21 to 19 also was defeated.

In an action some observers linked to a Watergate backlash, Washington voters approved a citizen initiative slashing pay increases legislators approved earlier this year for themselves and state elected officials.

—Michigan State Senator Coleman Young became the third black candidate this year to win a big city mayoral race, coming from behind in Detroit to defeat former police commissioner John Nichols. Blacks also won mayoral elections in Raleigh, N.C., and Dayton, Ohio.

—City comptroller Abraham Beame became the first Jewish mayor of New York City, easily defeating Republican, Liberal and Conservative opponents to succeed John Lindsay.

Another Court Round In Religious Row

The B.C. Court of Appeals dismissed an appeal by one faction Tuesday in a lengthy dispute over control of the Society of the Love of Jesus, but another court battle is pending.

At issue is who controls the Langford religious group, which operates an extended care hospital and senior citizens' home and has assets estimated at $1.5 million.

The opposing groups have been described as "traditional" and "modern" and Tuesday's appeal hearing dealt with a challenge by the traditional group of a Supreme Court decision last year.

That decision upheld the election of Sister Leonette Hoesing of the modern faction as mother prioress.

Hugh McMillan, lawyer for the traditional group, said today their appeal was dismissed on two grounds:

—the question at issue has been rendered largely academic because the traditionalists later launched a suit aimed at proving they are entitled to control of the society and its assets.

—the society had not been named as a party in the action, as the appeal judges held it should have been.

Because of the changed circumstances, the appeal court did not deal with the merits of the case.

The suit by the traditionalists, which has been answered with a counter-suit by the modern faction, will likely come before the court next year. Examinations for discovery are scheduled to start Nov. 20.

The two factions physically divided last March when the modern group moved from the priory into another building. Three of the traditional group, Sisters Mary Agnes Eaton, Mary Josephine Donovan and Mary Lucy Ford, subsequently conducted a sit-in at the priory, refusing to move out.

In June the three sit-in sisters and two others, Mother Cecilia Mary, founder of the society, and Sister Mary Julia, were stripped of their status as religious sisters by the Roman Catholic Church.

APPLICATION FOR A WATER LICENCE
WATER ACT
(Section 8)

I, Robert and Norah Erskine, of 4126 Delmar Ave., Victoria, B.C., hereby apply to the Comptroller of Water Rights for a licence to divert and use water out of Cowan Brook which flows south and discharges into Cowichan Lake and give notice of my application to all persons affected.

The point of diversion will be located at C.N.R. R/W Post O.J.B. Sec. 45, S88° 10' 50 E 4.65.

The purpose for which water will be used is domestic.

The land on which the water will be used is Lot 3 of Sec. 45, Renfrew within Cowichan Lake District, Pl. 21223.

A copy of this application was posted on the 5th September, 1973, at the proposed point of diversion and on the land or mine where the water is to be used and two copies were filed in the office of the Water Recorder at Victoria, B.C.

Objections to this application may be filed with the said Water Recorder or with the Comptroller of Water Rights, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., within THIRTY days of the first date of publication of the application.

First date of publication is: November 7th, 1973.

R. Erskine,
Applicants.

Policy Sale Halted

The provincial government has ordered International Warranty Ltd. to stop selling car service policies in British Columbia until it forms an insurance company.

The policies were being sold in Victoria through Empress Pontiac Buick Ltd.

Donald Anderson, provincial deputy superintendent of insurance, said International Warranty argues that it is selling service contracts and does not come under the provisions of the Insurance Act.

The parent company is Garrity Insurance Services of Edmonton.

The policies guaranteed service between the time a warranty ran out at one year or 12,000 miles up to 5 years or 50,000 miles.

Cost for a mid-sized Detroit car for the four years of 38,000 biyes was $113, with the dealer getting a 25 per cent commission.

NEW BODY FOR APPEALS

Appeals for persons who do not want their land included in an agricultural land reserve will be heard from now on by the B.C. Land Commission instead of the environment and land use committee of the cabinet.

The announcement came today from Resources Minister Bob Williams, chairman of the cabinet committee, and from William Lane, chairman of the land commission.

As a result of passage of the Land Commission Act at the spring session of the legislature, the 27 regional districts in the province have been required to file plans of the land which is agricultural in their areas, land which the cabinet will designate for agricultural use only.

Because all the regional plans have not yet been filed and approved, it has been necessary that appeals affecting land use as a result of the land freeze be heard by the environment and land use committee of the cabinet.

Williams said today it is now time that the land commission itself hear the land appeals so that it can co-ordinate its planning activities.

More than 750 appeals have been heard so far by the cabinet committee.

The committee's support staff is being given over to the land commission, which will now hold periodic meetings in Vancouver to consider appeals regarding the land freeze.

Pollen Forecasts A Mill Rate Drop

Victoria taxpayers can look forward to the possibility of a mill rate decrease in 1974, Mayor Peter Pollen predicted today.

The mayor said at his weekly press conference the city's budget for next year has not been worked out in detail, but already the indications are that it will be "very good."

Pollen made a similar announcement some months ago, when he said the provincial government's action in removing the assessment limitation on commercial properties would hit businessmen with a heavier tax load but produce a saving for home owners.

The forecast at that time was for a mill rate drop of about five mills for residential taxpayers, based on current budget figures.

But Pollen said today there are other factors to account for the healthy revenue and expenditure picture shaping up for 1974.

City-owned property has been managed well with a policy of leasing rather than selling, improvements to the waterfront and other areas will be carried out at little expense to city residents and the city has been wise in steering away from "grandiose schemes" such as a combined convention-cultural centre, he said.

Research Head

F. Bryan Armitage has been appointed program co-ordinator for forest production research with the department of the environment's forestry service in Ottawa.

Armitage is currently the program manager for the forest resources research group at the Pacific Forest Research Centre on Burnside Road.

Rainy Respite Nearing End

PHNOM PENH (WP) — The rains have all but stopped and the stately rivers are beginning to recede. In a month or so, the vast flooded rice fields will be drying out. Cambodia's four-month rainy season respite is coming to an end.

It is taken for granted in military and diplomatic circles that the dry season will bring with it a major military campaign against the government of President Lon Nol by North Vietnamese-led Khmer Rouge insurgents.

Lon Nol, who is known for his mystical beliefs, is said to have dismissed two of his soothsayers who predicted that November would be an extremely bad month for him. But to judge by the prevailing uncertainty here, reading the omens would seem to be as good a way as any to predict the outcome of the fighting.

The once-prevalent assumption that government forces would collapse under pressure without American bombing support has been dissipated by events since the bombing was halted in August, especially the successful defence of the provincial city of Kompong Cham.

Bolstered by its modest successes, the army is conducting a new conscription and recruitment campaign that is reportedly making good earyl progress. There is no immediate threat to any of the encircled provincial cities that have been viewed as possible targets of Communist attacks. Military spokesmen say government forces are actually conducting a campaign to retake the town of Kep, on the Gulf of Siam, which along with most of southeastern Cambodia was lost in the last dry season.

In addition, American officials say Cambodian commanders have been assured that they will have enough ammunition to defend themselves, which is an important commitment to an army that relies more on firepower than on manpower or tactical enterprise.

Around the capital, Communist forces are generally being contained outside a defenseive perimeter about 20 miles in diameter, which Western experts say in the minimum distance needed to protect the city from 122mm. rocket fire.

The road from Phnom Penh to the northwestern provinces has been closed for nine weeks, but the road to the seaport of Kompong Som and the Mekong River convoy route are open, at least for now, so there is no real supply problem.

Artillery fire dominates the city's nocturnal sounds, but aside from the nervous scrambling by young men, who face a serious conscription threat for the first time, Phnom Penh's languid life goes on as usual.

By comparison with the situation in early August, when the city defence lines appeared to be crumbling, supply routes were cut and the end of American bombing was imminent, the situation today is considerably better from the government's point of view.

But for unknown reasons, the Khmer Rouge have not put the capital's defences to a real test since then. Cambodian and Western military sources believe that test will come no later than January, though they say they do not know when or in what form. Still less do they claim to know how it will come out.

"My own personal feeling," one said, "is that they will try to take the city by strangling it, but they won't succeed. The problem is, the government's success in holding it won't be conclusive and we will have more of the same next year."

"What you have now," an authoritative official said, "is a battle for recruitment. The enemy lost perhaps 6,000 men at Kompong Cham. If the government can get enough men to fill its ranks, they cannot be beaten because the other side just does not have enough forces. And if the government can hold them off this year, the prospect is for a long military stalemate."

EMBASSY ROLE QUERRIED

By SIDNEY H. SCHANBERG

PHNOM PENH (NYT) — The question of whether United States embassy personnel here are acting as military advisers to the Cambodian armed forces, in violation of a congressional ban, has been brought into the open again by a critical report from the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of congress.

The 92-page report, related some two weeks ago, charged that the embassy's military equipment delivery team had gone far beyond its statutory function and had assumed duties making its members the equivalent of advisers.

The embassy denied this at a regular briefing for American newsmen. An embassy official said: "I think the G.A.O. inspectors are working from a different philosphy than we are. Their philosophy seems to go like this: The purpose of the program is to deliver military goods, aid and assistance to Cambodia but that beyond physical delivery, our responsibility should stop.

"The kind of things they regard as having a statutory or regulatory obligation to do, such as seeing that military equipment is put to good use. We feel our activities are consistent with the law."

The law, the Cooper-Church Amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act of 1971, says that no American aid "may be used to finance the introduction of United States ground combat troops into Cambodia or to provide United States advisers to or for Cambodian military forces in Cambodia.

The G.A.O. report, prepared by a team of inspectors who spent several months in Cambodia in 1972, said that the Military Equipment Delivery Team and others in the embassy had performed such advisory functions as recommending changes in the Cambodian military structure, advising and assisting on contingency plans, providing technical assistance on logistical aspects of military aid, providing technical military assistance and information about American material and helping the Cambodia military operate its headquarters and its supply system.

"Except for not assigning advisers to specific field units, M.E.D.T. operated much the same as a Military Assistance Advisory Group does in any other country," the agency said.

The embassy does not deny that it performs the functions cited in the agency's report but disputes that these functions are the kind of advisory activity banned by the law.

Acknowledging that the embassy did make recommendations to the Cambodians on how to reorganize their armed forces, an embassy official asked at the briefing: "How are you going to know how many weapons to deliver unless you know what kind of force structure you're delivering them to?"

After news reports appeared about the embassy's role in the bombing, the standard radio frequencies used in directing air strikes were quickly changed to prevent newsmen in Phnom Penh from continuing to listen to the directions on regular commercial radios.

Of the nearly 300 employed at the embassy — there is a congressional ceiling of 200 American employees and 85 third-country nationals — approximately two-thirds have direct military functions. These are the more than 70 men on the Military Equipment Delivery Team, the more than 20 in the defence attaches office and the 85 nationals, almost all of whom work on the equipment team.

American aid to Cambodia, which has averaged about $300 million a year since the war began here three and a half years ago is almost entirely military. Although about $100 million of the total is described as economic aid, almost all of it pays for such Cambodian expenses as army payrolls. The $300 million in aid does not include the cost of the bombing, which this year alone ran at least $50 million a month and probably higher.

B.C. Oil Low

Times News Serrvices

Industry in British Columbia is facing a shortage of heavy oil supplies.

James Rhodes, chairman of the B.C. Energy Commission, said this winter's situation is known to be marginal — "it appears . . . it will be nip-and-tuck."

Barry Sleigh, president of B.C. Petroleum Association, said it appeared traditional users of heavy oil would be covered but there may be spot problems.

He said he was more concerned about next winter's supply, since contracts for that will be negotiated in the spring.

Council of Forest Industries spokesman Pat Hrushowy said industry users received assurances before the Middle East war that contracts would be met.

"If Canada and the United States get into a situation where neither will send oil to the other we could be in trouble," he said.

Vancouver Island mills rely heavily on California-supplied oil.

Sleigh added that B.C. should have sufficient furnace oil unless a large industry such as a pulp mill decided to switch from natural gas for heating purposes.

The energy commission, meanwhile, expects to have a preliminary report to the provincial government on oil supply, demand and price ready by Feb. 1.

However, it will be up to the government to decide whether the public will have access to the data contained in the report.

In an effort to protect Canadian consumers from winter gasoline and heating oil shortages, the National Energy Board today, rejected export applications from former cus-

TRAPPED UTILITY POLE serves as a strange dividing post between two lines of traffic on Metchosin Road near William Head. The road was widened around the pole, but before it could be moved to its rightful place at the side of the improved road, paving crews trapped it in the middle. A Hydro spokesman said the pole will probably be moved soon.

Session Ending Today

The B.C. legislature will prorogue today as MLAs on both sides of the house have agreed to give speedy approval to bills still remaining on the order paper.

Only nine of 69 bills introduced during the eight-week session still have to be dealt with and Premier Barrett says Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen's administrator, Chief Justice John Ferris, will be on hand to wind up the session sometime today.

Opposition spokesmen confirm arrangements have been made to end the session and say they do not expect any stall tactics.

One of the remaining bills is a contentious one, however, setting up the department of transport and communications under Robert Strachan, the minister who has come under opposition fire recently and was cleared Tuesday of a charge by another member that he lied to the house.

Once the nine bills pass through committee stage in the house today, formal approval of third reading will be given a number of bills which were amended during the session and Ferris will be called to give royal assent to all bills passed by the House.

Thirty-two bills were dealt with Tuesday, 24 given committee stage approval and eight given second reading during the afternoon and long evening sittings.

Most of the debate was speedy as is traditional during the last days of any session but the Human Rights Code of B.C. sparked some discussion as David Anderson (L-Victoria) prodded Labor Minister Bill King for what he said were inconsistencies in the legislation.

Different sections of the bill prohibit discrimination in areas such as housing, purchase of property, wages and employment.

Nixon Loses Veto Battle

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — With substantial defections of Republican congressmen, the House of Representatives today over-rode President Nixon's veto of a bill to restrict his powers to wage war.

The 284-135 vote sent Nixon's political effectiveness skidding to an all-time low. The Senate planned a speedy vote on the same subject later today. It is expected to have a similar result.

The override came despite an impassioned plea by Rep. Gerald Ford, vice-president-designate, to avoid the "potential of disaster" he said it represented during the Mideast crisis.

Ford argued that the bill carried "the potential of disaster for us at this juncture, to take away support from the president as he works day and night with the Secretary of State to achieve peace" in the Mideast.

"We are not out of the woods yet," Ford said. "we may be a long way from being out of the woods. I'm very concerned that to override this veto at this time could . . . ruin the president's position."

The bill would impose a 60-day limit on presidents' power to commit United States forces abroad without Congress's approval.

Its terms would empower Congress to halt the war any time during the 60 days with a veto-proof resolution. There could be a 30-day extension for withdrawal.

Supporters of the bill said their biggest override obstacles were the popularity of vice-president-designate Ford and opposition of more than a dozen anti-war congressmen.

Speaker Carl Albert was among Democratic House leaders urging the override to give Congress a hand in war commitments.

When the vote — four more than the necessary two-thirds majority — was announced, there was applause and cheering from house members.

Edge of Peace . . . Or of War?

Times News Services

Egypt and the United States said today they were restoring diplomatic relations immediately and moving toward peace in the Middle East. But an official Israeli military spokesman charged that Egypt was preparing its forces to resume the war.

Both Syria and Israel reported artillery duels along the Golan Heights today and there were minor clashes along the Suez Canal front where the semi-official Middle East News Agency said the Egyptian armed forces had been placed in an extreme state of alert.

Egypt broke relations with the United States during the 1967 Six Day War with a charge — later denied — that the U.S. 6th Fleet was flying combat missions for Israel. The resumption was announced today after Cairo talks between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Kissinger said after the talks and before leaving for Amman and talks with Jordan's King Hussein that "we are moving towards peace." Sadat told newsmen on the conference on the lawn of the presidential palace, "I agree with him."

There was no immediate reaction from Israel on the "towards peace" statements but shortly afterwards Israeli military spokesman Col. Nachman Karni told a military briefing in Tel Aviv:

"In the past hours there were a number of statements out of Cairo, some optimistic and some pessimistic, on the question of the resumption of fighting or the continuation of the ceasefire.

Senator Demands Ouster

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Veteran Republican Senator George Aiken of Vermont called today for impeachment proceedings against President Nixon, but opposed the president's resignation over the Watergate controversy.

The influential dean of the Republican minority in the Senate said: "It is the clear duty of the House of Representatives, through whatever procedures it chooses, to frame a charge of impeachment and to set itself a deadline for the task."

If no agreement can be reached on an impeachment charge — in effect an indictment paving the way for a Senate trial—the House leaders should tell the American people no agreed charge can be found against Nixon, Aiken said.

"That is the way to begin to restore confidence," Aiken said.

Meanwhile, a White House lawyer said today that Rose Woods, President Nixon's personal secretary, will testify about the Watergate tapes she listened to and apparently transcribed.

Lawyer Douglas Parker said she probably will appear Thursday at a hearing into the circumstances surrounding two Watergate conversations that presidential lawyers say went unrecorded.

A White House assistant, Stephen Bull, revealed Tuesday that Miss Woods has had possession of eight watergate tapes since late September.

On that weekend at Camp David, Md., she was said to have begun transcribing conversations on the tapes.

Miss Woods was given six more tapes to transcribe two

Mass Slaying Claims Nine

ACAMPO, Calif. (AP) — Nine persons were discovered shot to death and strewn about a luxury ranch-style house in this small community about 30 miles south of Sacramento, the San Joaquin County sheriff's office reported today.

The mass "execution" apparently was connected with the burglary of a grocery store owned by one of the victims. The dead include his wife and two children, a babysitter, her boyfriend, brother and parents.

Two young children of the Walter Parking family were found by a roomer, shot on a bed. Seven victims were found in a closet, bound, gagged and shot, and in the kitchen of the house at Victor, two miles east of Lodi.

Sheriff Michael M. Canlis said the slayings "look like the work of a madman."

"All these people appear to have been executed," the sheriff said.

Parkin, 33, and his father, operated the United Store, a roadside market.

Sheriff's deputies said the discovery was made by the Acampo fire department this morning while answering a rescue call.

Fugitives Holding 6 Hostage

WADENA, Minn. (UPI) — Two fugitives who shot their way out of jail held a family of six hostage in a farmhouse circled by dozens of law enforcement officers today but a snow storm stymied the escaper's getaway.

A light plane demanded by the runaways sat at Wadena airport with a sheriff's deputy at the controls, but swirling snow reduced visibility to less than a mile, delaying the takeoff and promised release of the hostages.

The fugitives, John Morgan, 37, and William L. Winans, 18, escaped from the county jail in this northwestern Minnesota community Monday, wounding jailer Randy Hanson. They went to the farm of Elmer Wegscheid at 6 p.m. Tuesday and have kept Wegscheid, his wife and their four teen-age children hostage while more than 50 local and state officers and FBI agents surrounded the house.

NEWS BRIEFS

$1B Added to '73 Ottawa Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — Supplementary estimates totalling just more than $1 billion were tabled in the Commons today by C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board.

They bring the federal government's intended record spending for the 1973-74 fiscal year to about $20.3 billion, and include $222 million for family allowances. The year's main estimates, tabled in February, totalled $19.3 billion.

Cracks in Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Skylab 3 launching, scheduled for Saturday, probably will be delayed five days until Nov. 15 because of cracks in all eight stabilizing fins in the first stage of the booster rocket, United States space agency officials said today.

Housing Starts Off

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said starts in urban areas of 10,000 people and over amounted to 22,013 in October, down from 22,592 in the same month last year.

UIC Rates To Jump On Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP)— Manpower Minister Robert Andras announced new unemployment insurance contribution rates today after disclosing that a deficit of $335 million is expected this year in the employer-employee account.

He also told the Commons the government is taking further steps to tighten administration of the unemployment insurance fund to reduce abuses of benefits.

The employer's contribution will rise to $1.96 from $1.40. They are effective next Jan. 1.

The minister said the government has decided to increase the contribution rates because the cumulative deficit in the employer-employee account at the end of this year would be $509.6 million. That includes a net cash deficit of $174.5 million carried over from last year.

Shouting over Conservative heckling, Andras said the government is withdrawing a bill designed to cut down abuses of the unemployment insurance fund. New Democrats, who have opposed the bill as discriminatory, welcomed the announcement by thumping their desks.

DETERMINATION REALLY POLLUTES

VANCOUVER (CP)—A welded seal had to be broken open to allow an oil truck driver to pump 1,925 gallons of fuel into an unused tank which allowed some of it to leak into Vancouver Harbor.

Federal environment co-ordinator Chris Hatfield said the fact the pipe was welded shut should have "told somebody something."

But a B.C. Hydro spokesman said those involved in the delivery thought the pipe was rusted — not welded — closed.

Delivery was made by Imperial Oil Ltd., to Hydro's Pacific Stage Lines Ltd. terminal near the waterfront.

The Hydro spokesman said that of the 1,925 gallons pumped in about 1,000 gallons remained in the tank. Some of the balance was mopped up on the spot and the rest got into the storm sewers and was carried into the harbor.

The spokesman could not say how much got into the sewers. The driver found two intake pipes about eight inches apart and a depot employee removed the cap from one pipe and told the driver to deliver it there, said an oil firm spokesman.

Hatfield said the department is continuing to investigate with a view to eventually laying charges.

"There was not a lot of oil, but some of the litte beaches around Stanley Park could get a good coat of oil," he said.

"This is certainly not very good for marine life — it wouldn't take very many of these things before there wouldn't be any more marine life."

CIVIC ELECTIONS '73

The first of several special features outlining the platforms of Greater Victoria candidates seeking election Nov. 17 starts in the Times today on Page 25 with candidates vying for Greater Victoria and Saanich school district positions.

The platforms of all candidates seeking regional district, aldermanic and school trustee berths will be published before the Nov. 17 election.

Plywood Prices Rising

The retail price of plywood will go up between 5 and 10 per cent in the next two months, industry spokesmen said Tuesday.

Although revisions of price lists have not been sent out by manufacturers, one Victoria retailer said he has been told the price increase on fir plywood will be 5 per cent for sanded, and 7 per cent for unsanded.

Other dealers confirm that a general increase is coming.

Quarter-inch one-side sanded fir plywood is selling in Victoria this week at between $7.05 and $7.45 a sheet.

The expected price hike follows a year of gradual increases in the plywood market which is strongly influenced by supply and demand in the United States (unlike the lumber market which is influenced by international demand), dealers point out.

A spokesman for Victoria Building Supplies Ltd. said despite the increases in prices "people seem to find the money somewhere" and sales volume is good.

A spokesman for another firm said the price increase has been more evident in so called "fall-down" grades of plywood while better grades have tended to hold steady.

He estimated the general increase in the past year has been about 10 per cent.

Shortage of supply of certain grades of plywood continues to be a problem for dealers.

Many are also concerned the closure of Evans Products Co. Ltd. Vancouver plywood division will affect the market.

Evans has been one of the few independent suppliers of plywood and, "has been able to be very competitive" with the larger manufacturers, a Victoria dealer said.

One of the major influences on future prices of plywood is the prospect of supply shortages in the U.S. as a result of shortages of fuel and phenol, industry publications have warned.

WELDWOOD PROFITS DOUBLE

Weldwood of Canada Ltd. reports net earnings for the first nine months of 1973 of $10.9 million or $2.14 per share, up 114 per cent from $4.9 million or $1 per share in the corresponding 1972 period.

Sales of lumber, plywood and other wood products amounted to $192 million in the nine-month period, up 40 per cent.

Third-quarter sales were $62 million, up from $45 million a year ago, while net income in the third quarter was up 48 per cent at $2.5 million or 49 cents a share.

Strachan Cleared of Lying Charge

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Transport Minister Robert Strachan, accused by a Social Credit MLA of lying in the legislature, was cleared of the charge Tuesday after getting the support of six of his government colleagues on a special committee.

After more than eight hours of testimony from witnesses, the committee split along party lines and voted 6-4 against a motion saying Strachan had lied when questioned in the house about a management study of the B.C Ferries Service.

The charge was levelled Monday by Bob McClelland (SC—Langley) and was referred to the all-party committee for a decision on the question of privilege.

McClelland said today he will not resign despite the fact Strachan has been officially cleared.

"There's no way I will resign. There's no way I intended to resign at any point in this thing," he said.

"At no time in the House or outside the House have I lied. I have been very truthful and all my allegations have been upheld and proven."

The committee heard testimony all day and evening Tuesday, questioning Strachan, McClelland, ferries manager Monty Aldous, operations manager William Weston and management consultant Frank Machin of F. R. Machin and Associates Ltd. of Victoria.

The charge raised by McClelland related to a question he asked during Monday's question period and the answer given by Strachan. McClelland contended Strachan lied in saying no management study on the ferry system had been authorized.

Strachan countered that he had at no time authorized any study.

Testimony heard by the committee established Strachan had no knowledge of the management survey until it had been well along the way to completion. The evidence was not as clear-cut, however, on the question of whether Strachan's responses to McClelland's questions related specifically to the existence of a management survey.

The committee members who voted that Strachan lied to the house were: Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-

Pure Cocaine Seized In Mainland Raid

Three suspects were arrested, one at the Vancouver International Airport and the other two at the Bayshore Inn. Potential value of the narcotic on the illicit market is about $150,000, police said.

FBI File a Poser In Ford Hearings

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. House Judiciary Committee plans to begin confirmation hearings on vice president-designate Gerald Ford Nov. 15, but committee Democrats are embroiled in a dispute with the justice department over the availability of the FBI file on Ford.

Justice decided, and the Senate Rules Committee agreed, that only the chairman and senior Republican could read the FBI's 1,700 pages of unevaluated data it has collected on Ford, the House minority leader.

This was explained as a compromise to meet the needs of Congress for information and the need to protect the confidentiality of the raw files.

Democratic members of the house commitee rebelled against this last week, saying each member needs to read the files to make an informed judgment on Ford's nomination. Acting Attorney-General Robert Bork rejected their request that the files be made available to all committee members.

Though Ford has been one of their colleagues for 25 years, the liberal-dominated Democratic side of the House committee does not plan to rush through his nomination with only a perfunctory glance.

Several members have drafted long lists of questions on his views of the presidency.

After a nearly two-hour meeting of committee Democrats Tuesday, Chairman Peter Rodino (Den—N.H.) said he will discuss the FBI files with Bork today and press for making them available to the entire committee. Rodino said he has refused to read the files himself until the issue is resolved. The committee has received other investigation reports on Ford, including one by the General Accounting Office (GAO) the investigating arm of Congress.

Rodino said he would not delay the hearings if the FBI files remain restricted, but said that "whether we could conduct the thorough investigation needed under those conditions is another matter."

Pressed both by Republicans and Democratic leaders for expeditious action on Ford, Rodino said the committee will hold hearings Thursday and Friday, Nov. 15-16, and on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday before Thanksgiving, even though the house plans to be on recess that week.

Rodino said he expected the hearings would take "at least" one week.

Ford will be the lead-off witness as he was before the Senate Rules Committee last Thursday.

In response to criticism of slow action, Rodino replied that while the senate committee had only Ford's nomination before it, House judiciary must also simultaneously gear up for an impeachment inquiry of President Nixon and consider a bill to create an independent Watergate special prosecutor.

Speaker Carl Albert has been pushing Rodino, because until Ford is confirmed Albert would become president if the office became vacant and he does not want to appear to be going slow for possible personal gain.

He said he was getting word that Ford's nomination wouldn't reach the house floor until Dec. 15.

Rep. Trent Lott (Rep.—Miss.), a freshman on the judiciary committee, accused Rodino of "dragging his feet" on the Ford nomination.

Rep. Jerome Waldie (Dem.—Calif.), a leading advocate of Nixon's impeachment, proposed that the president withdraw Ford's nomination, nominate Elliot Richardson and then resign so Richardson could become president.

Dog Tags Found

KEARNS, Utah (Reuter) — They have been lost nearly 30 years, but Pte. Noel Ericson is about to get back dog tags lost fighting during the Battle of the Bulge in the Second World War. A German family working the ground near their home found the metal identification tags and mailed them to Ericson, now superintendent of streets in South Salt Lake City.

Kremlin Unveils New Tank

The Soviet Union put its military might on display today and unveiled a new airborne tank (above) giving Russia the ability to fly a mobile armored force to trouble spots around the world. The new tank, along with troops and missiles, paraded through a rain-swept Red Square to mark the 56th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution. Soviet leaders watched the parade from a vantage point atop Lenin's mausoleum and used the occasion to call for a peace settlement in the Middle East. Western experts said the lightweight tank was the only new weapon in the parade. The sources said it would significantly boost the firepower of Soviet airborne units.

SUPERTANKER GOES UNDER

SANTA CRUZ de TENERIFE, Spain (UPI) — Rescued crew members of the Golar Patricia said Tuesday three explosions touched off huge fires and caused the sinking of 216,000-ton supertanker—the largest ship ever lost at sea.

The ship sank within an hour, according to its Norwegian captain Harald Stormo. It split in two before going down, crew members said. The Spanish navy said the only casualty was a Spanish seaman who died of burns.

Stormo refused to discuss what caused the blast, although one seaman believed fumes in empty tanks were ignited. Stormo described the evacuation of the 43 crew members as "orderly" and said there was no chance to save the ship.

The crew, 30 of them Nowegians including Stormo, were picked up by the Spanish ocean liner Cabo de San Vicente.

Crew members tried to fight the flames, but were ordered to take to lifeboats when it became clear the supertanker could not be saved, they said Tuesday.

Seaman Jose Escuela, a Spaniard, said crew members had just taken a lunch break from cleaning one of the ship's tanks when the first blast "gave the boat a terrific jolt and started a fire in the foreship. There was utter confusion. There were new explosions."

Fighting Flares In Indochina

Times News Services

SAIGON—Heavy Communist shelling of the sprawling Bien Hoa airbase 15 miles northeast of here Tuesday has fuelled official speculation that the expected dry season offensives may have begun.

Elsewhere in Indochina there were also signs of renewed warfare.

—In Cambodia rebel troops ambushed a column of 1,200 soldiers and civilians trying to flee a besieged town Tuesday night, killing or capturing more than half of them in one of the fiercest battles of the war.

—In Saigon the Viet Cong said government planes today bombed Loc Ninh, their administrative capital 75 miles north of Saigon, "striking at people while they were at market."

—Also, North Vietnamese infantry and tanks stormed a government outpost in the central highlands, apparently driving out the defenders, the South Vietnamese military command reported today.

The base, if actually lost, would be the third government base to fall to the Communists in three days of fierce tank, infantry, air and artillery fighting in the southern central highlands.

Despite the step-up in hostilities Western diplomats in Saigon for the most part warned against attributing too much significance to the attacks.

Some pointed out that while the Communists seem to have prepared for a general offensive with a steady infiltration of troops and weapons to the south since the January ceasefire, there has not yet been any hard evidence that the decision to launch an offensive has been taken in Hanoi.

The Communists, through a spokesman here, denied that the airbase attack signalled an offensive and called it a reprisal for government air attacks against large Communist-controlled areas north of Saigon.

Government spokesmen, on the other hand, said the attack was the first phase of a major offenive.

The ministry of foreign affairs rushed off a special communique denouncing the shelling as "a blatant act of war."

"The government of the Republic of Vietnam denounces before world public opinion these acts of aggression," said the Communique. It said that the shelling by "the warlike Communists, in blatant violation of the Paris agreement of Jan. 27, 1973 (clearly shows) their intention to resume their war of aggression against South Vietnam."

B.C. Oil Low

Times News Serrvices

Industry in British Columbia is facing a shortage of heavy oil supplies.

James Rhodes, chairman of the B.C. Energy Commission, said this winter's situation is known to be marginal — "it appears . . . it will be nip-and-tuck."

Barry Sleigh, president of B.C. Petroleum Association, said it appeared traditional users of heavy oil would be covered but there may be spot problems.

He said he was more concerned about next winter's supply, since contracts for that will be negotiated in the spring.

Council of Forest Industries spokesman Pat Hrushowy said industry users received assurances before the Middle East war that contracts would be met.

"If Canada and the United States get into a situation where neither will send oil to the other we could be in trouble," he said.

Vancouver Island mills rely heavily on California-supplied oil.

Sleigh added that B.C. should have sufficient furnace oil unless a large industry such as a pulp mill decided to switch from natural gas for heating purposes.

The energy commission, meanwhile, expects to have a preliminary report to the provincial government on oil supply, demand and price ready by Feb. 1.

However, it will be up to the government to decide whether the public will have access to the data contained in the report.

In an effort to protect Canadian consumers from winter gasoline and heating oil shortages, the National Energy Board today, rejected export applications from former cus-

TRAPPED UTILITY POLE serves as a strange dividing post between two lines of traffic on Metchosin Road near William Head. The road was widened around the pole, but before it could be moved to its rightful place at the side of the improved road, paving crews trapped it in the middle. A Hydro spokesman said the pole will probably be moved soon.

Session Ending Today

The B.C. legislature will prorogue today as MLAs on both sides of the house have agreed to give speedy approval to bills still remaining on the order paper.

Only nine of 69 bills introduced during the eight-week session still have to be dealt with and Premier Barrett says Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen's administrator, Chief Justice John Ferris, will be on hand to wind up the session sometime today.

Opposition spokesmen confirm arrangements have been made to end the session and say they do not expect any stall tactics.

One of the remaining bills is a contentious one, however, setting up the department of transport and communications under Robert Strachan, the minister who has come under opposition fire recently and was cleared Tuesday of a charge by another member that he lied to the house.

Once the nine bills pass through committee stage in the house today, formal approval of third reading will be given a number of bills which were amended during the session and Ferris will be called to give royal assent to all bills passed by the House.

Thirty-two bills were dealt with Tuesday, 24 given committee stage approval and eight given second reading during the afternoon and long evening sittings.

Most of the debate was speedy as is traditional during the last days of any session but the Human Rights Code of B.C. sparked some discussion as David Anderson (L-Victoria) prodded Labor Minister Bill King for what he said were inconsistencies in the legislation.

Different sections of the bill prohibit discrimination in areas such as housing, purchase of property, wages and employment.

Nixon Loses Veto Battle

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — With substantial defections of Republican congressmen, the House of Representatives today over-rode President Nixon's veto of a bill to restrict his powers to wage war.

The 284-135 vote sent Nixon's political effectiveness skidding to an all-time low. The Senate planned a speedy vote on the same subject later today. It is expected to have a similar result.

The override came despite an impassioned plea by Rep. Gerald Ford, vice-president-designate, to avoid the "potential of disaster" he said it represented during the Mideast crisis.

Ford argued that the bill carried "the potential of disaster for us at this juncture, to take away support from the president as he works day and night with the Secretary of State to achieve peace" in the Mideast.

"We are not out of the woods yet," Ford said. "we may be a long way from being out of the woods. I'm very concerned that to override this veto at this time could . . . ruin the president's position."

The bill would impose a 60-day limit on presidents' power to commit United States forces abroad without Congress's approval.

Its terms would empower Congress to halt the war any time during the 60 days with a veto-proof resolution. There could be a 30-day extension for withdrawal.

Supporters of the bill said their biggest override obstacles were the popularity of vice-president-designate Ford and opposition of more than a dozen anti-war congressmen.

Speaker Carl Albert was among Democratic House leaders urging the override to give Congress a hand in war commitments.

When the vote — four more than the necessary two-thirds majority — was announced, there was applause and cheering from house members.

Edge of Peace . . . Or of War?

Times News Services

Egypt and the United States said today they were restoring diplomatic relations immediately and moving toward peace in the Middle East. But an official Israeli military spokesman charged that Egypt was preparing its forces to resume the war.

Both Syria and Israel reported artillery duels along the Golan Heights today and there were minor clashes along the Suez Canal front where the semi-official Middle East News Agency said the Egyptian armed forces had been placed in an extreme state of alert.

Egypt broke relations with the United States during the 1967 Six Day War with a charge — later denied — that the U.S. 6th Fleet was flying combat missions for Israel. The resumption was announced today after Cairo talks between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Kissinger said after the talks and before leaving for Amman and talks with Jordan's King Hussein that "we are moving towards peace." Sadat told newsmen on the conference on the lawn of the presidential palace, "I agree with him."

There was no immediate reaction from Israel on the "towards peace" statements but shortly afterwards Israeli military spokesman Col. Nachman Karni told a military briefing in Tel Aviv:

"In the past hours there were a number of statements out of Cairo, some optimistic and some pessimistic, on the question of the resumption of fighting or the continuation of the ceasefire.

Senator Demands Ouster

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Veteran Republican Senator George Aiken of Vermont called today for impeachment proceedings against President Nixon, but opposed the president's resignation over the Watergate controversy.

The influential dean of the Republican minority in the Senate said: "It is the clear duty of the House of Representatives, through whatever procedures it chooses, to frame a charge of impeachment and to set itself a deadline for the task."

If no agreement can be reached on an impeachment charge — in effect an indictment paving the way for a Senate trial—the House leaders should tell the American people no agreed charge can be found against Nixon, Aiken said.

"That is the way to begin to restore confidence," Aiken said.

Meanwhile, a White House lawyer said today that Rose Woods, President Nixon's personal secretary, will testify about the Watergate tapes she listened to and apparently transcribed.

Lawyer Douglas Parker said she probably will appear Thursday at a hearing into the circumstances surrounding two Watergate conversations that presidential lawyers say went unrecorded.

A White House assistant, Stephen Bull, revealed Tuesday that Miss Woods has had possession of eight watergate tapes since late September.

On that weekend at Camp David, Md., she was said to have begun transcribing conversations on the tapes.

Miss Woods was given six more tapes to transcribe two

Mass Slaying Claims Nine

ACAMPO, Calif. (AP) — Nine persons were discovered shot to death and strewn about a luxury ranch-style house in this small community about 30 miles south of Sacramento, the San Joaquin County sheriff's office reported today.

The mass "execution" apparently was connected with the burglary of a grocery store owned by one of the victims. The dead include his wife and two children, a babysitter, her boyfriend, brother and parents.

Two young children of the Walter Parking family were found by a roomer, shot on a bed. Seven victims were found in a closet, bound, gagged and shot, and in the kitchen of the house at Victor, two miles east of Lodi.

Sheriff Michael M. Canlis said the slayings "look like the work of a madman."

"All these people appear to have been executed," the sheriff said.

Parkin, 33, and his father, operated the United Store, a roadside market.

Sheriff's deputies said the discovery was made by the Acampo fire department this morning while answering a rescue call.

Fugitives Holding 6 Hostage

WADENA, Minn. (UPI) — Two fugitives who shot their way out of jail held a family of six hostage in a farmhouse circled by dozens of law enforcement officers today but a snow storm stymied the escaper's getaway.

A light plane demanded by the runaways sat at Wadena airport with a sheriff's deputy at the controls, but swirling snow reduced visibility to less than a mile, delaying the takeoff and promised release of the hostages.

The fugitives, John Morgan, 37, and William L. Winans, 18, escaped from the county jail in this northwestern Minnesota community Monday, wounding jailer Randy Hanson. They went to the farm of Elmer Wegscheid at 6 p.m. Tuesday and have kept Wegscheid, his wife and their four teen-age children hostage while more than 50 local and state officers and FBI agents surrounded the house.

NEWS BRIEFS

$1B Added to '73 Ottawa Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — Supplementary estimates totalling just more than $1 billion were tabled in the Commons today by C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board.

They bring the federal government's intended record spending for the 1973-74 fiscal year to about $20.3 billion, and include $222 million for family allowances. The year's main estimates, tabled in February, totalled $19.3 billion.

Cracks in Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Skylab 3 launching, scheduled for Saturday, probably will be delayed five days until Nov. 15 because of cracks in all eight stabilizing fins in the first stage of the booster rocket, United States space agency officials said today.

Housing Starts Off

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said starts in urban areas of 10,000 people and over amounted to 22,013 in October, down from 22,592 in the same month last year.

UIC Rates To Jump On Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP)— Manpower Minister Robert Andras announced new unemployment insurance contribution rates today after disclosing that a deficit of $335 million is expected this year in the employer-employee account.

He also told the Commons the government is taking further steps to tighten administration of the unemployment insurance fund to reduce abuses of benefits.

The new contribution rate for employees is $1.40 for each $100 of insurable earnings, up from $1.

The employer's contribution will rise to $1.96 from $1.40. They are effective next Jan. 1.

The minister said the government has decided to increase the contribution rates because the cumulative deficit in the employer-employee account at the end of this year would be $509.6 million. That includes a net cash deficit of $174.5 million carried over from last year.

Shouting over Conservative heckling, Andras said the government is withdrawing a bill designed to cut down abuses of the unemployment insurance fund. New Democrats, who have opposed the bill as discriminatory, welcomed the announcement by thumping their desks.

DETERMINATION REALLY POLLUTES

VANCOUVER (CP)—A welded seal had to be broken open to allow an oil truck driver to pump 1,925 gallons of fuel into an unused tank which allowed some of it to leak into Vancouver Harbor.

Federal environment co-ordinator Chris Hatfield said the fact the pipe was welded shut should have "told somebody something."

But a B.C. Hydro spokesman said those involved in the delivery thought the pipe was rusted — not welded — closed.

Delivery was made by Imperial Oil Ltd., to Hydro's Pacific Stage Lines Ltd. terminal near the waterfront.

The Hydro spokesman said that of the 1,925 gallons pumped in about 1,000 gallons remained in the tank. Some of the balance was mopped up on the spot and the rest got into the storm sewers and was carried into the harbor.

The spokesman could not say how much got into the sewers. The driver found two intake pipes about eight inches apart and a depot employee removed the cap from one pipe and told the driver to deliver it there, said an oil firm spokesman.

Hatfield said the department is continuing to investigate with a view to eventually laying charges.

"There was not a lot of oil, but some of the litte beaches around Stanley Park could get a good coat of oil," he said.

"This is certainly not very good for marine life — it wouldn't take very many of these things before there wouldn't be any more marine life."

Meantime city council moved to place emergency supplies of oil-fighting materials at key spots on the waterfront.

CIVIC ELECTIONS '73

The first of several special features outlining the platforms of Greater Victoria candidates seeking election Nov. 17 starts in the Times today on Page 25 with candidates vying for Greater Victoria and Saanich school district positions.

The platforms of all candidates seeking regional district, aldermanic and school trustee berths will be published before the Nov. 17 election.

Plywood Prices Rising

The retail price of plywood will go up between 5 and 10 per cent in the next two months, industry spokesmen said Tuesday.

Although revisions of price lists have not been sent out by manufacturers, one Victoria retailer said he has been told the price increase on fir plywood will be 5 per cent for sanded, and 7 per cent for unsanded.

Other dealers confirm that a general increase is coming.

Quarter-inch one-side sanded fir plywood is selling in Victoria this week at between $7.05 and $7.45 a sheet.

The expected price hike follows a year of gradual increases in the plywood market which is strongly influenced by supply and demand in the United States (unlike the lumber market which is influenced by international demand), dealers point out.

A spokesman for Victoria Building Supplies Ltd. said despite the increases in prices "people seem to find the money somewhere" and sales volume is good.

A spokesman for another firm said the price increase has been more evident in so called "fall-down" grades of plywood while better grades have tended to hold steady.

He estimated the general increase in the past year has been about 10 per cent.

Shortage of supply of certain grades of plywood continues to be a problem for dealers.

Many are also concerned the closure of Evans Products Co. Ltd. Vancouver plywood division will affect the market.

Evans has been one of the few independent suppliers of plywood and, "has been able to be very competitive" with the larger manufacturers, a Victoria dealer said.

One of the major influences on future prices of plywood is the prospect of supply shortages in the U.S. as a result of shortages of fuel and phenol, industry publications have warned.

WELDWOOD PROFITS DOUBLE

Weldwood of Canada Ltd. reports net earnings for the first nine months of 1973 of $10.9 million or $2.14 per share, up 114 per cent from $4.9 million or $1 per share in the corresponding 1972 period.

Sales of lumber, plywood and other wood products amounted to $192 million in the nine-month period, up 40 per cent.

Third-quarter sales were $62 million, up from $45 million a year ago, while net income in the third quarter was up 48 per cent at $2.5 million or 49 cents a share.

Strachan Cleared of Lying Charge

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Transport Minister Robert Strachan, accused by a Social Credit MLA of lying in the legislature, was cleared of the charge Tuesday after getting the support of six of his government colleagues on a special committee.

After more than eight hours of testimony from witnesses, the committee split along party lines and voted 6-4 against a motion saying Strachan had lied when questioned in the house about a management study of the B.C Ferries Service.

The charge was levelled Monday by Bob McClelland (SC—Langley) and was referred to the all-party committee for a decision on the question of privilege.

McClelland said today he will not resign despite the fact Strachan has been officially cleared.

"There's no way I will resign. There's no way I intended to resign at any point in this thing," he said.

"At no time in the House or outside the House have I lied. I have been very truthful and all my allegations have been upheld and proven."

The committee heard testimony all day and evening Tuesday, questioning Strachan, McClelland, ferries manager Monty Aldous, operations manager William Weston and management consultant Frank Machin of F. R. Machin and Associates Ltd. of Victoria.

The charge raised by McClelland related to a question he asked during Monday's question period and the answer given by Strachan. McClelland contended Strachan lied in saying no management study on the ferry system had been authorized.

Strachan countered that he had at no time authorized any study.

Testimony heard by the committee established Strachan had no knowledge of the management survey until it had been well along the way to completion. The evidence was not as clear-cut, however, on the question of whether Strachan's responses to McClelland's questions related specifically to the existence of a management survey.

The committee members who voted that Strachan lied to the house were: Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-

Pure Cocaine Seized In Mainland Raid

Three suspects were arrested, one at the Vancouver International Airport and the other two at the Bayshore Inn. Potential value of the narcotic on the illicit market is about $150,000, police said.
